Britain Must Export 25% Of Output, Cripps Says

More Controls to Be Imposed on Labor, Capital to Reach Goal, He Declares

London, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Sir Stafford Cripps told the British people today they must export one fourth of everything they produce to maintain Britain's economic freedom from the United States and make the pound sterling replace the dollar as the world's most prized currency.

Controls and still more controls will be piled on both labor and industry unless and until the desired export goal is reached, Cripps warned. He gave the average Briton no hope of escape from his drab austerity existence until this goal is met.

Speaking as president of the powerful Board of Trade, Cripps also warned British capital that the government's new crisis program may cut down capital investments by 200 million pounds (800 million dollars) a year so Britain could export 4 million tons of steel next year.

After explaining the new crisis program to labor and industrial leaders, Cripps went on the radio with an appeal to the British people to help carry it through to success.

Failure Would Be 'Disastrous'

"To fail would be really disastrous," he said. "We should wither away as a great nation, our people would starve and our country would sink into insignificance. It is a matter of life and death for our country."

Cripps gave British labor only a peek at the new controls in store for the workingman. He said the new labor plan, to be announced later by the Ministry of Labor, would force labor into essential industries and divert nonproductive labor into productive channels.

"We do not propose to introduce industrial conscription unless it is proven there is no other way," he said, indicating that the government had softened what was heralded earlier this week as proposed drastic measures to control manpower.

Even the program contemplated, while short of actual labor con-

Europe Told To Aid Itself

World Bank Head Prescribes Actions

The World Bank's annual report, issued here yesterday, stressed that Europe must adopt further measures of self-help before it can hope to recover.

"Europe itself must make the major contribution," said the report, submitted by President John J. McCloy to the directors now meeting in London.

"Outside assistance is vital, but it represents a small percentage of the total effort."

Further Steps Needed

One of the further steps needed, according to the report, is to put sound bugetary and tax practices into effect and restore internal financial stability. Others, it said, are to integrate the reconstruction programs of individual countries; to remove or lower trade barriers; and to make greater use of German production for the benefit of Europe.

The report expressed the hope that the present 16-nation conference in Paris might give the European countries a chance to work out some mechanism for economic reform and cooperation among themselves.

As to the Bank's role in European recovery, the report made it clear that it was not within the bank's province to lend stopgap help for buying food and other consumable goods.

The Bank must concentrate, according to the report, on "those projects or programs . . . which promise the greatest increase in productive output in the shortest possible time."

It also reminded Europeans that

Sunday: Anthony Eden Writes On Crisis Facing U.N.

What will happen if the coming session of the U.N. General Assembly fails? Writing in tomorrow's Sunday Washington Post Britain's Anthony Eden foretells frankly the consequences of such failure as he sees them. Mr. Eden minces no words; he outlines the crucial problems ahead in graphic terms.

In a companion Sunday story Post Reporter Ferdinand Kuhn predicts the U. S. stand on major issues at the meeting. A special Gallup poll giving America's opinion on the U.N. rounds out the full pre-session coverage in Sunday's Washington Post.

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 12.—"Tell the Americans," the man said, "that we can support ourselves in America. We won't need any help over there. But now while we are living in German camps Americans have to spend money on us and we don't like it.

"If we came to America we could work. Each one of us has a trade or craft. We will do anything; we will build roads in Alaska. We have only one condition: We can only go if our families can come too. We have lost everything else and all that remains to us is our families—some of us, that is."

The speaker was a Lithuanian in a displaced persons camp at Hanau, near Frankfurt. He is one of 6500 people, almost entirely Balts, (Lithuanians, Latvians, Estonians) all of them former German slave laborers, who inhabit the camp.

He and his fellows in that camp and in 414 other DP installations in the American zone of Germany are individual particles in the most concentrated mass tragedy of today's world.

Reservoirs of Bitter Memories

Their past is a reservoir of bitter memories of death and despoliation, of slavery, cruelty and lost homeland. Their present is a twilight existence of barren prospects, crowded camp living in a penurious land whose inhabitants they hate and by whom they are hated. Their future is a question mark in which they nevertheless find some glimmer of hope—hope of escape from Europe to a land where they can start another life no matter how tough the going.

In all Europe there are thought to be about one million of them. They are former slave laborers, refugees from communism, and Jews, mostly from Poland, but including a pitiful handful who somehow miraculously were still alive in German concentration camps when the Allies captured them.

30 Per Cent Forsake Camps

In the American zone are just short of 500,000 DPs. There are 325,000 in camps and another 150,000 out of the camps trying to make their way "on the German economy."

The total includes 100,000 Balts, 160,000 Poles, 150,000 Jews and about 65,000 Russian, Balkan and stateless peoples—men without a country.

Those who live in the camps get a daily diet averaging about 2425 calories per person, or 1000 more than the average German. Even so, more than 30 per cent of all

Trade Revival Sought

Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman told the Nation by radio last night that European countries were "nearing the bottom of the barrel" in their dollar resources.

He spoke as Secretary of State Marshall left Washington for the United Nations Assembly in New York with Europe's pleas for help still ringing in his ears.

"In time, they will work out of their present difficulties," he said, "but only if we help them by allowing them to buy on credit until they are able to pay as they go."

The Commerce secretary also declared that the high level of food prices in this country is due more to Americans bidding against other food than to the shipments abroad.

Harriman was the second high Administration leader to raise a danger signal about Europe this week. On Wednesday, Secretary Marshall sid some form of stopgap help would be needed this winter to avert "intolerble hunger and cold" across the Atlantic.

Reconstruction Obstacle

"How long other countries can keep up their purchases here is a serious question," Harriman said last night. "The dollar shortage which is developing in the world is a major obstacle to reconstruction, and has great meaning for all Americans.

"Our help will not only alleviate hunger, but will get wheels of production turning again. It will make possible the return of normal, two-way world trade, which will mean a better life for people everywhere, and will mean permanent jobs for Americans.

"Few people realize that one American out of 12 right now earns his living by producing for world markets; and the only way to maintain those markets is to help other people get back on their feet. But most important of all, American help at this crucial moment of history will be an investment in

Truman Seen Still Unsold On Session

Must Be Convinced By Marshall and Congress Leaders

By Frank L. Dennis
Post Reporter

Aboard the Missouri, Sept. 12.—A week out of Norfolk on his way home from Rio, President Truman was reported today still of the opinion that no special session of Congress is necessary.

He is expected to confer with Secretary of State Marshall shortly after reaching the White House Saturday, September 20. The fact is that Marshall and congressional leaders will have to convince the President of the need for convening Congress before January.

Meantime, the presidential party and other civilians aboard were learning why people of tropical climes invented the midday siesta. Weather is conducive to lethargy.

Missouri in Gulf Stream

Due east of Trinidad about 450 miles at dark tonight and heading northwest at 20 knots, the Missouri is in the area where the trade winds from northeast and southeast meet, causing storms, and where the Gulf Stream rises.

Today the temperature of both air and water was 83 degrees except that the air temperature dropped to 70 for awhile after a squall.

In such waters fish abound. Flying fishes play about the bow of the Missouri and one flew on to the forecastle deck, a height of perhaps 35 feet. Schools of dolphins frequently are visible and one shark cut the water the length of the ship.

At 8 a. m. Saturday, on her present course, the Missouri would be about 990 miles due east of Trinidad.

Mr. Truman today saw the Missouri refuel its two escorting destroyers, the Small and Dyess, which came alongside early in the morning. Today the convoy slowed to about 12 knots and the Missouri fueled the destroyers one at

Foreign Agents Hide Deals Here for Millions in Arms

Boston, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Foreign government agents, acting in strict secrecy, are busily negotiating for the purchase of war weapons in the United States, President Melvin M. Johnson, jr., of Johnson Automatics, Inc., disclosed today.

The inventor of the Johnson light machine gun and semiautomatic rifle, and one of the Nation's biggest manufacturers of automatic weapons, revealed to the United Press:

"Current prospects will result in military orders for light machine guns and semiautomatic rifles amounting to many millions of dollars before the end of 1947.

"For the past two years our technicians have continued to develop and improve weapons, anticipating the inevitable situation which today confronts the world."

Johnson said he had secret conferences with agents of European, Middle, Near and Far Eastern countries.

He said he had dispatched specially trained representatives overseas and soon would leave for South America himself, for a "top-secret" conference.

Aides Balks On Labor Act Affidavits

Lewis' Stand Blocks Compliance With Ruling on Taft-Hartley Law

Chicago, Sept. 12 (AP).—John L. Lewis today blocked AFL compliance with the Taft-Hartley Act, at least for the time being, thereby closing the doors of the National Labor Relations Board to all 105 unions with 7,500,000 members.

Lewis opposed the signing of affidavits disavowing membership in the Communist Party, required under the Labor-Management Relations Act.

Since the AFL executive council, comprising 15 officers of the AFL, had to act unanimously in order to comply with a ruling of General Counsel Rorbert N. Denham of the NLRB, Lewis' opposition was enough to stymie compliance.

Denham had ruled that no AFL union would be eligible to use the facilities of the National Labor Relations Board if any AFL officer refused to sign an affidavit. This included all members of the executive council, because all are top officials in the federation.

"Cannot Conform" to Ruling

AFL President William Green told a news conference that the council "could not conform to the Denham ruling."

"The council decided that the Taft-Hartley Act is reprehensible, vicious and destructive to the workers' civil and legal rights," Green said.

While the AFL president would not predict that a fight over compliance would develop on the floor of the AFL convention in San Francisco beginning October 6, it was conceded by other labor leaders here that the whole issue now would shift to the convention.

In the interval, however, there remained the possibility that the Denham ruling might be reversed by Denham, by the NLRB, or by the courts. In which case the AFL executive council members would not have to sign affidavits in order to make the member unions eligible to use machinery of the NLRB.

Members of the council other than Lewis came to Chicago prepared to sign the non-Communist affidavits. Powerful members like William L. Hutcheson of the carpenters and Daniel J. Tobin of the teamsters, openly supported that policy. Green had said last Monday he would recommend compliance with that provision of the act and said an immediate unanimous statement to that effect would be signed by the 15 council members.

Affidavit Rule Denounced

But Green had failed to consult Lewis in advance, persons close to him disclosed. In the meantime, Lewis' United Mine Workers Journal vehemently denounced the affidavit requirement and said loyal American labor leaderse would be "justified" in not taking the oath. The UMW has denied membership to Communists since 1927.

Some council members said Lewis had won support in his argument from Hutcheson, although the carpenters' boss is pledged to sign up as an officer of the AFL building and construction trades department, which announced it would comply last week.

Some of Lewis' opposition is understood to be based on a belief that the requirement is unconstitutional and an insult to labor leaders, inasmuch as employers are not forced to sign the non-Communist declaration, and that compliance with one provision of the act might be construed as acceptance of the entire law. The union leaders are calling for outright repeal of the act.

CIO vice presidents, holding positions in that organization comparable to the members of the AFL executive council, have put off their decision until the CIO

Barrett Asks Wide Reforms In Police Crime Reporting; Calls D. C. System Obsolete

To Curb Duplication

New Police Record Plan Urged

By John Singerhoff
Post Reporter

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, recommended to the District Commissioners yesterday a central records office and an entirely new crime reporting system.

The new office—Records and Communications Division—would include three separate bureaus—Records Bureau, Communications Bureau and Identification Bureau.

Barrett's recommendations grew out of suggestions made to him by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He had asked the FBI to survey local crime reporting methods after The Washington Post disclosed a widespread practice here of withholding crime reports from official statistics.

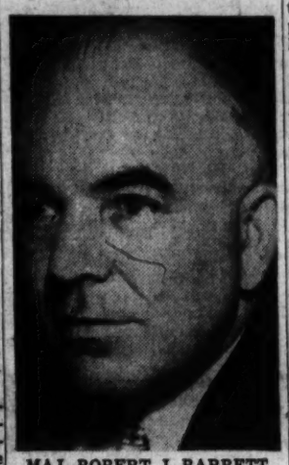
The police chief told the Commissioners there should be an "entire revision of our crime reporting technique, and that our entire communications system should be modernized."

Barrett's reform recommendations call for:

1. Establishment of a central records office to carry all Police Department records, including traffic accident reports and injury reports.

2. Centralization of all police communications, namely the telephone, teletype and radio dispatchers.

3. Establishment of a new captaincy, two lieutenants and two sergeants to serve as supervisory personnel.



MAJ. ROBERT J. BARRETT
Says procedures are "obsolete"

Barrett's recommendations also carried an entirely new method of numbering complaints and assignments designed to allow for ready follow up of cases by superiors.

The police chief said it may be necessary for the commissioners to ask for an immediate appropriation to get money enough for his reforms.

The central records office would greatly enlarge on the present small statistical bureau. In fact, the statistical bureau will be only a part of the new records bureau. In effect, Central Records Office would be a source of information based on all the records of the department.

Barrett suggested that the central records office maintain a complete index to offenses, arrests of traffic violators, traffic accidents and the like. Also he recommended the records office maintain all arrest reports and indices to lost and stolen property including stolen automobiles.

In the communications section, Barrett would place the radio dispatches, now operating at the Tenth Precinct; telephone and teletype operators and a crew of "complaint officers."

The latter would take all incoming calls from the police switch board. No calls for police aid would be routed to a police precinct as now is the case.

The complaint officer would determine the extent of police protection or assistance needed in any particular case. If a radio car is needed, the dispatcher, sitting adjacent to the complaint clerk, would radio orders to the neces-

Post's Disclosures Confirmed by FBI; Only 4432 of 10,592 Offenses Recorded

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett yesterday called for sweeping changes in police crime reporting methods.

He branded procedures as "obsolete." He submitted FBI figures on Washington crime to show the withholding from official crime statistics of thousands of offenses known to police.

He blamed regulations of his predecessors for the withholding of crime complaints in many categories. He insisted that there had been "no violation of the regulations or of established police practices."

A 35-page report to the District Commissioners confirmed disclosures by The Washington Post that more than 600 robbery complaints made by residents and visitors had not been entered in police statistics between July 1, 1946, and May 30, 1947. Barrett's survey disclosed there were actually 684 "pocketed" robbery complaints.

Sex Complaints Withheld

In addition, his report disclosed the withholding of 29 sex offenses, 26 housebreakings and 26 grand larcenies.

To his own report to the Commissioners, Major Barrett attached the recommendations of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which he called in to survey the department's crime reporting methods following the expose of The Washington Post.

The Senate District Committee, following newspaper disclosures, summoned Major Barrett and other police officers and the District Commissioners. After hearing their testimony, the committee, on July 15, unanimously recommended an investigation of the Metropolitan Police Department. The Senate Rules Committee approved a $25,000 appropriation for the inquiry. This measure was lost in the closing days of the session when Senator Olin D. Johnston objected to passage by unanimous consent.

The FBI made a study of five crime categories and one of misdemeanors for the first six months of this year.

Their report showed that police recorded in statistics only 4432 complaints. The FBI reported it found there were actually 10,592 complaints.

All unfounded complaints were eliminated by both Barrett and the FBI in arriving at their conclusions, the report stated.

The FBI survey showed that only 35 rape complaints were recorded in police statistics. Actually, they found 58 complaints, an increase of 66 per cent.

Aggravated assault cases recorded in statistics totaled 382. The FBI reported it found 1025, an increase of 168 per cent.

In petty larceny complaints there was an increase from 1550 to 5598, or 261 per cent.

Burglary complaints recorded totaled 1546 on official records.

Barrett's Idea On POLICE Has Catch In It

Maj. Robert J. Barrett looked into the future yesterday and said that if the District Commissioners adopt his plan for a Central Complaint Room, he will attempt to get the telephone company to use a dial consisting of P-O-L-I-C-E for emergency calls to the Police Department.

Officials of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. said that Major Barrett had not yet made the request to them. As to the feasibility of using POLICE instead of National 4000, the police number, they said a consultation with dial engineers would be needed before a decision.

A reporter called POLICE on the phone and got a special operator, who said she was not a policeman, and that there is no such exchange. She said that seven years ago, the company abandoned an exchange called Potomac, if that would help.

End of Steel Shortage Seen In Two Years

Leaders of Industry Predict That Result To Senate Group

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

America's top steel executives yesterday countered suggestions of Government regulation with predictions that the industry can catch up with current steel shortages within two years.

Thirteen of the Nation's leading steelmakers gathered around a table yesterday to discuss the steel shortage with the Senate Small Business Subcommittee on Steel.

Chairman Edward Martin (R., Pa.) solemnly warned the steel barons that the public would have to be served.

Martin, whose State is one of the prime steel producing areas, said: "Those of you who know me, know that I am a strong advocate of the American free enterprise system. I want it to continue and I want it to expand. But I want it to function with proper regard for the public interest. It must not run riot over the prone bodies of the little men in business.

"I tell you this frankly. Your Government and your Congress are reluctant to add new disruptions to our free enterprise system. But if evils like the steel gray market and other abuses which have developed, and similar racketeering in other lines of business do not end, don't be surprised when Uncle Sam moves in as a traffic cop."

Later Martin added:

"I realize that steel is a tough business. But in the steel business, or in any other business, management has no more right to adopt a 'public be damned' attitude than labor or government.

"In the face of the growing pres-

Inspectors Added

District Plans Short-Weight Crackdown

A new squad of District inspectors is being formed to protect Washington's marketing public from increasing "shortweight" law violations.

J. Thomas Kennedy, superintendent of weights, measures and markets, disclosed a plan to employ four or five new inspectors to blanket District markets in a widespread check on violations.

Shortweight offenses, climbing along with the price of food, began in increasing numbers about six weeks ago, Kennedy said. He charged some merchants advertise cut food prices to bolster lagging sales, then shortweight the buyer to keep from losing money.

Inspectors, working seven days a week, will investigate every store where food is sold at lower than prevailing prices, Kennedy warned.

He said about a dozen shortweight arrests have been made in the last six weeks and two violators are scheduled in Municipal Court Thursday. There were only 30 arrests recorded here during the last fiscal year. Violators face penalties up to a $500 fine or a six months' jail term.

Included in Kennedy's plans to combat the violations is a three-point program to:

1. Ask the Commissioners to require dealers to designate in advertisements what grade meat they are offering at listed prices.

2. Promote an educational campaign through citizens' associations.

3. Establish courses in schools to teach high-school students how to buy food.

For the buyers' protection, Kennedy suggested: Know what grade of food you are buying, be certain of the price, watch weighing of the food, figure what the price should be for the weight shown on the scales, figure your own total and check it against the grocer's.

Taft Advances New Price-Cut Plan—'Eat Less'

Opens Western Tour With Plea for Voluntary Belt-Tightening

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Santa Cruz, Calif., Sept. 12.—Senator Robert A. Taft today opened his tour of the West Coast with a suggestion that people "eat less and eat less extravagantly."

Asserting the price rise may well top all other questions, including the labor act, as a 1948 campaign issue, he said return of price controls isn't the answer.

Instead, he suggested "voluntary" reductions in domestic food consumption as a partial solution.

Taft briefly discussed prices, foreign policy and a wide range of other issues at a press conference here.

Then he plunged into a vigorous defense of the Taft-Hartley Act and States' rights in two separate panel discussions before the California State Bar Association. He termed the Taft-Hartley law "a just, reasonable and mild" act designed to protect workers from "arbitrary acts of their own leaders."

A Jovial Barnstormer

Thus opened a barnstorming tour that will take the Ohio Republican into six other Far Western States in a preliminary quest of support for the 1948 Republican Presidential nomination.

Welcomed to California last night by Governor Warren, and other State GOP leaders, a jovial, laughing Taft, contrasting with the often stern "boss" of the Senate, teamed twice in one day with Indiana's Charles A. Halleck, House majority leader.

Halleck, often rumored a Thomas E. Dewey ally, paired with Taft against Senator James E. Murray (Montana) and Representative Ray J. Madden (Indiana), both Administration Democrats, in the panel discussions.

In the bar association debate, Taft cited last Tuesday's special election in Pennsylvania's Eighth Congressional District as evidence of his contention that the labor law cannot be made a "successful" issue.

Backing up Taft, Halleck also termed the law "fair and moderate." He said it had already belied "villifying" charges of labor leaders that it would enslave labor,

Pressure to Make Her Resign Alleged by Clayton Secretary

Miss Helen Yuhas, secretary [or former secretary] to Undersecretary of State Clayton, yesterday told an Associated Press reporter she has refused to resign in the face of "outside pressure."

State Department officials, however, answered queries on the subject by stating unequivocally that she already had resigned on September 5.

Miss Yuhas, admittedly of Russian descent, said she had been asked to resign more than a month ago but when she inquired why was told it was because of "outside pressure." Her own idea, she said, is that being of Russian decent "is apparently pretty bad."

The Washington Post reporters were unable to reach her at her home at the Meridian Hill Apartments, to verify published accounts that she admitted resigning, but withheld the news so her father, in Paramus, N. J., wouldn't know she was out of work.

Victim's Father, Motorman Held Guilty in Boy's Death

An auto driver and a streetcar operator were found guilty of negligent homicide in a traffic death of last May by a jury in District Court yesterday.

One of those convicted, Robert S. Luebin, sr., 62, of 5117 Decatur st., Edmonston, Md., was the father o fthe victim. The streetcar operator who was found guilty was Josiah Harrison, 45, of Rosslyn, Va.

It was the first time that two informations on a negligent homicide traffic charge had been consolidated and two drivers, both alleged to be equally at fault, tried together.

Assistant United States Attorney John B. Diamond III asked for the dual trial so that a court ruling on the legality of such a proceeding could be obtained.

Attorneys for both defendants filed objections to the procedure and Judge Nathan R. Margold set October 29 fora hearing to determine if the men will be granted new trials.

Meanwhile, both defendants will remain free in $1000 bond each,

Barrett Calls for Revamping Of Police Crime Reporting

The FBI reported it found 2641, an increase of 71 per cent.

To Change Year's Figures

Robbery complaints for the six months numbered 258 by police calculations. The FBI found 447, an increase of 73 per cent.

In grand larcenies, police statistics showed only 661 complaints. The FBI found 823, an increase of 25 per cent.

Barrett informed the Commissioners he would change the past year's compilation of crime figures in Washington to conform with his own and the FBI findings. As a result, the incidence of crime in the District is expected to show a tremendous increase over the last fiscal year.

The FBI compiles Nation-wide crime statistics and is about to publish its semiannual report. Where the statistics furnished by the various police departments are considered inaccurate, the FBI could, if it chose, refuse to include them in its report.

Present System "Obsolete"

"I am of the opinion that our present system of reporting crimes is obsolete," reported Barrett. "I feel that there should be an entire revision of our crime reporting technique, and that our entire communications system should be modernized."

In his letter of transmittal to District Commissioner John Russell Young, Barrett stated:

"The investigation by my men disclosed that there is ample authority in the regulations for withholding reports of crime from the teletype; and, in addition, the interpretation of these regulations over a long period of time by supervising officers of the Police Department amply justifies the action taken in these cases."

Cites Police Regulations

[Crime statistics, reporters found, were gathered exclusively from the police teletype. Crime complaints withheld from the teletype never reached police statistics.]

In proof of his statement, he told Commissioner Young that Section 485 of Chapter 26 of the Police Regulations "requires each precinct to maintain a general complaint book in which every complaint preferred upon the personal knowledge of the complaint shall be entered."

The Washington Post found in its investigation that more than 600 robbery complaints had never been entered in precinct records, but were kept in secret files of the Detective Bureau.

Barrett's report showed that of the 684 robbery complaints which his investigators reported had not been entered in crime statistics, only 217 were found recorded in precincts. The remainder were in the Detective Bureau.

Also in justification of the "holding" practice, Barrett declared in his letter:

"Chapter 16, Section 6 of the Police Regulations requires that reports of murders, robberies and other high crimes should be immediately transmitted to the commanding officer and telephoned to the Central Bureau." (The statistical branch is part of the Central Bureau.)

In explanation, Barrett declared: "These regulations were enacted prior to the installation of the teletype system in 1930."

"From time to time over a period of 25 years there have been orders issued by the succeeding superintendents of police which amended the basic regulations heretofore mentioned.

"In addition there has been a custom in the Police Department, as far back as I can remember, of vesting discretion in the investigating officer to determine whether a crime which has been reported did, in fact, occur."

Held Complaints All Legitimate

Barrett's report made it clear that the "held" complaints found were not in that "phony" category; that all were legitimate complaints.

He listed five orders issued by various Police Superintendents expanding on the police regulations. One, issued in 1922 by Major Daniel Sullivan, declared in part:

"Where the commission of a crime comes to the attention of the police and request is made that no report be entered, that fact, together with all information concerning same, should also be reported to the Detective Bureau."

There was nothing in Sullivan's order stating that those cases should be kept out of statistics, which is the basis on which the efficiency of a police department is tested.

In 1930, another order was issued discontinuing the reporting to the police Central Bureau of all larcenies under $10 and simple assaults where no weapon was used. In 1946, Maj. Harvey G. Callahan ordered that reports be discontinued on larcenies under $25, the legal limit between petty and grand larceny at that time.

Admits System "at Variance"

However, Barrett admitted, "the method of mrime reporting in the Metropolitan in the Police Department was at variance with the suggested procedures, recomend-ed by the Federal Bureau of Invertigation."

In 1938 and again in 1941 police superintendents ordered that complaints of doubtful authenticity be held until investigation showed their authenticity.

Uniform crime regulations as issued by the FBI require that all complaints be placed into statistics. Those learned later to be unfounded are to be deducted from the totals.

In the search for police regulations to determine the origin of "holding" complaints, Barrett declared "it developed there had never been a conformation of Police Department orders."

To eliminate confiflicting orders, therefore, he appointed a review board consisting of Assistant Superintendent Walter H. Thomas, Inspector Ira E. Keck and Captains Walter E. Strom, Beverly G. Beach and George R. Wallrodt. They will go back to orders issued in 1923 "reviewing, rescinding, amending and otherwise bringing all departmental orders up to date to confrom to present practices and policies," he said.

Barrett's Report Recalls Post Series

Last June 29, when The Washington Post exposed the "holding" of crime complaints, Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett declared:

"Until such time as Captain (Robert S.) Bryant and Lieutenant (Robert V.) Murray present their full report to me, I cannot state with accuracy how many cases have been 'held.'

"However, it is my opinion that the figure of 600 (robbery) cases is inaccurate. I feel that investigation will show that such figure was arrived at by erroneous calculation and widespread duplication."

He repeated this in yesterday's report and added:

"The investigation of the cases held by the Robbery Squad and the precincts disclosed that the assertion that 600 cases were marked 'hold' and not included in the statistical records is correct. In fact, our investigation shows the number to be in excess of 600 . . ."

sary equipment. In emergency cases, it was suggested the dispatcher could monitor the complaint clerks calls to avoid a time lag in dispatching emergency assistance.

Barrett suggested the complaint clerk enter all calls on a printed "complaint form." The latter form would be assigned a number and would contain spaces for recording additional information such as: What car or precinct received complaint; disposition.

He suggested the complaint form be used as an initial record of all complaints received regardless of the nature of them.

Later, the recommendations added, the complaint form could take the place of a radio log. (Preparation of radio logs now takes considerable time of radio dispatchers scout car patrolman, station clerks and police headquarters personnel.)

After a radio car has been dispatched, a report of the complaint would then be telephoned to the precinct station concerned. The complaint number would accompany the report, and the complaint clerk, in turn, would receive from the station clerk a "precinct number." The latter would designate which case the complaint would be on the precinct's records.

Central office complaints would ultimately be filed in numerical order at Police Headquarters, Barrett said.

Adoption of Major Barrett's proposals will greatly alter police procedure, as follows:

When a person reports a crime at a precinct station house, the station clerk will get a "complaint number" from the complaint clerk, furnish the latter with a station number, and then enter the report on the precinct's complaint book.

Whenever, a complaint number is assigned to a case, an "offense report" will be prepared by the investigating officer. Five copies will be made of the report.

Offense reports will be distributed as follows: One for the precinct files, one for the investigating officer, two for the detective bureau (unless the case is closed immediately by the precinct, or the complaint is of a minor nature and is handled by the precinct). The original will go to the central records office to become a part of the permanent crime statistics file.

If a complaint involves a traffic accident, accident reports will be made out as under existing practises.

When the headquarters record room receives an offense report from a patrolman or detective, the case will be assigned a "case" number in order of receipt. These case numbers will be used for filing and for progress reports and follow-up procedures.

Complaint forms will be forwarded immediately from the complaint room where they originate to the records office.

Complaint memoranda will be used as a "tickler to follow up and obtain a report from the precinct or bureau assigned. When the offense report is in and the case number assigned, the case number may be indicated on the complaint memorandum, which can be returned to the central complaint room and filed in numerical order."

This will serve as a control record of the receipt of complaints, he said.

Barrett's suggested record reform will centralize all records and eliminate much current duplication of record keeping and filing, he said.

He pointed out to the commissioners that case assignment records are kept at present in a Detective Bureau record room. An index of persons arrested is kept in a criminal records bureau and the statistical bureau keeps records of accident reports, persons injured and property damaged. Additional traffic records are kept in the Traffic Bureau and the Accident Investigation unit.

Barrett said duplicate records of crimes and lost property, etc., are kept in various specialized squads and bureaus. He named the homicide, sex, auto theft squads and the pawn inspector's office. Other records, he said, are kept only on precinct station books.

Barrett also suggested inauguration of a daily bulletin to all precinct commanders and bureaus by teletype. These bulletins, he said, will contain matter of value in solving crimes. This would include descriptions of stolen cars, missing people, persons wanted in crimes and descriptions of lost or stolen property.

Text of Key Sections in Supt. Barrett's Findings on D. C. Crime Report Reform

The text of key sections of Superintendent Barrett's report follows:

There follows a summary of the cases held by the precincts and by the various squads in the Detective Buria during the period from July 1, 1946, to May 31, 1947 . . .

Robbery Squad

1. Robbery cases held on precinct books, of these there were a total of 217 during the period. These cases were held at the discretion of the investigating officers in the Robbery Squad, by precinct detectives attached to the precincts, or by other officers. Of 217 such cases held, 128 remain uncleared at this time.

2. The second classification is "M" or "Miscellaneous" assignments, and consists of 116 cases during the period reported to the Robbery Squad and precincts, and which were not originally sent in over the teletype system. Of 116 such reports, 51 remain uncleared at this time.

3. The third classification is of robbery cases taken from midnight cruiser reports, and consists of cases which originate between the hours of 12 o'clock, midnight, and 8 a. m. There were 280 such cases reported during the period, of which 56 remain uncleared at this time.

4. The fourth classification is of cases taken from our card index of miscellaneous reports, such as cases where the victim comes directly to the Robbery Squad from the District Attorney's Office, or is directed here by precinct or other officers. There were 71 such cases, of which 33 remain uncleared at this time.

A break-down of the first group of cases held on the precinct books will show that 22 of those cases eventually were sent to the statistical bureau; 32 were made "M" or miscellaneous assignments; 69 were also on the midnight cruiser reports; and 34 were in our card index file of miscellaneous cases.

Of the second group of 116 "M" or miscellaneous cases, 32 were sent eventually through the teletype to the statistical bureau.

The total cases "held" both in the precincts and in the Robbery Squad involving reported robberies is 684, of which 318 remain uncleared as of July 31, 1947, but which still are under active investigation.

I hall robbery cases where any kind of description of the culprit is available, it is immediately sent over the police radio system, even thought a case report is not sent in over the teletype system, and each case held at a precinct is read to all personnel at each roll call in the precinct, in order that all officers in the precinct are fully aware of the crime. . . .

In addition to the case reports mentioned in this report, the Robbery Squad also investigated 664 cases that were sent in on the teletype. Of this number, 512 cases were cleared.

Sex Squad

An examination of all cases handled by the Sex Squad for the eleven-month period ended May 31, 1947, disclosed that there were no sex cases in the precincts marked "hold." In the Sex Squad itself there were 29 cases which were ordered "held," and which were not sent in to the statistical bureau.

All of these cases were closed as of August 1, 1947, or were pending in court.

General Assignment Squad

Examination of the records of the General Assignment Squad for the 11-month period from July 1, 1946, to May 31, 1947, discloses that 52 cases were ordered "hold" on the volume books in the various precincts for the period, and were not sent in to the statistical bureau.

* * * *

There are on file in the Detective Bureau many records of such cases and series of cases which were not sent over the teletype system because it was felt that it would lessen our chance of apprehending the criminals, and in other cases would save the victims and their families extreme embarrassment.

It is to be specifically understood that in all the cases which were withheld from the teletype thorough investigations were made and confidential reports filed. No cases were dropped as being unimportant or unworthy of investigation.

In view of the foregoing, I can find nothing but praise for the splendid record of the Detective Bureau, and particularly the Robbery Squad. Many of the cases they handled involved prominent firms and business places, and many other cases concerned citizens from every walk of life. In every one of these cases I personally feel that the Robbery Squad rendered prompt and efficient service. It is true that some cases were not cleared, and it is true also that some cases were withheld for the reasons above stated; but, in every case, every possible effort was made to bring

It is important to distinguish about a successful conclusion. between the propriety of withholding a report from the press and the public generally; and withholding a report which properly should be included in the police statistics so that the public may have a correct picture of the overall crime situation in this community.

I wish to state as emphatically as I can that the practice of withholding a report from the press and the public generally is good police technique. The best proof of it is in the results attained in those types of cases in which the investigators felt that no publicity is desirable.

Recommendations

From a review of the foregoing, I am of the opinion that our present system of reporting crimes is obsolete. I feel that there should be an entire revision of our crime reporting technique, and that our entire communications system should be modernized.

With the development of police radio and the later development of two-way radio, there was given to police authorities an instrument for speedy response to a reported crime; and enabled the police to respond to a complaint within a fraction of the time that was formerly necessary. I feel that our system of public communication is geared to outmoded practices, and that we should properly gear it to the facilities which we now have available . . .

I intend to expedite this work in every possible way with the avowed purpose of making our system of handling crime complaints and reports the equal of any now in use anywhere.

Two D. C. Polio Cases Reported; Area Total Is 25

This year's eighth and ninth District polio cases were reported in local hospitals yesterday, bringing the Greater Washington area total to 25 cases.

A 26-year-old woman of the 2000 block of Ridge pl. se., was reported suffering from polio at Gallinger Hospital. Officials there said she had been under observation as a polio suspect since Sept. 5.

Officials at Children's Hospital said the illness of a 9-year-old boy, whose home is in the ???? unit block of Buchanan st. nw., was definitely diagnosed as polio yesterday. The boy is in "fair" condition, they said.

Dr. Alvin Sweeney, superintendent at Gallinger Hospital, said a 15-year-old girl of the 600 block of Orleans pl. ne., was under observation at the hospital for possible polio.

Original Bricks Of Key Mansion May Be Retained

Tentative arrangements were made yesterday for saving original materials from Francis Scott Key mnsion to use when the home is restored at a new site.

A. A. Alexander, president of the company which is building the K st. elevated highway, told a special meeting at District Building he personlly favors salvaging original brick and foundation stone when the mansion is demolished.

Alexander said, however, that he would have to consult with other top officials of the Alexander and Repss Co. before making a final decision "in the next few days." The company's contract with the District does not specify that the materials be saved, Highway Director H. C. Whitehurst told reporters yesterdy.

Punjab Evacuates 100,000 a Week

New Delhi, India, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Terrified Hindu refugees are being evacuated from the Moslem area of the West Punjab at the rate of 100,000 a week, the Indian government announced today, and massive shipments of anticholera vaccine are being flown there and to the Sind to stem a spreading plague.

All efforts are being made, meanwhile, to maintain law and order along lines of communications so that the flow of refugees will not be interrupted.

Riot conditions in New Delhi meanwhile quited and official casualties for yesterday were set at 96 hospitalized, 58 with bullet wounds.

In December, 1946, the SCC approved a 10 million dollr loan for the C. & P., but the company sid higher wage levels, increased costs of materials, and a greater been foreseen made the additional loan necessary.

Nations to Recast Aid Plan Needs

Surprise in U. N.

Troop Count Is Proposed By Britain

Lake Success, N. Y., Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Britain, in a dramatic move on the eve of the United Nations Assembly, proposed today a census of all the world's armies.

Delegate Sir Alexander Cadogan said the count would be a "short and small step" toward creating the world confidence that was necessary for the success of disarmament and other U. N. tasks.

Cardogan's surprise proposal, made before the U. N. Disarmament Commission, marked a backdown from previous British policy, and set a conciliatory tone for the start of Tuesday's General Assembly session, which may determine whether U. N. ever works.

It came amid these other developments:

1. Sources closes to the Soviet delegation reported that Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov will arrive in New York early next month for a special appearance before the Assembly. These sources said Molotov would present a proposal that would surprise the Assembly.

2. Secretary of State George C. Marshall transferred from Washington to New York tonight to take personal charge of the American delegation to U. N. He planned a major address to the Assembly Wednesday as the kickoff of America's bid for leadership at this year's crucial session.

3. The U. N. Security Council called a special meeting for Monday to consider the American request for reopening the Balkan problem.

The troop census caught other members of the disarmament commisison by surprise.

Cadogan said the first step should be a request that all U. N. members report on the amount of manpower in the armed forces, along with details of length of active service and reserve service.

Russia long has campaigned for a census of troops abroad and a count of all weapons—including atomic bombs. This plan would draw most of the information from the Western powers. They, in turn, have sought to smoke out Russia on her troop strength at home. But for the first time, Cadogan indicated that he would go along now with a census of "conventional" armaments—excluding "mass destruction" weapons such as the atomic bomb.

Insistence by U. S. On Precise Data Delays Report

By William J. Humphreys

Paris, Sept. 12 (NYHT).—American insistence on knowing the precise steps to be taken to increase production and establish sound money forced the 16-nation committee of European economic cooperation to redraft its inventory of Marshall Plan needs and assets today.

Sir Oliver Frank, British chairman, announced at a press conference that the delegations would postpone the signing of the committee report, scheduled for next Monday, for another week to meet the United States requiremnts.

Thse prerequisites were outlined to the cooperation organization's executive committee by Will Clayton, United States Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs.

Two American Demands

A State Department source explained that the two principal American demands were for definite assurances on ways and means by which the 16 participations nations intend to increase their own production and for steps to balance national budgets and create sound currencies.

Another American criticism is that the 21-billion-dollar estimate, representing American credits needed to provide the nations with essential imports for the four-year recovery project, 1948-1951, is too hight. But Herve Alphand, chief French committee delegate, said this afternoon the figure was still the most accurate estimate of expert economists on the amount of United States assistance required.

A by-product of the economic cooperation conference emerged during the day in a French Foreign Ministry announcement that a study group, to investigate the advisability of an European customs union, would be convoked as soon as possible.

Others States Invited

States not members of the committee would be invited to participate, it was said, and this general invitation was interpreted as meaning Eastern European countries in the Soviet sphere were eligible.

The USSR declined to attend the Marshall Plan discussions here. Czechoslovakia and the Soviet satellite countries also refused to participate. In view of this performance, observers were not hopeful that the customs union talks would be much broader than they now are envisaged. Thirteen of the 16 committee states have agreed to investigate the advisability of establishing uniform tariffs, a system the United States is known to favor for knitting both solidarity and prosperity in Europe.

Norway and Sweden, which had previously indicated their lack of enthusiasm for the customs union idea, and Switzerland, were the three committee states that declined to join the study group at this time.

U. S. Intervention In Egypt Dispute Seen

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—The possibility of United States efforts toward solving the stalemated Anglo-Egyptian dispute was reported authoritatively tonight as Secretary of State George C. Marshall prepared to take over personal direction of American strategy in the dispute-laden General Assembly.

An authoritative source said there was a "good chance" the United States delegation will try to "lend its good efforts" in settling Egypt's demands for withdrawal of British forces from Suez Canal posts and termination of Britain's mandate over the Sudan.

Allies Split With Reds on Austrian Pact

Vienna, Sept. 12 (AP).—The United States, Britain and France lined up solidly against Russia in the Allied commission on the Austrian peace treaty today, when delegates began discussing the application of an Austrian law concerning German assets in Austria.

David Ginsberg, acting American representative, called the split the "clearest and most definite that has yet arisen."

The disagreement developed when the Russian delegate, K. V. Novikov, refused to elaborate on his statement regarding profits of German firms to be transferred as reparations under the Potsdam agreement.

The Russian proposed that "Austrian law shall not hinder the removal of profits or other incomes in the form of goods or foreign exchange." Ginsberg termed this a Russian demand for a "blank check on the Austrian economy."

1200 Austrian Prisoners Returned Home by Reds

Wiener Neustadt, Austria, Sept. 12 (AP).—Twelve hundred Austrian prisoners of war arrived here from Russia today. The Soviet government has promised to return all Austrian prisoners before the end of the year.

Chancellor Leopold Figl found his 26-year-old nephew, Dr. Alfred Figl, among the repatriates.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

BIG AS A B-29—FAST AS A FIGHTER—The Baeing Aircraft Co. rolled out the XB-47 yesterday at Seattle. It's the Army's new jet bomber, reportedly faster than the present jet fighter planes. Six jet engines (arrows), one on each wing tip and two inboard on each wing, plus two rocket boosters in the tail give it power. Although the plane is as large as a B-29, the Army classifies it as a "medium" bomber. Note the swept-back wings, part of the plane's radical design world peace, for which we have worked and fought so hard."

Europe Now Near Destitution, Dollars Low, Harriman Says

Harriman denied that exports to Europe were the main cause of present high food prices here.

Lays Prices to Prosperity

He recalled that most of the food being sent abroad now is either surplus, like wheat and flour, or a very small part of total American production, like meat, dairy products, fruits and vegetables.

"The present high prices," he said, "are due primarily to the fact that this Nation is now enjoying an all-time record of prosperity. People have more to spend for food, and they are bidding against each other for the food that is brought to market. . . .

"If you had seen the great needs for food which exist in many places in Europe, as I have, I feel sure you would not only support our export program but would urge the Government to do all it can to help hungry people abroad."

One of Secretary Marshall's visitors before he left for New York was French Ambassador Henri Bonnet, who discussed the urgent need of dollars to pay for wheat and coal this winter.

The Ambassador, who returned recently from Paris, told reporters that France may have to cut down on her purchases of wheat, fats and coal in the United States before the end of this year because of the lack of dollars. The French Government has already cut off all non-essential imports from the United States for the same reason.

Yesterday's talk, according to French sources, also touched upon French grievances over the new level-of-industry plan in Germany and the new proposals for putting the management of Ruhr coal mines into German hands.

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault will undoubtedly discuss the French dollar situation with the Secretary in New York next week. He is flying from Paris in a special plane for the United Nations Assembly, and expects to arrive Tuesday.

He will find, however, that the Secretary needs no reminder of the urgency of the French position. Since returning from Rio de Janeiro, the Secretary has had to read and hear incessant appeals to do something quickly to help Europe.

His statement of Wednesday, urging stopgap help to prevent "intolerable hunger and cold," was his first official response.

It is taken for granted here that the Secretary will not let the assembly debates distract his attention from the economic emergency in Europe, which officials regard as the supreme issue facing the United States.

Present plans are for Secretary Marshall to stay in New York for the first two or three weeks of the Assembly and then come back to Washington. The pressure of events, however, may bring him back sooner.

He probably will have to come back to Washington soon after President Truman arrives from Brazil, about the end of next week, to discuss the need of a special session of Congress.

First Greek Navy Group Arrives for Gunboat Training

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 12 (AP).—The first contingent of some 300 officers and men of the Greek Navy sent to the United States to take over six gunboats arrived at Norfolk today.

The United States Navy tanker Merrimac disembarked 17 officers and 169 enlisted men at the Norfolk naval station, where they were billeted in barracks for their month of training in the operation of the craft the United States has sold to the Greek government.

The Navy tanker Auccilla was scheduled to arrive later today with 91 Greek navy personnel. Another group of 100 will arrive later this month.

Shipboard training will begin on arrival of the gunboats, which are now at Charleston, S. C., and New Orleans. Meanwhile, the Greeks will be instructed at various training schools ashore.

reconstruction and development needs in Latin America, the Middle East and other non-European areas are being actively considered by the Bank's staff.

The report added that the Bank "cannot assist a country which neither has stability or credit nor a willingness to take action to achieve them."

Health Officer Shoos Hens From Dwelling

Frederick, Md., Sept. 12.—It's all right for a Braddock street family to raise chickens, but not in the living room, Dr. Donald H. Roop, county health officer, declared today in ordering the fowls put outside.

Investigation resulted when neighbors complained that scores of chicks and half-grown hens were occupying the dwelling.

Britain Must Boost Exports

scription, will be the most drastic peacetime labor program ever carried out in this country. Cripps emphasized, however, that the government hopes to keep it as voluntary as possible.

Must Be Independent of U. S.

Cripps stressed the fact that Britain absolutely must become economically independent of the United States so she may pursue her own political path in the explosive world of today.

"We are determined to maintain our economic independence," he told 2000 representatives of British industry and labor. "We do not wish nor intend to be tied by economic string to the political policies of other countries, no matter how friendly.

"Though we might be able to get further temporary assistance from the United States of America under the Marshall Plan, or in some other way, we cannot count on this and we must therefore proceed upon the basis that we must ourselves balance our own accounts. And to that end we must adjust our standards of living and conditions of work wherever it is necessary."

To obtain solvency and independence, Cripps said, Britain may even withdraw into a tight empire custom union which would give her the same economic advantage obtained by the free trading systems among the 16 Soviet republics and the 48 States of the U. S.

Union Rules May Be Changed

He warned that the program called for cheaper costs and a big expansion of industries. More goods would be produced for the export trade, Cripps said, even at the cost of wiping out labor union "restrictive practices" if necessary.

Cripps set goals for the export trade which he confirmed meant that one fourth of everything produced must go abroad.

For automobiles it was 316 per cent of 1938, for rayon and silk, 245 per cent of 1938. The average of exports was set at 164 per cent of 1938.

Later, at a press conference, he said the government would not permit the sale of export goods in the home market even if there was no market for them abroad.

"We simply cannot stop," he said. "If they can't be sold abroad, it is just too bad."

Through this program, Cripps said, Britain hopes to make sterling "the most widely used international currency" by luring other countries to turn to Britain and away from the United States for the goods they need.

High Quality Goods Essential

He warned both labor and industry that the quality of British goods must be maintained at the same high standard.

He said Britain's home consumption of steel must be reduced by one million tons a year and this diverted for export, making four million tons available for export next year.

"It may well prove necessary, in order to accomplish our export task, to cut down capital investments of all classes in this country by 200 million pounds a year," he warned. "In that event, we should not hesitate to take the necessary steps."

2 Jailed in Robbery

Frederick, Md., Sept. 12.—Two Frederick youths, Thomas M. Clem and Calvin S. Burrier, jr., have been sentenced to not more than one year each in the Maryland Reformatory for Males for the robbery of a safe of the Nu-Maid Co. here last January. The pair pleaded guilty to the robbery, which netted a little more than $200.

McGranery Choice As Democratic Chairman Denied

A source close to President Truman yesterday denied that United States District Judge James P. McGranery of Philadelphia had been chosen as the next chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Mr. Truman is expected to indicate his choice of a new chairman when he returns from Rio de Janeiro. Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan is prepared to give up the chairmanship because of the state of his health.

No, we don't mean the character, who, anchored to the best seat in the vehicle, apparently never gets off. He does get off, eventually—at the end of the line.
All day every day, all night every night, the riders we mean, travel back and forth aboard Washington street cars and busses. They don't get off—at either end of the line. They ride without sitting in a seat or hanging on to a strap. These riders are the Transitads (car cards) that appear in Washington transit vehicles.
Because Transitad-vertisers want their messages before Washington's largest audience, Transitads never get off the vehicles. Individual Transitads (car cards) "get off" from time to time. Advertisers change, too. New products, new services offered by new firms appear. But, as a group, Transitads never get off the street car or bus.
Today or tomorrow, whenever you next board a street car or bus, give the Transitads a glance. These marathon riders' main job is to keep you informed of the products and services available in Washington. Don't get off the transit vehicle without noticing the riders that never get off—Transitads.

sure for nationalization of such big industries as steel, coal and the railroads, it would be downright stupid for your business to take that position. Bear this in mind—such nationalization has been suggested even on the floor of the United States Senate."

Fairless Bristles, Too

Harris & Ewing

ANOTHER HILL 'FEUD'
Congressman Rich (left) tells House committee that he will demand an investigation if the RFC grants Henry Kaiser's request for a reduction in his debt to the Government on his Fontana, Calif., steel plant. Kaiser listens back with a statement of his own.

"It is simply amazing to me that anyone should suggest by inference or otherwise that United States Steel has a 'public-be-damned' attitude. Our attitude is, and always will continue to be, just the reverse."

Fairless and Eugene G. Grace, chairman of Bethlehem Steel Corp., agreed the steel shortage will be over within two years provided: (1) The steel scrap situation eases; (2) coal and coke are available; (3) sufficient ore is available, and (4) manpower is available to continue uninterrupted production, without strikes, of coal, ore and steel.

Hiland G. Batcheller, president of the Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corporation, disclosed that a group of steel executives is making a study of the scrap situation for Secretary of Commerce William Averell Harriman.

Prewar Scrap Exports

"I strongly suspect our recommendations on scrap will end up in Congress anyway," Batcheller said. "Government aid is strongly indicated."

For the four year before the war and during the war 140 million tons of scrap—equivalent to a 10 year supply for the industry—was exported, Batcheller said.

Of these 20 million tons went to Japan in the four prewar years and the remaining 120 million tons went to the allies. This has not been recovered.

Former Admiral Ben Moreell, president of Jones & Laughlin Corp., said he believed the Army and Navy were to release large quantities of scrap.

Moreell read an over-all statement for 11 steel executives.

Billion in Expansion

Moreell said the steel companies are making "record - breaking peacetime expenditures totaling more than one billion dollars" to expand. Listed for completion in 1947 and 1948, he stated, are the addition of 2,500,000 tons of new ingot-making capacity.

Grace complained that so little has been done to put the great steel-producing industries in Germany's Ruhr back into production.

"This same personnel here today was asked even before the war ended," Grace stated, "to give an opinion on rehabilitation of the German steel industry.

"He said go right ahead and produce the steel. The world needs that source of steel. And yet, here it is four years later and even in the face of our domestic difficulties, they are slow getting started."

Fear of German War Machine

Grace said that opposition to getting the Ruhr back into production was based on fear that it would aid the German war machine again.

The way to handle that problem, he declared, was to supervise the production and distribution, not keep the steel from being produced at all.

"Bethlehem," said Grace, "has not sold a single pound of steel in the so-called black market or grey market. Every ton of our steel, sold both here or in foreign markets, has been sold at the regular scale of prices.

"Where in a few instances we have discovered a buyer reselling at advanced prices, we have discontinued service to him."

Girdler Fears Overexpansion

Tom Girdler, hard-biten boss of Republic Steel Corp., warned against overexpansion of steel facilities.

Girdler said that suggested expansion of the production by 10 million tons would divert 1,500,000 tons of finished steel from present production and would consume dwindling ore reserves more rapidly than new mines could be opened.

There's no labor reserve now, Girdler asserted, and he asked if steel capacity were increased should the Nation "throw open the gates to huge quotas of European immigrants?"

He said, "I believe that the people of our country will be better off five years from now for having endured for a little while longer the necessary, but not very serious, privations of getting along with a few less cars, a few less refrigerators and a few less stoves. Such a course is our best defense against breadlines, relief and communism."

Kaiser Lauds Martin's Views

Henry J. Kaiser, West Coast industrialist and steelmaker, who was present, but not heard, during part of yesterday's hearing, called Martin's opening document "remarkable . . . historic . . . right down my alley."

Kaiser bustled out of the steel hearing to lay down a challenge to the House Executive Expenditure Committee to investigate now the proposal he made to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to reduce its price to him of the Fontana Steel plant.

Kaiser's challenge was precipitated by a suggestion made by Representative Robert F. Rich (R., Pa.), a member, that if RFC consented it should be investigated.

Rich Calls Kaiser "Unethical"

When Kaiser appeared unexpectedly before the committee, Rich demanded "orderly procedure" and called Kaiser "unethical" for interrupting the group.

Kaiser, in turn, said Rich had done him a great injustice in making charges before the facts were known and asked about the Congressman's ethics.

He charged that Rich's threat of investigation might stop RFC from considering Kaiser's request to scale down the Fontana cost by $35,000,000.

In the end, the committee heard Kaiser in secret session yesterday afternoon. Rich said the meeting was entirely amiable.

convention in Boston, beginning October 13.

The council will adjourn tomorrow after a scheduled hearing of the jurisdictional dispute among Hollywood AFL unions.

Knight Resigns

Green announced the resignation from the council of Felix H. Knight, Kansas City, retired president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Carmen. He will be succeeded by President Herman Winter of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers International Union. Winter resides in Chicago and heads a union of 110,000 members.

Green said he would announce the AFL's recommendation to fill the vacancy as Assistant Secretary of Labor in the next couple of days.

Philip Hannah announced his resignation in Cincinnati yesterday, effective when a successor is chosen. There are two assistant secretary posts, shared by the AFL and CIO. Hannah is secretary of the Ohio State Federation of Labor.

Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach was reoprted to be awaiting Green's recommendation before offering a nominee to President Truman.

Steel Industry Executives at Senate Hearing Show Preference for Flashy Type Neckwear

America's most powerful steel barons wear exactly the kind of ties most women like to buy—gay, colorful and definitely patterned.

A baker's dozen of the top steel executives in the United States yesterday put on a display of sartorial elegance for a Senate committee that would make any haberdasher blink.

Out of the whole 13 only one wore what used to be termed the conservative businessman's tie—small patterned and neat but not gaudy.

Two Wear Bow Ties

For the rest, two wore bow ties that might even be selected by President Truman, no mean judge of neckwear himself.

One, Hiland G. Batcheller, president of the Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corp., wore a stunning dark blue and yellow broad striped tie, which set off a white shirt and a blue suit of an off-Navy shade.

The other nine all favored the new, bold modern designs.

Take Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the Unied States Steel Co., for example. With a sea-green shirt, he wore a dashing patterned tie of green, yellow and brown. The color harmony with a brown suit was perfect.

Next to him was white-haired Eugene Grace, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corp. Against his white shirt was a strikingly patterned tie of gray and powder blue.

Favors Tan and White

Rivaling both in pattern and color harmony was Frank Purnell, president of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. Tan suit, white shirt and a gaily patterned tie of two shades of rich tans and white.

Heavyset Tom Girdler, tough chairman of Republic Steel Corp., wore a conservative gray suit and a white shirt, but his blue, gray and black patterned tie was a standout.

The bow ties were favored by Newell H. Orr, vice president of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Corp., and Henry A. Roemer, chairman and president, Sharon Steel Corp.

Taken altogether it was a pretty sight to see those ties blossoming around the table where the steel executives talked steel shortages.

It was the kind of picture to put ideas in the head of the little woman when next she sallies forth to buy that Christms necktie.

Woe betide the first timid salesman who tries to say that the best and the gayest and brightest of neckwear is "for the younger man, Ma'am . . . a little on the flashy side. Now this (a drab old thing) si the sort of tie a substantial man likes."

Housing Cost Cut Is Pledged By McCarthy After Probe

By The Associated Press

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) said yesterday the congressional investigation into the Nation-wide housing shortage already has disclosed that "more than 700,000 home buyers and builders are priced out of the market."

"We are going to find some way to bring down prices for them," McCarthy, vice chairman of the Senate-House Committee probing housing, told a reporter.

The Senator said he is confident that some substantial savings can be made in present housing costs "because you can put your finger on a number of things."

"We are about 50 years behind present-day methods in building some homes," the Senator said. "We are using many methods of a handcraft era in a machine age."

The housing shortage led to increased talk of extending rent controls beyond next February 29. Along with McCarthy, Senators Flanders (R., Vt.), Sparkman (D., Ala.) and Myers (D., Pa.) agreed that Congress is likely to extend them.

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—Dillon S. Meyer, commissioner of the Federal Public Housing Administration, today accused the National Association of Real Estate Boards, the National Association of Home Builders and other organizations of waging a "campaign" against public housing.

Iran Cautioned On Oil Deals

London, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Britain has advised Iran to keep open the door for discussion with Russia on its northern oil resources if the Iranian Parliament rejects present Soviet demands, a Foreign Office spokesman admitted today.

Sir John Le Rougetel, the British Ambassador in Tehran, told Premier Ahmed Ghavam Es-Sultaneh, the spokesman said, that Britain felt Russia should be given "facilities" for oil development in northern Iran.

Moscow radio broadcast the text of exchanges between Russia and Iran, citing the terms of an oil "agreement" which is subject to Iranian parliamentary approval.

Moscow said it was broadcasting the texts "in view of violation of the above-mentioned Soviet-Iranian agreement" and charged that "certain Iranian and foreign newspapers" were trying to distort its terms.

Parents Settle Student Strike On Race Issue

Gary, Ind., Sept. 12 (AP).—A mass walkout of students at Emerson grade and high school because of race prejudice appeared at an end today as 80 per cent of the 1750 pupils returned to classes. about 300 parents voted at a mass meeting last night to send their children back to school.

Principal E. A. Spaulding predicted conditions would be "practically normal" by Monday.

The mass truancy started on the opening day of school—September 2—after the city school board had ruled that Negro students could attend any school. Thirty-eight Negro students transferred from Gary's all-Negro school to Emerson.

An attorney for the dissenting parents informed them at last night's meeting that any legal action they might want to take would be contingent on their having the pupils back in school.

DPs in U. S. Zone of Germany Are Confident of Success Here present DPs chose to forsake the camps and try to make their own way without help or support in the German economy, even in its present woeful status.

But all of them, in and out of the camps, preserve their status as DPs because in it lies their only hope that ultimately they can move from this hostile land.

All of the officials who deal with them, ranging from soft-hearted representatives of the International Refugee Organization to hardboiled West Point Army officers (who incidentally don't stay hardboiled once they are face to face with the misery and suffering of their wards), agree there is no hope for DPs in Germany or eastern Europe.

Migration the Only Solution

The only solution is migration to western Europe, Palestine (for some of the Jews) or the Western Hemisphere.

This is because those DPs who remain in western Germany are "hard-core" refugees who will not for good reasons go back to their homelands.

At Zielsheim, a Jewish DP camp near Frankfurt, the situation is typical. About 90 per cent of the camp population profess determination to go to Palestine. But actually it would appear that goal is secondary. The primary one is to get out of Germany. American and IRO officials believe that many would jump at a chance to come to the Western Hemisphere.

Reasons For Leaving Germany

They have every reason to want to leave Germany. Ten to 15,000 of them need only look at the tattooed numbers on their forearms to remember the hell that can exist this side of death.

The rest, who are not in concentration camps, have equally good reasons for hating Germans. A Polish Jew to whom this reporter talked related the all-too-common story. He survived the Warsaw ghetto and somehow made his way to the American zone.

"Of my family," he said, "parents, wife, children, brothers, sisters, cousins, uncles, aunts, I have lost 36. Only one brother of the whole group is still living."

This story is a testimonial, if nothing else, to German thoroughness.

In non-Jewish camps the inhabitants hate the Germans for their past enslavement and hate the Russians for what happened to non-Communists. A doctor from Riga put it this way: "We hate Russians worst because we know them best. They ran over our land three times (1919, 1940 and 1945). If they overran western Europe while we were still here, and even if you drove them back in three weeks, it would be too late. We would be the first to go. Russians never forget."

Two Priorities

In all the camps, Jewish and Gentile, two priorities are stressed. First is children, whose education and welfare take preeminence over everything else. Every camp concentrates on its schools for youngsters—the grown-ups' vicarious promise for the future.

The second important program is adult schools—carpentry, metalwork, shoemaking, sewing, tailoring, farming, etc.—so that every man can be a producer, a worker, a craftsman in the new world toward which all are straining.

First beginnings of an emigration program now are getting under way. France has promised to take some of the DPS and Australia's immigration already has begun. Belgium has taken 19,000 men, with their families to follow in 90 days. Despite reports to the contrary the program is considered to be working out well.

But all officials connected with the problem agree on one point: Successful resettlement of the DPs depends on America taking the lead. It must set the pace and absorb its share, a large share, a much larger share than our present immigration quotas now permit.

It is impossible to expect other nations to respond in a big enough way if the United States fails to show initiative and a realistic effort.

There is every reason why it should not fail. America grew great, it is argued, through the toil and brains of Europeans to whom it gave refuge and work opportunities in the nineteenth century. Europe's present DPs, just as previous generations of immigrants, can continue to contribute to the United States' greatest strength—its working population. DPs will be assets to whatever land gives them harbor and can offer them a chance to work.

(Tomorrow Alfred Friendly writes of the critical economic and political situation prevailing in Italy despite courageous steps by the Italian Government that have made some headway.)

destroy unions and undermine collective bargaining.

Murray and Madden bitterly replied that the act was punitive, discriminatory, and has already "turned back the clock."

But it was Taft's earlier free-for-all press conference, with no topics barred, that topped the day's news in the post-season quiet of this beach resort town.

"I would be very loath to return to price controls," Taft told newsmen. "It would mean a return of the black market that existed when OPA was in operation. I question whether it would be an effective means of dealing with the price problem."

Saying the price rise is partly attributable to the big domestic demand, influenced by "tremendous" domestic consumption, he recalled Herbert Hoover once proposed people "save food and eat less." Taft said he agreed. "People are buying it, and have money to buy," he said. "True; a lot of people can only get just enough, but many others can save food by eating less. They should eat less meat and eat less extravagantly."

Police Progress

Confronted by a detailed report from the FBI and by the findings of some of his own most efficient subordinates, Supt. Robert J. Barrett has responded in commendable fashion to The Washington Post's expose of the Police Department's concealment of crime. We had shown that the police had withheld more than 600 reports of robbery. At the time Major Barrett expressed the opinion that this finding was inaccurate. Now, however, he candidly admits in his report to the District Commissioners:

> The investigation of the cases held by the Robbery Squad and the precincts disclosed that the assertion that 600 cases were marked "hold" and not included in the statistical records is correct. In fact, our investigation shows the number to be in excess of 600 . . . The total cases "held" both in the precincts and in the Robbery Squad involving reported robberies is 684, of which 318 remain uncleared as of July 31, 1947, but which still are under active investigation.

The FBI's findings also indicate that the withholding of crime reports has been a general practice of the police. We reported only on the robbery cases withheld. The FBI has tabulated 58 rape cases as compared to 35 originally tabulated by the Statistical Bureau of the Police Department. Reports on other crimes are: aggravated assault, FBI, 1025; police, 382; burglary, FBI, 2641, police, 1546; petty larcency, FBI, 5598; police, 1550.

We cannot avoid the conclusion that the FBI has backed up our complaint against local crime reporting in addition to multiplying the evidence of laxity.

The FBI has made a number of recommendations. Chief among these is the suggestion that there be established a records and communications division within the department for the centralization of the record work of the police. At present, it finds, there is no administrative machinery in effect to insure the reporting of every complaint. Obviously no efficient or systematic reporting of crime can be expected from such a set-up. Centralization of this work ought to have been undertaken by the police as a matter of elementary administrative practice.

Prohibitory Index

The Attorney General, in accordance with an order from the President, is reported to be now in the process of drawing up an index expurgatorius of American voluntary associations. Mr. Clark will, in effect, proscribe these organizations, for he will designate them subversive and expose all who hold membership in them, affiliation with them or sympathetic association with them to the charge of disloyalty to the United States. The President's order instructing the Attorney General to prepare this index did not specify that the index should be published. Mr. Clark might, therefore, have kept it secret. His decision to make the list public does credit to his common sense and to his sense of fair play.

But while a published list is preferable to a secret list, it remains, in our judgment, a grave threat to American freedom. It places in the Attorney General's hands irresponsible authority. His designations are subject neither to review nor to appeal; and no objective standards have been fixed for their determination. He can destroy, by stigmatizing it as subversive, any organization which expresses opposition to a Government policy. Yet the right of individuals to join in voluntary associations for the purpose of influencing or changing governmental policy is a fundamental American right—a right indispensable to the preservation of human freedom. If groups may be arbitrarily branded subversive, so may individuals. And, indeed, a long step is taken toward just this sort of tyranny when membership in a group is officially made, as the President's order makes it, an admissible indication of indivdual disloyalty.

The kind of hysteria now so prevalent in Washington which, in the name of security, seems prepared to play fast and loose with all the traditional American safeguards against capricious or despotic governmental action has fortunately not altogether corrupted the American people as a whole. The loyalty fanatics might usefully peruse the Gallup Poll reported in this morning's Washington Post. It shows that the American people are not yet ready to throw aside due process; they still believe that a person accused even of disloyalty ought to be allowed to plead his case. An organization, which is, after all, merely a collection of persons, should perhaps be accorded the same privilege.

Food Crisis Calls For Rationing

The upsurge of food prices will, if not checked, have disastrous effects on the domestic economy and drastically reduce the amount of aid we shall be able to give the peoples of western Europe. This is not a prediction colored by predisposition to look on the dark side of human affairs. It is a common sense conclusion based on the knowledge that we have not produced sufficient foodstuffs to satisfy the demands of our own people and leave available adequate surpluses for the relief of less fortunate nations.

In an uncontrolled market the pressure of excess demands for foods in relation to salable supplies is bound to result in steadily rising food prices, so long as consumers have the means with which to satisfy their needs. And, pinched though many families now are by rising living costs, the American public by and large is still amply supplied with funds for sustaining a high level of buying, even at current exorbitant prices. The evidence is afforded by the latest Department of Commerce report showing that personal incomes soared to a new record level in July. Moreover, it should be kept in mind that food outlays take precedence as a rule over other expenditures. When prices reach a point at which economy becomes imperative, the tradesmen who supply less essential articles are the ones that first feel the pressure of rising living costs. Already these pressures are becoming apparent and causing apprehension among department store heads and other retail groups. Unless the rise in foods can be checked, therefore, we shall without doubt witness some unanticipated shifts of buying that will at no distant date have highly adverse effects on general business activity. In short, the dislocation of the price structure could easily lead to the depression that we constantly talk about but have done nothing to avert.

Added to that threat is the possibility, indeed the virtual certainty, that the buying of food for export purposes, if carried on in a free market, will push food prices still higher. In short, a contest between domestic consumers and buyers for export will raise the cost of relief programs without affording assurance that our limited supplies will be apportioned according to needs.

The free price system works in a fair manner when supplies of goods are sufficient to meet demands for those goods at reasonable prices. But it does not work well when millions of human beings are facing starvation because the productive mechanism that would enable them to earn enough to satisfy their essential needs has broken down.

If we are to render the assistance we have promised to the unfortunate peoples of foreign countries without upsetting our domestic economy unduly, we cannot rely upon the price-making mechanism of free markets to effect the kind of distribution that the situation requires. Some way must be found to apportion our limited food supplies among domestic and foreign takers before domestic buying, backed by abundant cash in consumer hands, has irrevocably diverted into domestic channels products that should be reserved for export. High meat prices, for instance, encourage use of wheat for feedstuffs to make up for corn shortages. Unless this trend is arrested, our wheat export goals, already being drastically revised downward by Government officials, will be unattainable.

The free price system makes profits the regulator of production and distribution. And expostulations are vain in circumstances like the present when the search for profits will lead infallibly to dissipation of food reserves. The attempt to conserve scarce supplies of food or other commodities by relying on voluntary cooperation of the public has been tried and found wanting. Even if the average consumer were willing to cooperate—and we believe that millions of Americans are—the complexities of the present-day system of production and distribution are too great to warrant reliance upon voluntary restraints to bring about the adjustments required by the present emergency. That is why a good many people, including some leading organs of public opinion that were largely instrumental in bringing about the downfall of OPA, are now suggesting a return to wartime systems of rationing scarce foods.

In our opinion some system of allocation supplemented by a return to rationing of basic foodstuffs, provides the only feasible solution of our difficulties. Unfortunately, legal authority to regulate the processing and distribution of grains has already expired, and would have to be restored by act of Congress. The President's Council of Economic Advisers cautiously suggested in its midyear report that such action might become desirable, and said that the Government should in any case seek the voluntary cooperation of the grain trade in carrying out conservation measures found to be necessary. Such action would no doubt assist Government efforts to fill export needs, though would not relieve, but indeed would probably add to the upward pressure on domestic food prices, unless restrictions were imposed on the housewife who buys the family groceries.

A return to rationing of domestic foodstuffs at retail levels offers the only feasible means of relieving this kind of price pressure, and we hope that Congress will consent to restitution of such controls. A system of food rationing would not require reimposition of ceiling prices on rationed commodities. That would be a herculean undertaking, with the OPA liquidated and its experts scattered. Moreover, a system of partial price controls, as we know, is extremely difficult to administer and productive of serious inequities. By simply limiting the amounts of scarce foodstuffs and substitutes for such scarce foods purchasable by consumers, demand could, however, be brought into balance with available supplies and prices could be held in check. Even this limited type of control would, of coufse, entail a deal of administrative work. But the Department of Agriculture has experts acquainted with our food problems who could constitute a working nucleus around which to build the required organization.

Such an undertaking would be bitterly fought by the so-called advocates of a free economy, but in our way of thinking public support of an economy of free enterprise would be strengthened, not impaired, by recognizing its limitations, and resorting to governmental controls when emergencies arise calling for extraordinary measures. Incidentally, a return to consumer rationing would be a most convincing demonstration to the rest of the world of our willingness to make sacrifices in order that others may not starve.

Foot-In-Mouth Bevin

Some South African statesman—one of the men to whom Mr. Bevin is appealing for a Commonwealth Customs Union—ought to tell Britain's Foreign Minister to pipe down about the "redistribution" of American gold. In a second speech, this time to American Legionnaires in London, he has given the impression that the United States has cornered the world's gold by some kind of nefarious operation. Actually when the United States agreed on January 31, 1934, to pay $35 an ounce to all comers, it did a philanthropic service in general to the British Commonwealth, and in particular to the Union of South Africa, where gold mining is the chief occupation. Here was one commodity at least that America was prepared to buy, and at a premium; and a relatively useless commodity in the modern world at that. If the generosity of Uncle Sam continues to be made to look like highway robbery, the antigold movement in America might get aid and comfort, with the possibility that the United States might decide no longer to "deprive" the world of its gold. The main sufferer from such a policy would be South Africa.

Mr. Bevin's return to his half-baked idea about gold—an idea that is enough to make Lord Keynes turn in his grave—is accompanied by an alternative proposition. This is that this country should "readopt" lend-lease. Some such means, in our view, is necessary in respect of food in saving western Europe this winter from what Secretary Marshall calls an "intolerable" situation. However, it ill becomes Mr. Bevin to propose it. In our opinion free food is implicit in the Marshall approach to reconstruction in Europe, for the effort to put Europe back on its feet requires food to support it, and loans for consumption purposes would be an intolerable burden. Yet free food is justified only if it is tied to a plan of self-help that goes to the roots of reconstruction. Mr. Bevin's inveterate habit of thinking aloud is constantly whittling away any stature he may have had as a statesman.

Pursuit Of Happiness

Under the new national mental health program, science is at last getting a chance in a small way to find out what it can do to help human beings to happiness—a welcome departure from its usual preoccupations. Two projects recently started look to the prevention of mental illness, and, obversely, guidance to harmonious and adjusted living, by research into the behavior of infants and the problems of the married. In selected child clinics and nursery centers, infants will be studied and watched for signs of behavior or personality traits that may cause them maladjustment or even mental or physical illness in later years. Another study, carried on by a widely known marriage council with the aid of 2000 volunteer patrons, will investigate the personality conflicts of married life, conflicts that are sending so many persons to the divorce court, to psychiatrists, even to mental hospitals. It will especially try to find out whether these problems can be helped by marriage counsel.

Though results from this research will not be available for a long time, yet at least a start is being made in preventive mental medicine. If the knowledge obtained can lead eventually to lessening the alarming and rapidly increasing number of mentally ill requiring treatment or hospitalization, a great financial saving to the Nation will be made. Also it is hoped that many people who may never be mental patients can be helped to more satisfactory emotional lives. The start of this research is in a sense a milestone in American social thinking. It marks the first national official effort toward a scientific approach to men's and women's personality weaknesses, which have so long been popularly regarded as "pure cussedness," to be treated by exhortation or rebuke. The alcoholic has been through the same range of attitudes on the part of society.

Rent Increase

Although the letter by Mr. James de Bannon, published September 9, attacking our organization discredits itself by its abusive and irresponsible charges, we request the opportunity to state our position clearly.

We are a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization of women, interested in raising and maintaining the standards of living of all Americans, and we are forbidden by our constitution to affiliate with any other group or organization. The question of rent control is of vital importance at this time in maintaining those standards. To divert the attention of the public from the merits of that question by raising the bogy of communism is to insult the intelligence of Americans.

The accusation that our letter protesting across-the-board rent increases was "verbatim from propaganda releases of a well-known Communist-front organization" is coy in the extreme. If it is well known, why not name it, so that readers can judge for themselves how valid the accusation is? We do not doubt, however, that many civic and public-interest groups, having access to the same data on rent control that we have, should arrive at the same conclusions, and that many statements in support of rent control will incorporate similar arguments. This does not in any way invalidate the arguments—rather, it reinforces them—nor should it expose any group supporting these arguments to hysterical Red-baiting, by those who have no better answer.

Moreover, we did not urge that rents be kept at 1941 levels. We specifically pointed out that the District Commissioner of Rent Control may, and does, grant increases where they are justified and that that discretion is adequate to relieve hardship cases for landlords where they exist. It is precisely because we wish to prevent wholesale evictions, and the bitterness that would follow, that we protested an unjustified 15 per cent across-the-board increase that would have created great hardships for many tenants. Apparently Mr. Cogswell agreed, since the landlords' proposal was rejected on the grounds advanced by our and other organizations.

DP Discrimination

There was an article in The Washington Post of September 7, "U. S. Pays to Kill Mexican Cows," which states, at the end, the Commodity Credit Corporation has contracted to buy one million pounds of canned meat and gravy from the Juarez Meat Products Co., Chihuahua. This is being resold to the International Refugee Association for feeding displaced persons in Europe. "American law does not permit its use in this country."

This should be looked into at once. We have refused a haven to these unfortunate people, yet we are going to sell them "tainted" meat, perhaps for a profit.

I cannot resist the desire to express my appreciation of The Washington Post Weatherbird, with congratulations to the artist, Groves, his creator, whose cartoons elsewhere in the paper also add interest and effectiveness to the stories they illustrate.

I find the Weatherbird helps me to accept the report of the weather man with a smile instead of a growl! It is the first thing I look for when the paper comes.

Italian Future

According to newspaper accounts the Italian treasury has a reserve of only 45 million dollars, which amount is expected to be completely exhausted by mid-October of this year.

It seems likely, therefore, that we shall have a special session of Congress, before long, in order to make more money available to Italy, to bolster her economy and stave off communism.

With communism, organized and growing stronger in Italy as time goes on, it is hard to see how American dollars could "rescue" the Italian people and their present government.

Under the terms of the peace treaty, recently signed, American troops must be evacuated within 90 days, i. e., the latter part of November, 1947.

The situation seems to size up about as follows: More American dollars made available in October; American troops withdrawn in November; Communist coup in December. WALTER FELDER.

Cranford Clan

As the oldest member of the Cranford family, I want to thank you for the fine report of our family reunion on September 7, and the excellent work of your camera man.

May I correct one inaccuracy? Your article states that the family located in Fairfax County in the early nineteenth century. It was in the eighteenth century that they crossed the river from Maryland and the census of 1790 shows John Cranford and his family of five in the same lists as George Washington and his numerous dependents.

Police Prejudice

At intervals a great hue and cry is leveled at the police for undue roughness or brutality in dealing with citizens. Many of these assaults are upon colored citizens.

This raises a fundamental question as to the preservice and in-service training of police. In some cities it is taken for granted that police, like many of us, have racial prejudice. It is recognized police who hate Jews, Negroes, Italians, foreigners or Catholics will not be tolerant in their dealings with members of these minorities unless a process of education is instituted. Many cities have pursued such educational programs.

During the last war documents and courses of indoctrination were given soldiers describing the enemies' racial philosophy as against the scientific meaning of race, although Congressman May was responsible for denying to soldiers the public affairs pamphlet, The Races of Mankind, solely because it would help undermine the native prejudices of Americans at home.

Chief Barrett could do much to lessen police brutality by providing some in-service training in inter-cultural education. Unfortunately adult members of the community are the products of an environment that fosters segregation and discrimination against minorities because of race. The very existence of segregated schools promotes prejudice. The true solution to police brutality and many other social evils lies in making positive, bold approaches. We should have more intercultural education in the schools, public and parochial. There should be no more appointments made to positions of trust and authority of men known to be intolerant or traditionally steeped in race or religious prejudice. The time is shorter than we think for doing something in the Capital of our Nation to make our voice for peace in the world more effective. I hope Major Barrett starts with his police. E. B. HENDERSON.

Fantastic Fashions

Where are those progressive homemakers we heard about during the recent war? The papers were full of stories concerning women who were contributing their all to the war effort. Theirs was a grand contribution to these days of peace—but where have these women, the backbone of our country, gone?

Take for instance the fashions which are likely to become the style this fall. Women are the slaves of an unmerciful group of people called stylist and fashion designers. They dream up a concoction, much the way a bartender does, and force women to buy and wear these odd get-ups. The majority of the younger women say to themselves or their friends, "What hideous styles these new dresses are, why I wouldn't be caught dead in one." You'll find these same women bewildered by advertisements, afraid they'll be left behind, so what do they immediately do? They make a trip to their favorite dress shop and purchase one of these fanatical, gay ninety dresses or hats. It doesn't matter to them that their wardrobe is jam-crammed full of quite fashionable clothes, which their ever-loving husbands or fathers have sweated for, so they could be one of those glorious modern American women.

Truly now, do women mean to say they're progressive when they revert to those dresses and hats worn by their mothers and grandmothers when they were young? I am wondering how soon it will be before modern women start to drag out fans and parasols. Yes, they'll probably be complete in your outfit of yesteryear.

Another question, who are they trying to please, their husbands and boy friends or the money-grabbing, lunical fashion designers? Come now, Miss and Mrs. America, wake up and see the light. Don't be a senseless sheep-being, led to the slaughter by the so-called experts. You women have a head on your shoulders, why not show the rest of us you know how to use it. Resist those silly, obnoxious, grotesque styles the so-called experts are trying to unload on you—the women of America. ROBERT W. LITTLE.
Washington.

I will not be responsible for any debts incurred by my wife in purchasing dresses advertised by leading department stores. For to be lured into those stores by those advertisements she would have to be unbalanced.

She would have to believe that in those dresses she would be dramatic, breathless, glamorous, fabulous, enchanting—in short, that she would combine the virtues of Princess Elizabeth, Hedy Lamar, the Lady of the Lake and Doris Duke. She is, in my opinion, a good-looking woman, and so far has confined herself to dresses made of good material with decent workmanship and some degree of style.

But should she ever fall victim to the insanity cultivated by the advertisements of these stores, I shall adhere strictly to the notice given above. HUSBAND.

Calling Washington

Propaganda In Poland

WARSAW, POLAND.—In most of Poland's newspapers a continuing barrage of propaganda against the United States is carried on from day to day. Much of this is a mere echo of the Moscow line—monopoly capitalism, dollar diplomacy and the other phrases that are the shopworn stock in trade of communism.

Most of this glances off. The Poles have their own concept of America as a great, rich, favored country—and, yes, a generous country. The memory of Woodrow Wilson and his championship of Poland's cause goes down fairly deep.

But one line of attack is bound to be effective with Poles of whatever political opinion. That is the charge that the United States intends to build up Germany and, what is more, give German reconstruction priority over Polish reconstruction.

When you see the careful, scientific destruction that the Germans wrought on this city and when you begin to take in the extent of their monstrous barbarism directed against the Polish people, you have some idea of the hatred that exists here today. Scarcely a family, rich or poor, does not have a tale of the cruelty that befell one of its members.

SMALL WONDER, then, that the government, dominated by Comnists in key positions, is hammering more and more on the propaganda theme that the United States is favoring Germany to the neglect of Poland. Jakub Berman, key government figure, went so far in an interview with me as to say that the underground movement in Poland aimed against the present regime was given direct assistance from the American zone of Germany.

Perhaps there is nothing we can do to counter this propaganda. But it does seem to me that we might try a little harder.

For an American official facing the attacks here day after day, and with them the continuous frustrating tactics of the government, life takes on a grim aspect. On top of this are the hardships of living in a broken and ruined capital, where even the foreigner with diplomatic status lives, by his standards, meanly and drably.

Our former Ambassador, Arthur Bliss Lane, finally could stand it no longer. He resigned from the Diplomatic Service in high dudgeon and wrote an angry article in Life Magazine denouncing the Polish government, with special emphasis on officials such as Berman, whom he regards as sinister agents of Moscow.

Recently that article was read into the political trial at Cracow. It was read at the request of the prosecutor as proof of American hostility toward Poland. Plainly the prosecutor, who is nothing more than a government propagandist using the so-called court as a sounding board, regarded the article as a valuable weapon in the warfare against America and the west.

If this is true, then from the American viewpoint the article was unfortunate, since it served those who mean to discredit us. While Lane's feelings were quite understandable, given the day-to-day exasperation of communism plus Warsaw, the net result seems hardly to have been a gain for our side.

WHAT IS needed above all else is unending tact, patience, perseverance and the judgment to apply the proper degree of firmness at the proper time. These are not common qualities. But we have a right to assume that the trained diplomat will have them at least to a certain extent.

Our present Ambassador is Stanton Griffis, a businessman who looks so much the part that he could be cast in that role by Hollywood, where he has important interests. He is seconded by an able career diplomat, Edward S. Crocker, who recently came to Warsaw as Counselor of embassy.

How far the Polish government intends to push the political trials, no one can say. They may go so far as to arrest and condemn that brave man, Stanislaw Mikolajczyk. Mikolajczyk refuses to leave Poland even though his position is daily becoming more tenuous and uncertain as his Peasant Party is robbed of prestige, position and funds.

"Aid to Germany is the cat in the bag in the Marshall Plan," says the leading Socialist paper, which hammers the anti-American line almost harder than do the Communist sheets. This, as the key men in the government well know, is the most effective propaganda attack, coupled with the fact that Poland was denied relief by the U. S. A. That attack cannot be met by emotionalism. It will take more than we have shown thus far to hold our own in this difficult outpost.

Marzani's Reply

The Washington Post is to be commended for the fair and courageous way in which it allowed space to the letter written by Carl Marzani on September 3, in which he pointed out the inaccuracies and untruths about his case which The Washington Post had unwittingly printed in a column by Kenneth Crawford.

We hope everybody who reads the Crawford article, including Crawford, read the Marzani reputtal. We hope the scales are going to fall and fall fast from the eyes of those who are so blindly probing for evidence of "un-Americanism" that they cannot see how contrary their own methods are to the whole American tradition of fair play and justice.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Cold War VI

IT WILL BE evident, I am sure, to the reader who has followed the argument to this point that my criticism of the policy of containment, or the so-called Truman Doctrine, does not spring from any hope or belief that the Soviet pressure to expand can be "charmed or talked out of existence." I agree entirely with Mr. X that we must make up our minds that the Soviet power is not amenable to our arguments, but only "to contrary force" that "is felt to be too strong, and thus more rational in the logic and rhetoric of power."

Lippmann

MY OBJECTION, then, to the policy of containment is not that it seeks to confront the Soviet power with American power, but that the policy is misconceived, and must result in a misuse of American power. For as I have sought to show, it commits this country to a struggle which has for its objective nothing more substantial than the hope that in 10 or 15 years the Soviet power will, as the result of long frustration, "break up" or "mellow." In this prolonged struggle the role of the United States is, according to Mr. X., to reach "at a series of constantly shifting geographical and political points" to the encroachments of the Soviet power.

The policy, therefore, concedes to the Kremlin the strategical initiative as to when, where and under what local circumstances the issue is to be joined. It compels the United States to meet the Soviet pressure at these shifting geographical and political points by using satellite states, puppet governments and agents which have been subsidized and supported, though their effectiveness is meager and their reliability uncertain. By forcing us to expend our energies and our substance upon these dubious and unnatural allies on the perimeter of the Soviet Union, the effect of the policy is to neglect our natural allies in the Atlantic community, and to alienate them.

They are alienated also by the fact that they do not wish to become, like the nations of the perimeter, the clients of the United States in whose affairs we intervene, asking as the price of our support that they take the directives of their own policy from Washington. They are alienated above all by the prospect of war, which could break out by design or accident, by miscalculation or provocation, if at any of these constantly shifting geographical and political points the Russians or Americans became so deeply engaged that no retreat or compromise was possible. In this war their lands would be the battlefield. Their peoples would be divided by civil conflict. Their cities and their fields would be the bases and the bridgeheads in a total war which, because it would merge into a general civil war, would be as indecisive as it was savage.

WE MAY now ask why the official diagnosis of Soviet conduct, as disclosed by Mr. X's article, has led to such an unworkable policy for dealing with Russia. It is, I believe, because Mr. X has neglected even to mention the fact that the Soviet Union is the successor of the Russian Empire and that Stalin is not only the heir of Marx and of Lenin but of Peter the Great, and the Czars of all the Russias.

FOR REASONS which I do not understand, Mr. X decided not to consider the men in the Kremlin as the rulers of the Russian state and empire, and has limited his analysis to the interaction of "two forces": "the ideology inherited by the present Soviet leaders from the movement in which they had their political origin" and the "circumstances of the power which they have now exercised for nearly three decades in Russia."

Thus he dwells on the indubitable fact that they believe in the Marxian ideology and that "they have continued to be predominantly absorbed with the struggle to secure and make absolute the power which they seized in November, 1917." But with these two observations alone he cannot, and does not, explain the conduct of the Soviet government in this postwar era—that is to say its aims and claims to territory and to the sphere of influence which it dominates. The Soviet government has been run by Marxian revolutionists for 30 years; what has to be explained by a planner of American foreign policy is why in 1945 the Soviet government expanded its frontiers and its orbit, and what was the plan and pattern of its expansion. That can be done only by remembering that the Soviet government is a Russian government and that this Russian government has emerged victorious over Germany and Japan.

Having omitted from his analysis the fact that we are dealing with a victorious Russia,—having become exclusively preoccupied with the Marxian ideology, and with the Communist revolution, it is no wonder that the outcome of Mr. X's analysis is nothing more definite, concrete and practical than that the Soviets will encroach and expand "at a series of constantly shifting geographical and political points." Mr. X's picture of the Soviet conduct has no pattern. It is amorphous. That is why his conclusions about how we should deal with the Soviets have no pattern, and are also amorphous.

Bevin's Masterpiece

By Barnet Nover

When A Bully Gets Mad

THE SPECIAL SECTION of the British Foreign Office in charge of explaining away Ernest Bevin has been working overtime of late.

NOVER

Twice in one week the anonymous spokesman assigned to that task has had to tell the press that the foreign secretary did not really know what he was talking about when he gave the United States the benefit of his unsolicited financial views.

There was, first, the Bevin proposal that the United States redistribute the gold in Fort Knox, a suggestion which John Snyder, the Secretary of the Treasury, dismissed as "silly" and "cockeyed."

More recently, in another public address, Bevin suggested that the United States revive wartime lend lease.

Now, a Foreign Office spokesman tells us that Bevin was only "speaking impromptu," in other words that his remarks were not to be taken seriously.

THIS IS DOING Bevin an injustice.

Bevin is mulish, opinionated, narrow, and reckless of speech. He has the mentality of a bully and the habits of a bruiser. But it is nonsense to say that Bevin did not want his remarks taken seriously. He most certainly did.

What he had to say about Fort Knox gold and lend lease accurately reflected his views. Knowing his views would be repeated, they were his calculated method of placing responsibility for Britain's plight on the shoulders of Uncle Sam.

THERE ARE MANY and weighty reasons why the United States, if for no other reasons than reasons of self-interest, should do all it reasonably can to help get Europe, including Great Britain, back on its feet. But this assistance will be tantamount to pouring water down a bottomless hole unless the nations of Europe first do all they can to help themselves.

So far they have not done so and the reports emanating from the European Conference at Paris indicate that the idea that they do so is meeting with considerable resistance.

In Great Britain, the Labor government has missed one opportunity after another to come to real grips with the crisis. Its operations in the field of financial and economic salvation have fallen into the familiar category of "too little and too late."

It has been much easier to shift responsibility for Britain's plight to American shoulders. Knowing the growing anti-American mood of the British masses, which the Labor regime has done nothing to combat, Bevin has not been above catering to it. The demagogue in him is not very far below the surface.

BEVIN'S remarks on the subject of what the United States ought to do probably did no permanent harm. His handling of the Exodus incident is something which Great Britain will not live down for a long time.

Let us make no mistake about it. That horrible episode which shocked and outraged the civilized world was peculiarly the product of Bevin's temperament, although the entire Labor government, which was besmirched by it, must share the responsibility.

The explanation given by British authorities for the return of the men, women and children who had been on board the Exodus to the French port whence they had embarked for Palestine, was that Cyprus was overcrowded. That explanation has since proved to be an untruth.

What appears to be the real truth is that Ernest Bevin was determined to make an example of the 4000 unfortunates who had sought to defy the limits he had imposed on Jewish immigration into Palestine by sending them to Germany. He was determined to show that he was the boss and was not to be bullied by the surviving remnant left from Hitler's gas chambers and concentration camps.

During the long stay of the Exodus along the French coast, pleas poured into London from all over the world that the 4000 refugees should not be sent back to Germany, a land of the most evil associations for all of them.

Secretary Marshall voiced his strenuous objections. President Truman let the British know of his strong opposition to the contemplated plan. The British press added its voice of protest.

"Did the Government really think of the consequences to this country's international reputation and prestige?" asked the anti-Zionist London Economist, "when the decision was taken to send the 'Exodus' Jews to the British zone of Germany?"

Some members of the British government must certainly have done so. They could not overrule Bevin. Nobody could. He was not to be intimidated by the conscience of the world, the most elementary considerations of decency and common sense, or the pathetic plight of individuals to whom it was like pouring acid on an open wound to send to Germany. So Bevin had his way. What happened at the Hamburg docks was so disgusting as to make all decent Englishmen feel personally unclean.

Great Britain is suffering from from far more than a shortage of dollars. Indeed, that is by no means its most serious shortage. It is suffering even more from a poverty of statesmanship. The fact that Bevin is the most powerful individual in the government provides only too tragic proof of that.

Our Job Stressed

By Eugene Meyer

Chairman of the Board of The Washington Post

We Must Help Europe Help Itself

Paris, Sept. 12.—I have spent four weeks in London, Paris, Berlin, Frankfurt and Rome. Germany apart, there is what they call an acute dollar crisis in each of the other three capitals. Really it is mainly a food and coal crisis.

The immediate urgent problem revolves about the approaching winter. Will we in America do the necessary to stop famine and freezing?

Then close behind is the need for other materials also involved in reconstruction. There are requirements for supplementary coal for industrial furnaces and for power which the drought has diminished in the hydroelectric field.

Speedier Timetable

These conditions and their pressures appear to have led Washington to accept the idea that steps need to be taken to speed up our timetable to aid Europe. An extra session of Congress appears inevitable to avoid the "too little and too late" action by the United States that our enemies counted upon in the war. Our present enemies count upon it now.

The Marshall proposal for a European plan to show us what the nations can and will do to help themselves necessarily takes time. If an acceptable plan proceeds from the Paris Conference it will also require time to make such agreed-upon measures effective.

The Marshall approach of last June should not be abandoned. Our job is to help Europe help itself. And we should remain firm on conditions that this implies in cooperation from Europe. Otherwise our help will prove futile.

America's Response?

Our people know in a general way from statistics the predominance of our power in the world. Congressional committees now in Europe will return home informed of the dire need for our speedy help.

The attitude of our people in the exercise of America's world power now is subject to an acid test. Will our country figure what we can spare from our surplus? Or will it rise to its world responsibility by action proportionate to its power? Will it, in short, determine that it will not be "too little and too late" in the peace crisis?

U. S. Demands That Tito Free 9 Seized Near Trieste at Once

By Marshall Andrews

Post Reporter

The United States has made a sharp demand on Yugoslavia for the "immediate release" of two American and seven British military personnel seized near Trieste.

The State Department revealed yesterday that a "vigorous" protest had been made to Marshal Tito's government against the "unwarranted detention and maltreatment" of 14 Britons and Americans. Five of those concerned already have been released.

Dispatches from London said the British Foreign Office announced it would file a similar protest and demand with Yugoslavia.

The United States note, most recent in a long, bitter and generally ineffectual series of complaints, protests and demands against the Communist-dominated government of Yugoslavia, was presented Wednesday night by Ambassador Cavendish W. Cannon at Belgrade.

Incidents Described

Details of Yugoslav seizures of American and British officers and men, released yesterday by the State Department here, included these incidents:

On August 9, an American officer and an enlisted man were seized "forcibly" while fishing in the Osonzo River near Plezzo. It has not been determined whether the seizure occurred in the American or Yugoslav zone "and it probably will not be established until these personnel are released."

On August 1, two British seamen from the ship Ajax were arrested in the Pola area, apparently after having entered the Yugoslav territory "on their own initiative."

On August 2, three British soldiers of the Second South Lancashire Regiment were seized while on patrol near Albane Vescova. These men were believed to have been in the British zone.

Disappearance of these soldiers and sailors was reported to the Yugoslav Military Mission August 5 and 6, but without result.

Two more British soldiers were seized by Yugoslavs in the vicinity of Pola August 21.

Maltreatment Charged

The State Department said that five British soldiers seized June 16 near Duino in the Yugoslav zone were returned July 19 after suffering "serious maltreatment."

These men, according to reports from Lieut. J. C. H. Le, supreme Allied commander in the area, were detained "without justifiable reason, were permitted insufficient exercise, were given inadequate and inedible food and were confined to a room lacking sanitary toilet facilities. Upon their release, the report said, all were suffering from gastroenteritis and one from typhoid fever "attributable to the bad food and water given during confinement."

Another incident, occuring March 1, was reported in which a British officer was disarmed, undressed and searched by Yugoslavs.

U. S. Seeks 2 Millions Due on Oil

Treasury officials yesterday said they were trying to get back two million dollars the Government lost in overpayment for oil last year.

The officials told the House Expenditures Subcommittee headed by Representative Bender (R., Ill.) that money due the oil companies was being held up and suit would be filed if no settlement could be reached.

The two million dollars was paid on about 150 contracts made early in 1946. When price controls were lifted on oil July 31, 1946, the companies involved asked for an adjustment. The Treasury allowed them to raise their contract prices to the market price of oil in the free market. The Treasury acted under the War Powers Act.

However, the General Accounting Office ruled that the act did not permit the raises, and negotiations to get the money back were started.

Jap Gets Four Years In U. S. Fliers' Deaths

Yokohama, Japan, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—A prewar Tokyo lawyer who pleaded guilty to charges that he contributed to the unlawful killing of nine American airmen shot down over Formosa was sentenced today to four years at hard labor.

Kaneichi Koike, a wartime first lieutenant, admitted that he tried and prosecuted seven airmen "upon false and fraudulent evidence," and failed to conduct an impartial investigation of charges against two others.

MacVeagh Flies Home With Body of Wife

Athens, Greece, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—Ambassador Lincoln MacVeagh left by plane today for the United States with the body of his wife, who died here Tuesday.

The Gallup Poll

Public Favors Full Hearings In U. S. Disloyalty Firings

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 12.—No Government worker subject to the new loyalty tests should be dismissed without a hearing, in the opinion of an overwhelming majority of American voters polled by the Institute.

According to law, the State Department has full authority to fire as it pleases and recently ten employes were purged. Six of them, represented by Paul Porter, former OPA administrator, as counsel, asked for a full statement of evidence against them and the right to a hearing.

The general principle involved, namely, the question of whether a Government employe should be dismissed on grounds of doubtful loyalty without being given a hearing, was put up to the people of the country through a cross-section survey on the following issue:

"If questions of national security (safety) are involved, should our Government have the right to fire any employe at any time if his dependability or his loyalty to the United States is questioned—or should every United States Government employe have the right to present his side of the case?"

The vote:

Fire	24%
Present his case	68
No Opinion	8

The argument against open hearings is that the evidence presented and the testimony given by witnesses might cut off future sources of information. In the past that has been the attitude often taken by the FBI.

Today's poll vote should not be interpreted to mean that the public favors letting disloyal citizens continue to work for the government. The issue as posed refers only to the method of handling cases of questioned loyalty, and the sentiment of the majority is that the democratic tradition of an open hearing should be maintained.

Where the issue of communism is involved, the general public takes a stern attitude. In August, 1946, a Nation-wide survey by the Institute was conducted on the question, "Should U. S. Communists be permitted to hold civil service jobs (regular Government jobs) in this country?"

The vote was 17 per cent in favor, 69 per cent opposed and 14 per cent no opinion.

Today's survey finds some difference of attitude by age groups toward this issue of open hearings. The younger voters of the Nation are more in favor of such hearings than other voters, as the following table indicates:

	Age
	21-29	30-49	50 & over
Fire	19%	23%	29%
Hold hearings	75	69	62
No opinion	6	8	9

John Santo, Union Organizer, Called Communist by Budenz

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—Louis F. Budenz, former editor of the Communist Daily Worker, testified today at an immigration service hearing that John Santo, union organizer whom the Federal Government seeks to deport, was a member of the Communist Party.

"I know John Santo was a member likewise while I was a member," he said. "We were comrades."

Asked by John P. Boyd, immigration service official who is presenting the Government's case, to point ou Santo, Budenz said:

"He is sitting between comrade Quill and ——"

Here Harry Sacher, Santo's attorney, shouted an interruption:

"You foul mouth. Don't carry the Judas kiss into this place."

Budenz referred to Michael J. Quill, international president of the CIO Transport Workers Union, for which Santo is an organizer.

The former Communist editor, who was the first Government witness, said he joined the Communist Party in 1935 and left it in 1945 after learning it was acting as "a fifth column for Soviet Russia." He now teaches economics at Fordham University.

Tempers also flared when Boyd asked Budenz if he knew whether Sacher wa sa Communist. The defense attorney shouted the question was "the foulest, dirtiest thing I've heard from any counsel in 25 years," and added:

"I will pursue you criminally and civilly if you dare to imply a word of slander against me." This was apparently addressed to Budenz. Sacher commented "The witness will swear him own mother away."

Santo declined to take the stand as today's session opened after Boyd had said he wanted to ask him if he were a member of the Communist Party.

Sacher, explaining his client's refusal to testify, said "It seems to me to violate the spirit of procedures of this character when, as the Supreme Court has ruled, liberty is involved, to attempt to utilize the testimony of the respondent for the purpose of accomplishing his deportation."

The Government announced yesterday at the opening of the hearing that Santo's deportation would be sought on the ground he was an alien Communist. Sacher declared the action was part of a drive to destroy the TWU.

Britain Seeks A-Bombs

Copenhagen, Denmark, Sept. 13 (U.P.).—Sir John Anderson, chairman of the British Atomic Energy Commission, told a Danish newspaper today that Britain, although still unable to produce atomic bombs, was "working to get them."

New Haven Railroad Requests ICC to Allow Increase in Fares

By The Associated Press

The New York-New Haven and Hartford Railroad Co. told the ICC yesterday that, so far as its lines are concerned, passenger fares, as well as freight rates, will have to go up to meet increased operating costs.

Howard S. Palmer, the New Haven president, testified at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing on a general railroad petition for authority to increase freight rates 10 per cent at once.

Palmer urged this "emergency authority," but said that because New Haven is primarily a passenger service railroad, the freight adjustment "will only partly cover our increased cost resulting from the September 1 wage award" of 15½ cents an hour to railway employes other than train operators.

Therefore," he said, "the New Haven is preparing an additional petition requesting this commission to grant an emergency passenger fare increase."

Questioned by reporters after leaving the witness stand, Palmer said the New Haven plans to seek an increase in its basic passenger fares in coaches from the present level of 2.5 cents per mile to "something less than 3 cents per mile."

The ICC in May granted the 10 per cent increases in basic passenger fares to all of the Eastern railroads. This week, the Commission authorized 16 Eastern lines, including the New Haven, to raise passenger commutation rates approximately 20 per cent.

Walter S. Franklin, Pennsylvania Railroad vice president, said the freight rate increase the railroads are asking is "inadequate" and that further boosts will be needed if operating costs continue to rise.

Franklin testified before the Interstate Commerce Commission on the railroads' request for 10 per cent immediate, emergency rate hike to be collected pending decision on their application for a long-term 27 per cent increase.

ICC Chairman Clyde B. Aitchison said that if the proposed increases are inadequate "why don't you come forward with an adequate one and let the people of the United States see what will be needed to keep the railroads operating?"

The amount sought is "all we can do for the moment," Franklin replied, repeating that it is "inadequate."

The Franklin-Aitchison exchange came after the ICC chairman asked whether the Pennsylvania official's estimate of cost to his line for next year reflected possible wage increases or benefits to operating employes.

Franklin said such possible increases were not included because operating employes have not advised what they will ask.

A recent arbitration award granted a 15½ cents an hour wage increase to an estimated one million non-operating railroad personnel. Prior to that the carriers had asked a 16.7 per cent freight rate boost, but this was raised to 27 per cent on the basis of the increased wages award.

Minn. Scientists Start Effort To Double-Split Split Atom

Minneapolis, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—University of Minnesota scientists, using a "tame" atom smasher, embarked today on an attempt to learn what holds matter together.

By scattering the atom's nucleus—the world's smallest particle of matter—they hope to learn what matter is composed of.

For their experiments, designed to shed light on a hitherto uncharted field of physics, the scientists will use a souped-up five million-volt electrostatic generator, most powerful of its type in the Nation and similar to the atom smasher which helped America produce the atomic bomb.

Dr. John Williams, atomic scientist who played an important part in developing the atomic bomb at Los Alamos, N. Mex., heads the project.

Williams said that none of the scientists knew exactly what reactions would result when the nucleus—the heart of the atom—was scattered by driving it at terrifically high speeds against atoms of helium, nitrogen and other gases.

He said, however, that successful conclusion of the tests would add much to world's knowledge of nuclear formation, and that practical application of such knowledge would be a logical second step. Williams figured it would take about a year to complete tests.

4 Firms Accused Of Child Labor Law Violations

By the United Press

The Reynolds Metals Co., Richmond, Va., and three of its subsidiaries yesterday were accused by Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach of 335 wartime violations of child labor laws.

He gave the companies 20 days in which to pay $195,770 in damages or to show cause why the penalty should not be assessed. If the companies fail to do either, the case will be taken to court.

The Secretary, in three formal complaints, accused the firms of hiring 335 minors for a total of 19,577 "illegal" days of work on Government contracts from 1942 through 1944.

He said the hiring were in violation of the Walsh-Healey Act which bans employment of children under 18 to work on Government contracts, and subjects violaters to a $10 penalty for each day worked.

Atomic Energy 'Oversold' as Power, Expert Says

Madison, Wis., Sept. 12 (AP).—The use of atomic energy for power "has been oversold to the American public," Dr. Farrington Daniels of the University of Wisconsin declared in a symposium here.

"It will be feasible to run ships by atom power," Dr. Daniels told a symposium on the use of isotopes in biology and medicine, "but it is going to be difficult in the near future for atomic power to compete with coal and it is impossible to run an automobile with atoms."

Dr. Harold C. Urey, a key figure in the United States atomic research field, said "nothing except world control of atomic energy can protect us in the future."

"Governing officials will always say world government is impossible until the people demand it," he continued.

Fr. Kelly En Route Home;

The Rev. William E. Kelly, pastor of St. Martin's Catholic Church, 1912 North Capitol st., is en route home from the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn. He will arrive here next week after stopovers in Des Moines, Iowa, and Chicago.

According to the Rev. Louis F. Miltenberger, assistant pastor and acting pastor of St. Martin's, Father Kelly is suffering from a rare disease "in which he lacks red corpuscles of the marrow of the bone."

Father Miltenberger said yesterday that Mayo physicians told him that they have treated only one other similar case in the clinic's history. Before going to the Mayo Clinic, Father Kelly underwent an operation for the removal of his spleen, and had 28 blood transfusions. He came to St. Martin's in May, 1943, from the pastorate of St. John's Church, Westminster Md. He is 56.

A series of instructions explaining the Catholic Church doctrines will begin Tuesday at 8 p. m. in St. Martin's Clubhouse.

The course, which is open to Catholics and non-Catholics, will be conducted by Father Miltenberger. It will continue on Tuesday nights throughout the fall and winter.

Asbury Church Has 'Outpost' In Park View Section

Asbury Methodist Church, 11th and K sts. nw., conducts an "outpost" Sunday School in the Park View-Mount Pleasant area for children who can't afford transportation downtown.

Williams

Several hundred children gather weekends for religious, social and recreational activity at this Asbury church - sponsored community center at 3209 Georgia ave. nw.

The project functions under Asbury Church's Community Center board, of which Wallace P. Gant is chairman. A supervisor for the Veterans' Administration, he has been in Government service 30 years. He is also active in city-wide Negro Methodist work.

"This center has proven to be a great asset to the church in many ways," said Gant, pointing out it serves as a frequent meeting place for Bible classes, clubs and other organizations of Asbury Church.

Dr. Robert M. Williams, Asbury's pastor, started the community center in November, 1942, to accommodate his parishioners living in the Park View-Mount Pleasant area. Because the changing character of downtown Washington, Asbury's 3900 members now reside in all parts of the city.

Many children who are not members of Asbury Church enjoy the social and recreational program at the community center on Saturdays. "We feel we are rendering a great service in helping the underprivileged Negro children, regardless of whether or not they are members of our church," said Chairman Gant. Most of the children are from 1 to 11 years old.

Serving on Gant's committee for the center are Mrs. Sarah Moore, vice chairman; Mrs. Ora Ross, secretary; Mrs. Bessie E. Wells, treasurer; Mrs. A. C. Dillard, assistant treasurer; Edward C. Davis, general utility, and Oscar Barnes, assistant; Caeser Bennett, chaplain; Mrs. Emma Brown and Mrs. Emma Jones, property; Mrs. Minnie C. Bank, program, and Mansfield Neal, program co-chairman.

Sound of Ram's Horn Begins High Holy Days

The sound of the ram's horn will echo through synagogues tomorrow at sundown, as Rosh Hashonah—the Jewish New Year 5708—begins.

Rosh Hashonah inaugurates a ten-day period of reflection and repentance, ending with Yom Kippur—the Day of Atonement—from sundown September 23 until sunset September 24.

"The sound of the Shofar or ram's horn," explain Jewish leaders, "is a warning to all that the time to repent and amend one's ways is at hand."

For the first time this year's High Holyday services of the Washington Hebrew (Reformed) Congregation will be held in Constitution Hall. The services will be centered around an Ark of the Covenant, especially constructed to harmonize with the interior architecture of the hall. The Ark will contain the Scrools of the Temple.

The Rosh Hashonah services of the Washington Hebrew Congregation will start tomorrow at 8 p. m., and continue Monday at 10:30 a. m. Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, spiritual leader of the congregation, will preach. The large membership of the Reformed Temple has previously necessitated an "overflow" service at First Congregatinoal Church, through the courtesy of its board and congregation.

Cantor Paul Gewirtz of New York City will begin his duties as cantor of Ohev Sholom Congregation, 5th and Eye sts nw., during the High Holidays. Rabbi Zemach Green is the spiritual leader.

He will chant at Rosh Hashonah, Yom Kippur and Succoth services and has organized a boys' choir to assist him. The cantor received his musical training in Budapest, Hungary, his birthplace. He came to America in 1940 and in 1942 joined the United States Army, serving overseas with the O. S. S. He is studying under Cantor Solomon Katz of Beth Sholom Congregation, who was a famous European cantor before coming here.

Maj. Henry Tavel, Army chaplain, will officiate at High Holyday services of the Montgomery County Jewish Community in the Silver Spring Armory. Cantor Louis Fenik will chant. Jewish service personnel stationed or hospitalized in the Montgomery County area are being invited to the services, starting tomorrow at sundown.

Rosh Hashonah services will be held tomorrow at 7 p. m., and Monday and Tuesday at 8:30 a. m., and Yom Kippur, September 23, at 6:30 p. m. Howard L. Hirsch, vice president of the congregation, will serve as cantor. The Rev. Richard M. Mussen, pastor of Sherwood Church, offered the Jewish group use of his hall when he heard they were unable to find quarters for their holiday services.

The High Holyday services at the Silver Spring Armory are among the programs being arranged through the USO Jewish Welfare Board. Chaplain Tavel will conduct services for the Jewish patients and service personnel at Walter Reed Hospital Monday at 8:15 p. m. Area Church Building Boom Continues to Make the News

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

The church building boom in Greater Washington continues to make the news.

Last week 17 Baptist churches announced plans for buildings to cost a total of four million dollars, and several suburban churches will emphasize building programs at services tomorrow.

Members of Park View Christian Church, formerly of 627 Park rd. nw., tomorrow at 11 a. m. will enter the first unit of their $200,000 building at 12th st. and Eastern ave. nw., a block west of Georgia ave.

The first unit cost $90,000, and will consist of departmental rooms, auditorium, kitchen and dining room, oil-burning furnace, Hammond organ and other features. Since the sale of the old building, members have worshiped in the assembly room of Jessup Blair Park. The Rev. George M. Anderson is pastor.

Other services of the Park View congregation set for tomorrow are Sunday school at 9:30 a. m., a youth meeting at 7 p. m., and an organ concert and other music at 8 p. m. Mrs. LaVern Jeffries is arranging the musical program.

"GREATER ST. LUKE DAY"

A debt-reduction and building fund campaign will be launched tomorrow at 11 a. m. at St. Luke Lutheran Church, Colesville Road and Highland Drive, Silver Spring.

"The campaign calls for retirement of the present indebtedness on the English Gothic church completed and decorated in April, 1946," announced the Rev. Robert E. Lee, pastor. "It also stresses the need for funds for an addition to the present religious educational facilities and parish activity building on the Dale dr. side of the church.

"Growth of Sunday school and church membership, expansion of civic and religious activities and growth of the community make such a program imperative," stated C. B. Bateman, campaign committee chairman.

Dr. Arthur M. Knudsen, Chicago, secretary of the United Lutheran Church's Board of Missions, will speak tomorrow at 11 a. m. at St. Luke Church. New members will be received and infants baptized. The Rev. Mr. Lee, pastor, is a former Navy chaplain and as a boy attended Reformation Lutheran Church here.

CLARENDON 'STONE LAYING

Leaders of various Virginia Presbyterian congregations will join in cornerstone-laying ceremonies for the new edifice of Clarendon Presbyterian Church, 1315 North Irving st., tomorrow at 4 p. m.

They will include Dr. Ralph K. Merker, superintendent of missions of the Washington City Presbytery; the Rev. Alton B. Altfather, pastor of Falls Church Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Walter E. Wolf, Arlington Church; the Rev. Horace C. Lukens, moderator of the Washington City Presbytery and minister of the Vienna Church; the Rev. Franklin B. Gillespie of Lewinsville Church; the Rev. Isaac Steenson, pastor of Clarendon Church, and the Rev. George Yount, First Church, Arlington.

Work on the new church was started last December and it is nearly ready for occupancy. The building includes a sanctuary, classrooms, a basement with built-in-stage, church office and other features.

Mr. Steenson, who came to Clarendon Church in 1929, is a native of Belfast, Ireland, where he received his early education. He also studied at McGill University, Montreal, and served pulpits in Norwood, Newburgh, Madrid and Chateaugay, New York State, before coming to Arlington.

Head of Mission To Speak Here

Ludwig Armerding, superintendent of New York's Water Street Mission, will address a rally October 12 at 3 p. m. at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw., in connection with the Central Union Mission's sixty-third anniversary.

Evangelism Parley Planned

In preparation for the city-wide Baptist simultaneous campaign October 12-16, an evangelism conference will be held Monday at 4 p. m. at National Baptist Memorial Church, 16th st. and Columbia rd. nw. A dinner is set for 6:15 p. m.

More than 200 representatives from Greater Washington area Baptist churches have been invited to the conference, at which the following clergymen will speak:

Dr. Edwin T. Dahlberg, president of the Northern Baptist Convention; Dr. G. Pitt Beers, secretary of the American Baptist Home Mission Society; Dr. Walter N. Woodbury, secretary of evangelism for the ABHMS; Dr. Benjamin P. Browne, editorial secretary, American Baptist Publication Society, and Dr. Evan J. Shearman, evangelism program coordinator, Northern Baptist Convention.

Children's Choir In Radio Debut

The Children's Choir of Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church, Bethesda, will make its public radio debut tomorrow at 5:05 p. m. on WBCC's "Vespers" program.

The Rev. Elmer T. Fisher, pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes Church, will speak on the program on the theme of "That Christ May Dwell by Faith in Your Hearts." The choir consists of boys and girls from the fourth to eighth grades at the Lady of Lourdes parochial school.

Planning Session

The annual planning conference of Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, 4th and B sts. se., is set for September 19 at 6:30 p. m. in the church recreation room. A light supper will be served.

Italian Reds Seen in Drive To Wreck De Gasperi's Rule

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Reporter

Diplomatic officials reported last night that Italian Communists believed to be working under a Moscow time-table have launched their long-awaited "battle for Italy" and that the crisis is outrunning American plans for helping the Italian people.

These authorities, including American officials who cannot be identified by name, say that the spreading strike of a million agricultural and industrial workers, the Socialist demand for a vote of no confidence in the De Gasperi government and other recent developments appear to be part of a Communist campaign to overthrow the government and capture Italy for the Soviet half of Europe. Much fear is reported to exist in Italy and even in Italian quarters in this country over the possibility of armed conflict.

High State Department and other American officials are now exploring every possible means of throwing American assistance to the present non-Communist forces governing Italy in the hope of saving that nation for the west.

Conditions in Italy are among the foremost reasons why Secretary Marshall and Undersecretary of State Lovett are pressing for emergency aid the Europe this year as an advance against the Marshall long range recovery program. But the speed with which the Italian situation is developing, according to reports flowing into Washington, makes it clear that for the time being the United States will be hard pressed to find any effective counter moves to the campaign which Communist Leader Palmiro Togliatti has launched.

Combs Shows Babe

Tribe Gets 17 Hits, Bosox Lose, 11 to 6

Boston, Sept. 12 (AP).—The Cleveland Indians dumped the Boston Red Sox into third place by teeing off against Denny Galehouse and Tommy Fine for 17 hits and an 11-6 victory today before a slim 4855 crowd that included Babe Ruth.

The win moved the Indians to a game behind the third-place Sockers and Lou Boudreau has called upon Bob Feller to wipe out that margin tomorrow.

Every one of the Cleveland starters hit safely and Joe Gordon led the attack with a triple, double and a single.

Bob Lemon had an 11-0 lead going into the last of the eighth inning when Merrill Combs, third baseman called up from the Columbus American Association club, belted a two-on homer. The Sockers scored their last two runs in the ninth and, with two on and two out, Lemon was relieved by Ed Klieman, who ended the one-sided game by forcing Sam Mele to line out.

Four Colonials May Be Out of Opening Game

Camp Letts, Md., Sept. 12.—George Washington University Coach Skip Stahley received word yesterday four of his players may miss the Colonials' first game with Virginia because of injuries.

Fullback Bill Spangler and Guard Talbot Dredge, both of whom were in the running for first string berths, received painful rib injuries in scrimmage this week. Although X-rays revealed no breaks, both have seriously bruised muscles, and will be out for at least two weeks.

To add to Stahley's woes, End Irv Koller and Tackle Bill Thrift suffered knee injuries almost certainly will keep them put of the opener.

Kolker is a hard luck boy, as far as football is concerned. Last year Irv hurt his shoulder and was out for the entire season.

Robinson Chosen 'Rookie of Year' By Sporting News

St. Louis, Sept. 12 (AP).—Jackie Robinson, the Brooklyn Dodgers' 28-year-old Negro first baseman, was given the Sporting News' rookie of the year award today.

The choice of Robinson, described by Editor J. G. Taylor Spink as "spectacularly outstanding," was on the basis of "stark baseball values," the paper said.

Robinson was rated and examined solely as a freshman player in the big leagues—on the basis of his hitting, his running, his defensive play, his team value," Spink wrote.

Robinson joined the Dodgers last April from Montreal. He has laid down 42 successful bunts, 14 of them beaten out for hits and 28 sacrifices. His stolen base total is 25. And he has hit 10 home runs. He ran his batting average up to .317 in June when he exhibited a 21-game hitting streak, dropped to .253 in July and during August hit a a .311 clip. His present average is .297.9.

Skee Riegel And Dawson Gain Finals

Pebble Beach, Calif., Sept. 12 (AP).—A pair of Californians, Johnny Dawson of Hollywood and Skee Riegel of Monterey Park, today won their way to the finals of the 1947 U. S. amateur golf championship.

Dawson beat John Selby, Rye, N. Y., 5 and 4 and Riegel shaded Felice Torza, Wethersfield, Conn., 2 and 1, in the semifinals.

The winners clash over Pebble Beach in 36 holes beginning at 9 a. m. PST tomorrow.

Dawson, 44-year-old veteran, whose legs obviously were weary after the long trek over the rugged terrain of Pebble Beach course, closed out his mtch on the thirty-second hole. He needed four shots to land on the green of the 55-yard layout, No. 14 on the card, but dropped a 10-foot putt for the win.

Leads Throughout

Dawson led from the first hole on. He was three up at the ninth; six up at the eighteenth and four up at the twenty-seventh. Going through the twenty-second he was seven holes to the good. Selby, a resident of Piedmont, Calif., temporarily residing in the East, won three of the next five holes when Dawson developed a streak of wildness.

Dawson came back to bag the twenty-ninth for a five up lead, lost the thirty-first when he missed a four-foot putt and emerged the winner on the next hole.

Riegel, a 32-year-old player who has forged to the front since 1946, fought a dogged battle which was not decided until the thirty-fifth hole.

All Even at 27th

All even at the twenty-seventh, Riegel picked up a hole at the twenty-ninth, made it 2 up at the thirty-third where he dropped a birdie 3 and halved the next two holes.

Torza, a little fellow with a finished swing, had the gallery with him as he matched shot for shot with his more experienced rival and never let the latter get more than a two-hole advantage. The Connecticut entry made some excellent recoveries to remain in the running. Riegel saved his cause three times in the afternoon round by sinking fairly easy but crucial putts, at the twenty-first, thirty-first and thirty-third.

Riegel playing the best scoring golf of the four semi-finalists finished 35 holes four over par. Dawson was five over; Torza seven and Selby, eleven.

Skee Favored Today

The strain of two rounds appeared to tell on Dawson today. Riegel will tee off tomorrow probably as the slight favorite.

The two finalists were contestants in last year's ntional mateur, Dawson losing to the eventual champion, Ted Bishop in the first round and Riegel beeing eliminated in the second round by Smiley Quick, who was runner-up for the title.

At the half-way point in today's scheduled 36-holes, Dawson led Selby, six up, and Riegel was one up on Torza.

Dawson, playing in only his second National amateur championship, due to previous long standing difficulties with the United States Golf Association, toured the course in the morning in 73 strokes, one over par. Selby frequently visited the rough and missed a short put to lose one of the holes.

Galla Excels In Hoya Drill

Coach Jack Hagerty's Georgetown gridders met their first inter-squad competition yesterday when the Hoya frosh gave them a stiff, hour-long scrimmage.

Particularly pleasing to the varsity mentors was the work of fullback Tom Galla, hefty 200-pounder from Bridgeport, Conn. Galla drew plaudits from student onlookers as he reeled off long gains on slices through the line. His plunging ability is lightening the worries of Hilltopper coaches about that uncertain fullback post.

Another bright spot in yesterday's session was the passing of quarterback Jack McTamney. McTamney is the Philadelphia lad who is being marked as an able assistant to triple threater Elmer Raba at the signal-caller position.

The frosh, who number about 35, are coached by Bill Wixted and Joe McFadden, both of whom were members of the 1940 Hoya team which met Mississippi in the Orange Bowl.

Eastern Banks on DiGiorgi

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

THIS SHOULD BE Sal DiGiorgi's big year, and it might be Eastern's, too. At least that's what Eastern High School football rooters are hoping.

Sal is the only remnant of Eastern's last championship team of 1945, and it is on him that Coach Dick Mentzer is placing many of his hopes for the coming year.

The dark-complexioned DiGiorgi has been a standout in football, baseball and basketball for two years, but there have always been one or two fellows ahead of him to deprive him of All-High honors. Easterners feel that this will be Sal's year in all sports, starting with football.

DiGiorgi will step into an unfamiliar role with the Ramblers this season. Coach Mentzer has installed the "T" formation at Eastern for the first time, and to DiGiorgi, a halfback last year, has fallen the task of learning to play in the difficult quarterback position.

He has taken to his new job with the same spark and enthusiasm that has marked his play all during his high-school career.

Tomorrow Is Schedule Day

Football fans: Remember, tomorrow is the day that complete schedules of every major college team in the nation will be printed in the sports section of The Washington Post.

The list includes the schedules of every college in all the major conferences and all the leading independent schools.

Be ready for the season's opening with a copy of the schedules. Clip them out of tomorrow's Washington Post.

The Ramblers haven't scrimmaged yet. "Our boys are very green at this "T" formation business, and I'm making sure that they learn their blocking assignments perfectly before I subject them to real rough play," says Mentzer.

"They're a fine group of boys. Their attitude is swell, and they should do well enough if they keep their heads level, and don't become too individualistic."

When Mentzer says his boys are green, he isn't giving out with the usual coach's sob story. DiGiorgi, Quarterback Eddie Smith and Center Bob Harkey are the only returning regulars from the Eastern team that won three out of seven interhigh games last season.

Three reserves from last year's team are also back. They are Center Larry Callabuccia, Tackle Otis Brown and Halfback Charlie Carhart. It is around these six veterans that Mentzer hopes to build a winning team.

John Brown, a star on the basketball team, has clinced one end position, and Ted Collins and Wayne West are fighting for the other. At guards are two rookies Buddy Doran and Ted Cantor, and at tackles are Bob Loratto and Bill Paterson.

Newcomers to the backfield are Bernard Shipley, Leo Kerschenbaum, Ray DiGiovanni, Elmer Landon and Don Adrianni. Landon has impressed Mentzer with his speed, and Adrianni looms as a capable understudy to DiGiorgi at quarterback.

DiGiorgi, who broke into the championship lineup in his first year long enough to pitch three touchdown passes, ranks as the leading triple threater. He'll get plenty of help from Smith in the ball-toting and pass-receiving department.

Wynn Fails, Browns Lead Nats, 9 to 0

Early Wynn lasted only four innings in his quest for his sixteenth victory last night against the St. Louis Browns at Griffith Stadium.

The Browns led the Nats, 9-0, at the end of eighth inning.

The Browns shelled Wynn from the mound with two runs each in the second and third innings and one in the fourth, and four in the fifth. Rookie Scott Cary then took over.

The Brownies struck in pairs for their first four runs, banging over a brace in the second and two more in the next inning.

Wynn hurled a scoreless first inning, but his success was limited to that one round. Catcher Less Moss tagged him for his fifth homer with Walt Judnich, who had singled, aboard for the first pair of St. Louis tallies.

Wynn Gets Going-Over

The cellar-dwellers dealt Wynn a hefty going over in the next inning, bruising him with four hits that produced two more runs and brought the Nat deficit to 4-0. All of the trouble came with two away. A walk to Berardino, singles by Heath and Vern Stephens and Judnich's double did the damage.

The Browns had seven hits to show for the first three innings in addition to their four runs. The Nats had no runs, and only Stan Spence's second-inning single to brag about over the same distance.

Bob Dillinger's triple and Berardino's triple made it 5-0 in the fourth, and the end wasn't in sight. Not by a long shot, because the Brownies got four more runs to run it up to 9-0 in the fifth.

After yielding his thirteenth hit, Wynn was finally removed and young Scott Cary restored to duty. He gave up two more hits before Jeff Heath skied to Spence to retire the side. Heath was the ninth batter of the inning which saw the Brownies make six more hits.

Nats Get Another Hit

The Nats assaulted Kramer for their second hit in the fifth, a single by Al Evans, but this didn't unnerve the Brownie pitcher. He threw out Mark Christman, subbing for Jerry Priddy at second, to nip the Washington threat.

Cary held the Brownies to no runs and only one hit in the next two innings, quite an accomplishment in view of earlier events.

The Nats, meanwhile, continued to massage Kramer in unlively fashion. They loaded the bases in the seventh with two singles, their third and fourth hits, and a walk. But Christman flied to Heath in left to snap that outburst.

Cary went out for a pinchhitter in the seventh inning and William (Buzz) Dozier, an 18-year-old Waco, Tex., high school lad, took over in the eighth. It was his first appearance in organized baseball.

Ossie Shakes 'Em Up, Wynn Bats Sixth

Early Wynn, who is not only the Nats' leading pitcher but also their top batter, won additional recognition for his stick work last night.

Disdaining the conventional No. 9 spot in the batting order for hurlers, Manager Ossie Bluege moved Wynn up to sixth for the second game of the current series with the Brownies. Wynn has long been regarded as one of the best hitting pitchers in baseball and his .295 mark leads the Washington batters.

'Skins to Drill At Catholic U. Starting Friday

A football practice field for the Washington Redskins will be unavailable at Maryland University, it was revealed yesterday, and the local pro gridders will do their practicing at Catholic University's stadium in Brookland.

With 150 players out for varsity, junior varsity and other teams at Maryland, facilities would be overcrowded with the advent of the 'Skins. Plans now call for them to take their first drill next Friday, September 19, at C. U. and whenever possible from then until their National League opener against the Eagles in Philadelphia September 28.

Cubs Beat Phils Twice

Chicago, Sept. 12 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs slammed out seven extra base hits in sweeping a double-header from the Philadelphia Phillies today, winning the first 4 to 3, and the second, in which the Phils made five errors, 7 to 5.

Homers by Cliff Aberson and Ray Mack and a triple by Bob Sturgeon drove across all of Chicago's runs in the opener.

In the second game, played under the protest of the Phillies' manager, Ben Chapman, the Cubs broke a 5-to-5 tie in the seventh on a double by Ed Waitkus, a single by Aberson, a walk to Bill Nicholson and a triple by Clyde McCullough. Chapman's protest was made on whether an overthrow went into the visitors' dugout.

Betty Meckley Loses 4-2 to Mrs. Glick

Richmond, Va., Sept. 12.—Mrs. Maurice Glick, of the Woodholme Country Club, Baltimore, today defeated Mrs. Betty Meckley of Washington's Kenwood Club, by a score of 4 and 2 to win the Middle Atlantic women's golf championship for the first time.

Mrs. Glick, whose one-over-par 78 gained her medalist honors Monday, played her usual steady game while the three-time winner—Mrs. Meckley captured the crown in 1935, '37 and '44—had trouble with her tee shots and several times missed short putts that were costly.

The first time Mrs. Meckley had trouble with her putter was on the fourth hole when she muffed a foot-and-a-half putt for a four while her opponent was taking a three to even the match. Mrs. Meckley had taken the second hole with the first and third halved.

Mrs. Glick went one up on the sixth when Mrs. Meckley hit into the trees on her second shot on the ninth, the Baltimorean took advantage of the opportunity to go two up as Mrs. Meckley required a six on the hole.

Mrs. Meckley raillied on the 11th, sunk a 20-footer for a 4, while Mrs. Glick was taking a 5, then evened up the contest on the 12th by 2 putting for a 3 while Mrs. Glick was requiring a 4.

But here the tide turned once more as Mrs. Glick put on the pressure and took the next four holes and the match.

Other winners:

SECOND FLIGHT—Mrs. G. S. Hall, Richmond, defeated Mrs. Harry Schwarzschild, Richmond, 5 and 4.

THIRD FLIGHT—Mrs. F. P. Brawley, Richmond, defeated Mrs. R. C. Welton, Richmond, 1 up.

SECOND FLIGHT (Consolation)—Mrs. H. E. Davies, Washington, defeated Miss Frances Rand, Richmond, 4 and 3.

THIRD FLIGHT (Consolation)—Mrs. Rex Blankenship, Richmond, defeated Mrs. Don James, Richmond, 1 up.

Little Generals In Opener Today

Washington-Lee High School's Little Generals of Arlington, last year's Northern Virginia Class A Conference champions, open their season today at 3 p. m. as hosts to Fort Hill High of Cumberland, Md.

The Little Generals won nine and lost two last season before they won the Furniture Bowl game over High Poit, N. C., 26-14. Fort Hill, last year's champion of Cumberland's three-team league, won five, lost one, and tied two.

The game will be broadcast over WEAM Arlington-Fairfax at 3 o'clock.

Sinkwich's Mask Comes to Hopkins

Baltimore, Sept. 12 (AP).—The protector mask devised for Frankie Sinkwich when he suffered a broken jaw at the University of Georgia is coming North for use by a Johns Hopkins player.

George Mullinix, Johns Hopkins' best back, recently suffered a broken jaw. Fitz Lutz, trainer of the Baltimore Colts who was at Georgia when Sinkwich was hurt, heard about Mullinix's injury and arranged for the loan of the mask.

Cites Shorter Fields

Ruth Says He Might Have Hit 80 Homers With 'Rabbit' Ball

Boston, Sept. 12 (AP).—Babe Ruth, baseball's home-run giant of yesterday, opined today that under present playing conditions he might have pushed his season record to 80 instead of 60 home runs.

And he rated Johnny Mize of New York's Giants ahead of Ted Williams of the Red Sox among this year's circuit sluggers.

Here to award American Legion Junior baseball scholarships, Ruth said that home runs were easier now because of a lively ball and shortened fields.

"The baseball of today is all rabbit," he told interviewers. "But there are also the fields. They have even cut down Fenway Park.

"I remember when a man was lucky when he could hit a ball even as far as the flagpole at Fenway Park. Now they're hitting homers into the center-field bleachers.

"I'd rate the sluggers of this year with Mize first and Williams second, and Ralph Kiner of Pittsburgh third. Mize has more power than Williams because he can hit homers to any field. Williams has power only to right field.

Snug Harbor Plays Two

Snug Harbor, runner-up in the Prince Georges County Baseball League, will meet the Brooklyn A.C. in a twin bill at 2 o'clock today at Snug Harbor.

Track Meet Today

The Prince Georges County Boys Club will hold a field day and Olympic Games track meet at 9:30 a. m. today at Maryland University. Boys 10-17 will compete.

Jack Kramer, Parker Gain Semi-Finals

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 12 (AP). Strictly according to the script, two Americans and a pair of sharp-shooting foreign stars came safely through today's strife in the sun-baked stadium and will square off in tomorrow's semi-finals of the National Tennis Championships.

Leading the blister brigade into the round before the big pay-off was Jack Kramer of Los Angeles, the defending champion and acknowledged king of the amateurs. With him were Frankie Parker of Los Angeles, a two-time former champion; Jaroslav Drobny, a left-handed slicker from Czechoslovakia, and Jack Bromwich, veteran Australian Davis Cupper.

Tomorrow's line-up pits Kramer against Drobny in what might turn out to be a terrific match, and Parker against Bromwich in a baseline spree that could go on forever.

Running True to Form

None of today's four matches required an extra set. Kramer blasted young Bob Falkenburg of Los Angeles, 6—2, 7—5, 6—1; Drobny out-served and out-slicked Tom Brown, jr., of San Francisco, 7—5, 6—3, 6—4; Parker outsteadied Pancho Segura of Ecuador, 6—3, 11—9, 6—4, and Bromwich levelled Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, 7—5, 6—1, 6—1.

Easily the best match of the four was that between Drobny and Brown, in which the bespectacled Czech ace at last showed an American audience the brand of tennis with which he had been credited.

Brown, who reached the final of this year's Wimbledon against Kramer and who has been playing superbly at Forest Hills, never had a chance.

Kramer was back with all his "big" game in top working order today. Gone was the uncertain backhand whic halmost brought him to disaster the previous day against James Brink of Seattle, and his service was booming again.

Falkenburg was outclassed, as only Kramer can show up a player who has his weaknesses. Falkenburg scored one service break late in the second set, but it was immaterial.

Kramer Has Boils

Kramer disclosed that a brace of boils on his upper structure bothered him somewhat in yesterday's match with Brink. He said they were much better today, and they evidently were.

Mulloy's failure of give Bromwich more of a battle was one of the day's disappointments. The American Davis Cupper admitted when it was over that he had been playing with a painfully disclosed knuckle on the little finger of his racket hand, but refused to advance it as an alibi.

He hurt the finger when he fell during his match against Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles three days ago.

The women continued to run true to form in their own little sweepstakes, and all four of the designated stars will be on hand for tomorrow's semifinals.

Osborne, Hart Win

Margaret Osborne, the Wimbledon champion, subdued little Mrs. Magda Rurac of Romania, 64, 64, in the first of today's two quarter-finals. A few minutes later, tall Dorothy Hart of Miami, the third-seeded American gave Barbara Krase of San Francisco her walking papers, 8—6, 6—2.

Tomorrow the Misses Osborne and Hart clash in one semifinal and Louise Brough of Beverly Hills takes on Mrs. Nancy Wynn Bolton, champion of Australia, in the other.

Artoe Fined $100 For Bad Conduct

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—Lee Artoe, Los Angeles tackle, was fined $100 today by Admiral Ingram, commissioner of the All-America football conference, for what the commissioner described as "unsportsmanlike conduct" in a game at San Francisco last Sunday.

Ingram said the fine carries an automatic suspension until it is paid, making Artoe ineligible for tonight's game with the New York Yankees in Los Angeles unless he starts the money on its way to the commissioner's office before the opening kickoff.

French Swimmer Shatters Record

Monte Carlo, Sept. 12 (AP).—Alex Jany, 18-year-old French aquatic ace, shattered the world 400-meter freestyle record in the European swimming championships today, covering the distance in 4:35.2.

Royston Romain of Britain won the 200-meter breaststroke in 2:40.2.

Earlier today, Jany unofficially beat his own world 200-meter freestyle record when he swam the distance in 2:04.9 on his lap of the 800-meter relay. His recognized mark is 2:05.4.

Cobb in New Speed Test Sunday at Salt Flats

Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, Sept. 12 (AP).—Gus P. Backman, president of the Bonneville Speedway Association, said he was informed today that John Cobb, London fur broker, will make an official run Sunday in an attempt to crack the measured mile automobile speed record.

Berkeley Club Opened

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 12.—About 300 sportsmen participated in the formal opening of the Berkeley County Izaak Walton League clubhouse on the Potomac here last night.

Cracks Record

Ralph Kiner Hits 48th, 49th Homer

Pittsburgh, Sept. 12 (AP).—Ralph Kiner of the Pittsburgh Pirates smashed out two home runs tonight to set a new major league record of eight round trippers in four consecutive games. They were his 48th and 49th of the season and give him undisputed possession of the major league leadership. The Pirates beat the Braves, 4-3.

The old mark of seven in four games was established by the late Tony Lazzeri of the New York Yankees in 1936.

Kiner, who hit four homers in a twin bill yesterday, went hitless in his first two appearances of tonight's game with the Boston Braves.

His first circuit blow, which enabled him to pass Johnny Mize in their race for the major league leadership, came in the fifth inning with one man aboard and sent the Pirates into a 3-2 lead. No one was on base when he clouted his second in the seventh to make it 4-2.

At Marlboro

DEAR FOLKS:

I found everybody here "swamp fever" conscious. Horsemen were feeling sorry for Marylanders who have been caught in New England with their horses—among them Guy Bedwell, Yancey Christmas and Gelt Davis. However, all seemed to agree that the quarantine of the Rockingham horses is justifiable under the conditions. Special precautions are being taken here against an outbreak of the fever. By order of the stewards, the temperatures of all horses stabled here must be taken each night and morning. The racing commission will have a grasp of eight men, including Drs. F. M. Keller, Hubert Young and J. A. Stewart on hand to guard the health of the horses. Sanitary rules have been posted and entries for races will be confined to horses already in this State. The days of shipping a horse here from a big track to make a "killing" are over as far as Marlboro is concerned. Personally, I like the idea. It is only fair that purses go to owners and trainers who have put on the show at the other Maryland minor tracks—Hagerstown, Cumberland, Belair and Timonium. Well, I'm glad to get back after my long vacation and I believe I can start the Benningites off with some winners. See you on the rail.—BILL.

Racing Scene Shifts to Marlboro Today

10,000 Fans Expected For Opener

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Maryland's racing scene shifts to Washington's door at the ancient Marlboro track today.

Upward of 10,000 regular and occasional turf customers, the majority from the Nation's Capital, are expected to swarm all over the half-mile plant for the start of a 10-day meeting that begins the final phase of minor track racing for the year in the Free State.

Fans probably will get their final look at the old Marlboro at this session. Condemned by the racing commission as lacking in facilities for the sport and getting its dates only with a "reluctance" attached, Marlboro is likely to be rebuilt before another year.

Big Business Today

The half-mile track, once a side attraction for the home folks visiting the county fair, is now big business. Carpenters and painters have patched up the plant and it was as spic and span yesterday as hands could make it.

Present plans call for a complete rebuilding and the work is expected to be completed before the 1948 meeting.

Racing Secretary Fred Burton, who held a similar post at Laurel last year, has arranged a good opening day program. The card, with a 2 p. m. post time for the first race, is topped by the Inaugural Purse, a $1500 affair at 5½ furlongs for 3-year-olds and up.

With the exception of G. Y. Booker's Lawless Miss, the line-up includes virtually all the sprint stars of the Hagerstown, Belair, Cumberland and Timonium meetings.

Meetmenow Favorite

Meetmenow, the sharp filly owned by E. C. Alnut of Rockville, is the probable favorite. She whipped Lawless Miss at Timonium earlier in the week and will be ridden by the veteran Skeets Holland. Gay Peggy is coupled with Meetmenow. J. K. Wynkoop's Army Bell, who has developed into a keen mare this summer, goes postward with E. Nicodemus' Double Duty as a running mate. Army Belle dead-heated Lawless Miss and will be second choice.

Trainer Dan Chamblin places his hopes in Halogi, owned by S. S. Rogers, jr., of Washington and I. G. Schorsch's Lord Loudon, winner at Timonium this week. Others in the lineup are Fred Kirch's Kitty Kilts, J. M. Trapnell's Busy Moose and H. B. Worthington's Play Devil.

Five other sprints and two distance events complete the program. The daily double is on the first and second races.

In the Pink Garden Victor

Camden, N. J., Sept. 12 (AP).—Calumet Farm registered two consecutive popular victories as In The Pink raced to an easy three-length triumph in the Butterfly Purse, feature race at Garden State Park, this afternoon after the Warren Wright-owned stable had scored with Happiness in the fourth race.

In The Pink was big favorite with the 11,893 fans. She was backed down to $3.90 for $2 and raced the 6 furlongs in the good time of 1.11 2/5 over the fast track, marking her as a formidable candidate in the Colonial Handicap September 24.

Doug Dodson sent In The Pink to the van at the break as the seven other fillies gave futile chase. Baylor O. Hickman's Valhalla was closest in the early part but gave way to Ella K. Bryson's Going Airy on the stretch turn.

The later made a game effort through the stretch run but was never able to narrow the margin as Dodson had the winner under a tight hold while lengthening her lead. Going Airy saved the place by a half length over Elmendorf Farm's Appian Via.

Legion Honors Perry Currin

Eighteen-year-old Perry Currin of Arlington, Va., who played baseball with Washington-Lee High School before his graduation last June and is now with the St. Louis Browns, will be honored in a special ceremony before today's Washington-St. Louis game at Griffith Stadium.

The National Cathedral American Legion Post, for whom Currin played shortstop for two seasons, will stage the ceremony.

Currin, a 6-foot 1-inch 180-pounder, graduated from Washington-Lee High of Arlington last June, and was signed by the Browns. Thte Browns farmed him to the Toledo club of the American Association, from where he was sent to Springfield, in the Western League.

Coast Track Hires Killer—for Gulls

Albany, Calif., Sept. 12 (AP).—Golden Gate Fields, the ultra-plush racing plant on the East Shore of San Francisco Bay, boasted today of being the only track in the country with a licensed killed.

He's hired to blast seagulls from the skies over the infield.

Atcheson Air Crash Called Pilot's Fault

An Army investigating board concluded yesterday that the Pacific air crash which killed Ambassador George Atcheson, jr., and nine others, was caused by the pilot's failure to set his engine throttle properly.

An AAF announcement said the board found the B-17 crashed into the ocean 60 miles short of its destination, Honolulu, August 16, because its fuel was exhausted. The pilot, Capt. Kenneth R. Still, it stated, had his throttles at an "excessively high power setting" on the run from Kwajalein to Hawaii.

No explanation was given in the report as to why, Captain Still "passed up an available refueling point"—Johnston Island, which is on the Kwajalein-Hawaii course—or why the throttle was not set properly.

The board, headed by Brig. Gen. Frederick V. H. Kimble, said its findings were based on a study of testimony of the three survivors Five bodies were recovered, while five others, including Atcheson and Still, are missing.

The AAF said Still had 3500 hours time as pilot, including 600 hours flying B-17s. Fortresses have flown the same run—Kwayalein to Honolulu—many times without stopping at Johnston, and even longer distances.

County Police Guard Strikebound Plant

Pulaski, Va., Sept. 12 (AP).—County police officers stood by the strikebound plant of the Coleman Furniture Co. here today as scores of employes changed shifts, walking past parading pickets whose signs proclaimed they had been "locked out."

The demonstrations cut operations at the plant in half this morning as picketing was started in protest of a mass firing of workers yesterday. A company spokesman said 62 employes were fired for taking a 15-minute, unauthorized "rest period."

Fever Hero Declared Dead

By the United Press

The Secret Service decided reluctantly yesterday that Pvt. Wallace W. Forbes, "yellow jack" hero of the Spanish-American War, is dead. It gave up its 18-year search for him.

And it concluded that Private Forbes never will see the gold medal voted him by Congress or receive the $30,000 in pension money he has coming.

Forbes, a native of Galesburg, Ill., was stationed at Camp Lazer, Havana, Cuba, in 1901, when Maj. Walter Reed asked for volunteers to test his theory that yellow fever was carried by mosquitoes. Forbes and 19 other soldiers responded.

The "guinea pigs" were infected, and three of them died within a few days. The others became violently ill but survived.

After the experiment, Forbes served many hitches in the Army. One day he disappeared from his post at San Francisco's Presidio. He was listed a. w. o. l., but older men, recalling his record, thought he had met with foul play.

After Congress voted in 1929 to honor the "yellow jack" guinea pigs with a medal and life pension of $125 a month, the Secret Service began its search for Forbes.

The medal will go to Forbes' sister, Mrs. Myrtle Poole, Hollywood, Calif. The accumulated pension money, which now amounts to $30,000, will go to the Treasury's general fund.

Legion Head Criticizes Bradley's VA Efforts

New Commander Says Administration 'Not Satisfactory' In Many Instances

James F. O'Neil, newly elected national commander of the American Legion, declared yesterday that the efforts of Gen. Omar N. Bradley as head of the Veterans' Administration have been "not completely satisfactory."

The Manchester (N. H.) police chief who chose Washington for his first press conference told reporters that "veterans resent too much Army 'brass' in the VA."

O'Neil also said that the Legion may be forced to ask Congress for a revision of veterans' benefits if living costs keep spiraling. Many veterans, he pointed out, depend on pension and compensation checks that continue at the same levels, despite the fact they buy less and less.

May Seek Pension Hike

If prices don't level off, he said, the Legion may have to ask Congress for vriable pension checks, keyed to the cost of living, so that checks would get bigger as living costs climbed.

As for the VA, O'Neil said he plans to confer soon with President Truman to propose that he name as Bradley's successor a man who will make the job "his life's work."

"I personally have no candidate for the post, however," he said, "nor does the Legion."

O'Neil's criticism of Bradley was mild compared to that of an earlier Legion commander, former Gov. John Stelle of Illinois. In January, 1946, Stelle called for a congressional investigation of VA and demanded Bradley's replacement with a businesman.

Discusses Draft

O'Neil also took up universal military training and housing, insurance and medical treatment for veterans.

He said the Legion will urge President Truman to call a special session of Congress to consider universal military training legislation. He "deplored" the opposition of Senator Robert Taft (R., Ohio) to such a bill.

He declared the Legion is developing its own housing program to provide dwellings for veterans with low incomes and added that the Legion plans an active probe of housing costs. O'Neil said he will confer with Justice Department officials next week on monopolistic practices in the housing field.

O'Neil was also critical of VA handling of insurance and hospitalization.

He said more than 900,000 remittances made by veterans have not yet been credited to their policies and recommended recruitment of commercial insurance executives to correct the situation.

The Legion commander conceded that the provision of hospital beds for veterans shows signs of progress but "has not been satisfactory."

VA Has 3 New Types Of Artificial Arms

The Veterans Administration yesterday announced the development and release of three new types of artificial arms which mark an advance in modern prosthesis.

The new arms will be available after September 15 to veteran and civilian arm amputees alike. One of the new arms will be issued to each veteran amputee, with the choice left to him.

Col. Robert S. Allen, columnist and himself a World War II battle arm amputee, demonstrated the artificial arms in a press conference yesterday at the VA.

The three new types are lightweight and made of a plastic material which permits washing with soap and water. They are known as the Northrup, Hosmer and Fitch artificial arms.

Technical details of the advantages of the new arms are being mailed to veteran amputees by the VA. The devices will be distributed through 250 artificial limb dealers in the United States, who will be equipped to accept orders from veterans and nonveterans.

The VA also announced that a veteran amputee whose artificial limb is in need of repair may now have work up to $35, done at his closest certified limb shop. Formerly limbs for repair had to be sent to VA regional offices.

Coast Guard Fixes Ship Crash Blame

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 12 (AP).—Blame for the collision of the merchant ships Thomas F. Cunningham and Winfred L. Smith Monday off Cape Henry was laid today to the Smith by Lieut. Comdr. D. L. Elliott, Coast Guard investigating officer.

Elliott took depositions today from Capt. George A. Fields of the Cunningham and members of the crew. Counsel for Capt. Lester V. Banks, master of the Smith, cross-examined the Cunningham witnesses.

Meanwhile the coal laden Smith, whose bow was damaged when she rammed the Cunningham amidships, was being unloaded at Newport News. The Cunningham's oil cargo was being pumped out by a Standard Oil barge as she lay at anchor.

Impeachment Held Only Way To Oust Raedy

Chief Judge Comments On Status of Jurist After Hit-Run Case

Chief Judge of Municipal Court George P. Barse said yesterday that Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Raedy could be removed from the bench only by impeachment proceedings.

He made this statement to reporters after he had been questioned as to the status of Judge Raedy as the result of charges of hit and run filed against her.

Judge Raedy forfeited $200 collateral when she failed to appear at her trial on those charges. The charges resulted from an accident in which her car was involved at 1st and K sts. nw., August 19.

Forfeiture of the collateral does not constitute a conviction, Judge Barse pointed out. The District board of Revocations and Restorations said that it expected to study a police report of the accident early next week.

Suspension in a hit-and-run case is not mandatory unless there is a personal injury involved. There was no one injured when Judge Raedy's car struck the parked car.

Jury Indicts Walter Mathis For Murder

Walter Ray Mathis, 40, Alexandria building contractor who has admitted the fatal shooting of his divorced wife's husband, has been formally indicted for murder.

A Baltimore grand jury returned the indictment Thursday night, charging Mathis with the murder of Kenneth E. Colbert, 31, Baltimore steelworker and husband of Mathis' former wife. Colbert was shot in his Middle River, Md., home on August 6.

Mathis, now in Baltimore jail, told Alexandria police who arrested him the following morning that he had gone to meet his former wife, Mrs. Ruby Mathis Colbert, when he met his successful rival for the first time.

A scuffle ensued, Mathis said, and Colbert fell mortally wounded by one of two shots Mathis said he fired.

Mathis remarried his first wife, Mrs. Pearl Mathis, after divorce over Colbert ended his second marriage. The Mathis family lives at 424 E. Glendale st., including their 14-year-old son and an eight-year-old boy of the second marriage.

reporter she had been one of three secretaries to Clayton for 26 months, and was awaiting the Undersecretary's return to Washington to find out more about her requested resignation.

"If they have a case," she said, bitterly, "I want to know what it is. They're hurting so many people this way. And now they're hurting me.

"I won't be able to get a job anywhere in the Government after this. There's no justification for it. It frightens me."

State Department records show that Miss Yuhas entered White House service in November, 1939, and remained there until April, 1944, as a correspondence clerk. On May 15, 1944, she worked for the Soviet Embassy on the staff of its "Information Bulletin," a publication describing Russia.

On December 7, 1944, she applied for State Department promotion and was employed there, beginning January 30, 1945.

Library Report

D. C. Turns To Serious Reading

Washington readers are transferring their interests from fiction to more serious subjects like economics, the atom, and world affairs, the annual report of the District Library Board of Trustees revealed yesterday.

While circulation of fiction dropped nearly 3 per cent to 601,029 during fiscal 1947, weightier, more instructive non-fiction books had a circulation climb from 612,790 to 668,887, the report showed.

Circulation of books among children declined from 1,357,598 last year to 1,297,096 during fiscal 1947.

Miss Louise P. Latimer, Director of Work with Children at the library, said the drop was due to personnel shortages which made it necessary to shorten hours in the children's rooms.

Nearly 7500 more persons used library facilities during the year ending June 30. Total registration went from 154,807 in 1946 to 162,218 this year.

Peterson said he wasn't concerned over a slight drop in total circulation from 2,589,569 to 2,567,012 during the year.

The report also expressed "hope" that funds will be obtained for renovations in the first unit of the new main library, so "hope-Central Library can be partially relieved. The Commissioners were urged to seek funds for building the second Main Library unit in the near future.

Relief Checks End, Women Seek Spouses

Husbands, Though Estranged, Expected To Help Families

Their relief checks suspended, 15 District women appealed to the Women's Bureau yesterday for assistance in locating missing husbands.

These women were among many whose relief checks were cut off by the Public Assistance Division following the recent reduction in relief appropriations.

Meanwhile more than 400 persons stormed PAD offices to inquire why their checks were not forthcoming or had been curtailed. Some of this number were there to exercise their right of appeal from PAD's action.

Board of Public Welfare officials explained that the 15 women had been cut from its rolls as their husbands, even though estranged, are presumed to contribute for their family's support. They cannot be replaced on the relief rolls until an "earnest effort" to locate the missing husbands has been made.

Attempts to carry out these "earnest efforts" brought them to the Women's Bureau, Capt. Rhoda Milliken, bureau head, said. Three women detectives have been placed on this assignment.

Most wandering husbands turn up within a two or three State radius of the District, Captain Milliken said, although she cited the case of one husband located in the State of Washington in 1944 who cost the District more than $500 in travel expenses and time of persons working on the case to locate him. This man made one payment of $60 to his family before disappearing again and another search is in progress now.

2 Held Guilty In Boy's Death

their sentences deferred. If the convictions are sustained, each faces a maximum sentence of a $1000 fine or one year in jail.

The death which brought about the unique trial took place on May 4 at the corner of Kenilworth ave. and Quarles st. ne.

Robert S. Luebin, jr., 39, of 2026 Higdon rd. ne., was riding in a car driven by his father. The car, eastbound on Quarles st., was in collision with the streetcar which was northbound on Kenilworth ave. The automobile was dragged 35 feet by the streetcar. The younger Luebin's injuries were fatal.

When the trial began Wednesday, Judge Margold, at the request of Assistant United States Attorney Richard M. Roberts, ordered the jury to visit the scene of the accident.

The prosecution said the purpose of the trip was to show the jurors that there was no obstruction at the intersection and that both operators should have seen one another a half block from the intersection.

The jury of 10 men and two women reached its verdict in 45 minutes.

Judge Scores Parents On Youthful Drivers

Parents who allow children under 18 to drive in the District were characterized as "weak" by Associate Justice Alexander Holtzoff in District Court yesterday.

The jurist also criticized District traffic regulations which permit the issuance of permits to 15-year-olds as long as they have parental consent.

The jurist voiced his observations as he place a 17-year-old youth, convicted of negligent homicide, on probation for four years. Imposition of a one-year prison sentence was suspended.

The youth, Thomas A. Gorman jr., 2801 S. Columbus st., Arlington, was convicted of charges resulting from the death of Harvey E. Long, 22, in an auto crash at 3d st., and Independence ave. last April. Police said that Gorman had been drinking.

Holtzoff warned the youth he must not take a drink nor drive a car until January 7, 1951. Violation of this prohibition would automatically make Gorman liable to the prison sentence.

In pronouncing sentence, Holtzoff said: "So many fathers are weak and yield to the importunities of their boys who want to drive a car. I think, in view of the traffic fatalities we've had this year, this is a matter that might well be considered.

"I don't believe boys and girls under 18 should be allowed to drive in urban centers. Conditions in rural areas might be different. Perhaps this is something in respect to which the law may be changed."

Asked by reporters what he thought of the judge's comments, retired Army Major Thomas A. Gorman, father of the convicted youth, said:

"It must be obvious what I think. I certainly agree with the judge whole heartedly."

(Under the District law a boy or girl upon reaching 16 may obtain a permit to drive the car if either their parent or guardian consent. They are not granted a permit to drive cars belonging to anyone else until they are 18.)

Church Swindled In Building Fraud

A Washington congregation is among 40 churches in five States swindled out of $200,000 through spurious building contracts, in a postal fraud disclosed yesterday in Philadelphia by Postal Inspector George Sadler.

Officials of New Pisgah Baptist Church, 18th and Gale sts. ne., told The Washington Post that they gave $9000 to Howard L. Clements, former president of the now defunct General Engineering & Construction Co. He has been arrested in Miami, Fla., and held in $25,000 bail for removal to Philadelphia on charges of conspiracy to defraud.

Rent Board In Va. Lacks Tenants

Protest Entered On Alexandria And Arlington Control Nominees

A seven-man rent control advisory board, nominated by Gov. William M. Tuck of Virginia to serve the Arlington-Alexandria area, is without a single tenant representative.

This was learned by The Wash-Post yesterday in a survey which disclosed that all of the nominees either own or are buying their own homes, and would not be affected by an increase in rent ceilings or any other changes in the present rent control status.

Only two of the nominees, in response to questioning, said they definitely favor retention of rent controls. Four members of the group said they were not prepared to express an opinion pending a further study of conditions.

Definitely in favor of continued controls are retired businessman, John B. Abraham, and Benton Boogher, building materials company employe, both of Alexandria. Noncommittal were Clarence J. Robinson of Alexandria, owner of a concrete mix supply business; Carroll Wright, real estate dealer, and Fred N. Windridge, automobile dealer, of Arlington, and Guy N. Church, real estate dealer, of Falls Church. George H. Hieronymous of Arlington, seventh proposed member of the board, could not be reached.

Disclosure that the list did not include the name of a single tenant brought an immediate protest from the Washington Chapter, Americans for Democratic Action, which drafted a letter to Federal Housing Expeditor Frank R. Creedon asking that he refuse to approve the board as "presently proposed."

The letter was signed by Benjamin C. Sigal, chapter president, and said the proposed board does not comply with a statutory requirement that rent advisory boards must be "representative" of their respective areas. It urged Creedon to withold approval until Tuck appoints an equal number of tenants and representatives of the public at large, "particularly consumer and labor representatives."

Earlier this week, Creedon filed a protest with Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland, after the Governor nominated a board for Montgomery and Prince Georges County without proposing a single tenant representative. The Governor's office announced he would make additional recommendations to provide for tenant representatives.

3 Apartment Houses Ask Rent Increases

The Rent Control Administration was asked yesterday to grant 10 to 11½ per cent rent boosts for more than 560 units of three large apartment houses in Northwest Washington.

Owners asked the 11½ per cent hike for 270 units at the Carlyn, 2500 Q st. nw., and 119 units at the Marlyn, Cathedral and 39th sts. nw. Current rents at the Carlyn range from $65 to $145 per month; at the Marlyn, $65 to $117 per month.

A third petition sought 10 per cent boosts for 175 units at Woodley Park Towers, 2737 Devonshire pl. nw. Rents there range from $47.50 to $275 a month.

William F. Mansfield, rent control secretary and docket clerk, said the cases would be heard by examiners on the following dates: Carlyn, October 15; Marlyn, October 16; Woodley Park Towers, October 23.

5 Million School Bond Bill Asked For Anne Arundel

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 12 (AP).—Declaring Anne Arundel County needs $5,050,000 in new funds for school construction, Supt. David S. Jenkins said today he had asked Governor Lane to consider introduction of a bond issue bill in the coming session of the Legislature.

Jenkins said the $2,620,000 now available for school work was inadequate.

If additional money is not received in time to meet the September, 1949, deadline for the 12-grade program, he predicted at least 50 per cent of county schools would have to operate half-time after that date.

Jenkins said student enrollment had increased this year and housing developments near Glen Burnie would create more problems. Governor Lane vetoed an act of the last General Assembly that would have frozen for school purposes funds received from redistributed State tax receipts in Anne Arundel County.

Virginia Truck Strike Parley Deadlocked

Winchester, Va., Sept. 12 (AP).—Negotiations between striking drivers of three northern Virginia motor truck lines and management representatives have ended in a deadlock and both company and union spokesmen said today they saw little chance of an agreement being reached soon.

A labor-management conference broke up in a stalemate late Thursday night after union representatives refused to accept a wage increase offered by the company. Terms of the proposal were not announced. Th estrike has left idle some 175 men.

Cities Held Liable for Parking Ills

Facilities Must Be Provided, Speakers Tell Meeting Here

Downtown praking problems can be solved only by city governments taking the initiative and providing proper facilities, businessmen attending the U. S. Chamber of Commerce's conference on urban problems were told yesterday.

Speaking at a luncheon in the Statler Hotel, Jay D. Runkle, of Detroit, chairman of the board, National Retail Dry Goods Company, said furnishing of "adequate and convenient parking space near the principal shopping centers" is a major problem faced by downtown business interests.

"I am convinced that there is only one way to solve this problem," he said, "and that is for the city to take over the major responsibility for providing proper parking facilities."

Runkle, with other speakers, viewed traffic problems as a major factor in deterioration of downtown sections of cities, and asserted "straegic super-highways must be built right into the city."

Panel discussions on off-street parking and rebuilding blighted areas were held yesterday, final day of the conference attended by about 500 persons.

P. Y. K. Howat, chairman, District of Columbia Parking Authority, said "Properly used, the parking meter is a most useful device for assisting in the conversion from the outmoded custom of all-day curb parking on congested streets" to off-street parking.

Discussing the rebuilding of blighted downtown areas, Earl D. Mallery of Washington, executive director of the American Municipal Association, asserted that assembling the land, financing the projects, subsidizing them where necessary and rehousing displaced persons are responsibilities of local government.

Hyattsville Dog Kennel Ban Opposed

A proposal to prohibit operation of dog kennels within the town limits of Hyattsville yesterday drew a strong protest from the Old Dominion Kennel Club, composed of dog fanciers in the Maryland-District-Virginia area.

In a letter addressed to the Hyattsville Town Council, which is slated to consider the proposal Monday night, the kennel club's secretary, Mrs. A. R. Forbush, said the measure would be a "gross injustice not only to your own citizens and taxpayers, but to the good name of the community."

"The kenneled dog is the safe dog," her letter said, whereas the individually-owned dog, permitted to run at large, "is the dog which may increase the population of mongrels, spread disease, create traffic hazards, endanger other dogs or human beings."

Claude M. Davis, chairman of a special town council committee that has been studying the kennel proposal, said yesterday his unit would recommend that kennels be barred from the town because they create "possible health hazards and a general nuisance."

At Dinner Here

Skyway Plan Is Lauded By Alison

Use of the personal airplane and air shipping are two of the Nation's scarcely touched potential markets, John R. Alison declared here last night.

Alison, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, spoke before the survey party of the Washington-Los Angeles Skyway No. 1 at a dinner in the Terrace Dining Room at National Airport.

His audience included C. A. Beesemyer, president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, high-ranking Civil Aeronautics Administration officials and Washington Board of Trade members.

Beesemyer, other Los Angeles officials, Board of Trade representatives and CAA officials arrived in Washington yesterday afternoon aboard three planes which surveyed the route designated by the CAA for airway identification. The 40-mile-wide strip, with identifying and directional markings on buildings and roadways, will span the Nation to aid private fliers.

The survey party traveled the west-to-east route, taking the northern branch, which leaves the main skyway at Abilene, Tex., and goes through Oklahoma City, St. Louis, Dayton, Columbus and Pittsburgh. A southern route touches Shreveport, La.; Montgomery, Ala., and Richmond.

The return trip over the southern route will be started by the California group, Board of Trade representatives, and CAA officials Tuesday.

Alison, principal speaker on last night's program, told his audience, "We want to bring the personal airplane to a stage where it will be a major contributor to the happiness and convenience of the American people."

Avid cooperation by communities where the air markings will be placed was told by Beesemyer and by John A. Reilly, president of the Board of Trade, who met the survey party at St. Louis for the trip to Washington.

Mrs. Blanche Noyes, chief of air marking for CAA and one of the pilots on the eastward trip, said the route marking should be completed within 60 days. In chrome yellow and black, the names of towns, latitude and longitude, a "north" arrow, airport symbol and skyway symbol will be painted on prominent rooftops across the Nation, she explained.

CAA had about 30,000 markings over the country before the war, but security measures erased most of them. Weather obliterated the rest.

Jury Orders M'Guire Held In Death of Mrs. Rowell

Inquest Produces Testimony Woman Was Threatened By Her Husband

Nixon McGuire, 36-year-old railway express handler, was held for grand jury action yesterday by a coroner's jury which decided he was responsible for the death of Mrs. Theodora J. Rowell.

The body of Mrs. Rowell, 35, estranged wife of Troy W. Rowell, was found early last Wednesday in McGuire's basement apartment at 1919 I st. nw. Witnesses testified she had been living with McGuire for eight months.

The jury's verdict came after an inquest before Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald which produced testimony that both McGuire and Rowell had threatened Mrs. Rowell.

Husband Testifies

Rowell, who said he tried to get his wife to return to him as recently as August 23, declared he could not forget her after his 17 years of married life. After the inquest, where he was accompanied by his two daughters and his late wife's mother, he planned to make his wife's funeral arrangements with the aid of Mrs. Rowell's brother, who was expected from his home in Florida.

McGuire was present at a cafe when he asked his wife to return to him, Rowell testified, and she said she would do whatever McGuire told her to do. Then she and McGuire walked out, he said, testifying also that he knew they had been living together.

Lewis W. Brogan, Capitol policeman, told the jury he had stopped a fight between McGuire and Mrs. Rowell near Union Station about two months ago. He testified that she had come to see him on September 2 and had told him she wanted to go back to her husband. Brogan also quoted her as saying that McGuire declared he would "beat her to death" if she tried to return to Rowell.

Dr. Richard Rosenberg, deputy coroner, testified Mrs. Rowell died of a cerebral hemorrhage and pressure caused by a blow on the head. The result of the blow, he declared, would have been the same regardless of the heart trouble she had, which was not advanced, in his opinion.

Detective Sergt. Richard J. Talbot of the homicide squad testified Mrs. Rowell's body had bruises on the face and one ear, and her left eye was black, when she was found.

Dr. Gustave A. Faubert, Anne Arundel County medical examiner, ordered the autopsy after Mrs. Holland died at Fort Meade hospital early today. The examiner said a fractured skull and broken neck apparently caused the death.

Faubert said Holland told him he was filling buckets with water and passing them up to his wife when he heard her scream. The husband said she fell into the well head first, striking him on the back.

Family Fights Eviction Suit On Race Basis

Notice was filed in court yesterday that the family of Aaron Tushin will fight eviction efforts at Bannockburn, Md., where nine families charge violation of a restrictive covenant.

Tushin, a patent attorney, is the target of the ouster suit, filed on the grounds that he is Jewish and that his occupancy of a house at 6918 Wilson la., is causing the protesters "irreparable damage." Tushin's wife is not Jewish. The couple have three children, ages 14, 11 and one-year-old, who live with them.

Alfred D. Noyes, Montgomery County Juvenile Court judge and counsel for Tushin, yesterday filed answer to the neighbors' suit, charging that it denied the Tushins their constitutional rights. Judge Noyes said he knows of no similar case ever coming before the Maryland courts of the United States Supreme Court.

The ouster suit, filed in Montgomery County Circuit Court, based its injunction request on a community covenant, set forth by the Bannockburn Improvement Co., in 1936, which reads in part:

"Said property shall never be used or occupied by . . . Negroes . . . Jews . . . Persians and Syrians, except that this paragraph shall not be held to exclude partial occupancy of the premises by domestic servants of any of the owners of said property."

Judge Noyes said the couple purchased the home in January 1946 "without knowledge of the existing covenant."

In answer to the plaintiffs' plea of "irreparable damage," Judge Noyes' plea declared that if injunctive relief were granted as requested, Tushin would suffer "infinitely greater damage by comparison, than whatever possible benefit might imure to the the plaintiffs."

Among the plaintiffs seeking Tushin's ouster are Mr. and Mrs. J. Otis Garber, Braeburn parkway. Garber is chief of the field service, Bureau of the Budget. Others include:

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Webb, 6709 Selkirk dr.; Mr. and Mrs. Paul B. Kern, Elgin lane; Mr. and Mrs. John W. Senour, 6700 Selkirk dr., and Mrs. Mary L. Rawlings, no street address listed.

Officials also said yesterday the discovery of two leaks in vacant houses restored approximately 15 gallons per minute to the water pressure, an amount equivalent to the yield of one well.

Teh three tank trucks borrowed from the District Government, each with a 2600 gollan capacity, hauled 45,000 gallons of water to the two communities for storage in an elevated 155,000 gallon capacity storage tank.

With proper conservation of water by subscribers, sanitary commission spokesmen said, there will be an adequate reserve for fire fighting purposes until a prolonged rainy spell refills the wells.

Negro Girl Sues To Study in White School

A test court suit to determine whether an Arlington Negro girl can be barred legally from a white high school has been filed against Arlington School Superintendent Fletched Kemp and the School Board.

The suit, said to be the first of its kind in Virginia, was filed in Alexandria District Court last week by Washington attorney Leon A. Ransom in behalf of Miss Constance Carter, 15, of 3425 S. 22d st., Arlington.

Yesterday morning, the suit was served on both Kemp and on the School Boaord as a corporate body.

According to Ransom, Miss Carter has been unable to get courses she wanted at the Hoffman-Boston High School (Negro). She applied for admission to the Washington-Lee High School and was told State law made it impossible.

The attorney emphasized: "We're not attacking the dual school system as such; we're attacking the Negro and white schools."

Miss Carter told a Washington Post reporter yesterday that she had been unable to take courses in typing, civics III, Spanish, or physical education at the Hoffman-Boston School.

Vienna Picks Ex-Marine Policeman

The Vienna (Va.) town council has elected James Goldsborough, a former Marine Corps military police sergeant, as the town's new police officer.

Mayor Elmer E. Cockrill last night said Goldsborough, now a Fairfax County deputy sheriff, would perform the duties of town sergeant, a position vacated Wednesday when a Fairfax jury removed Warren R. Bradford.

The position of town sergeant is an elective one and Mayor Cockrill said it had not been determined whether the council would have to name a successor to Bradford.

Goldsborough, he said, was hired on a monthly basis at a salary the same as that formerly paid Bradford—$125 a month plus a $50 car allowance.

Goldsborough will resign as a deputy sheriff, Cockrill said, and will take over his new duties September 15.

The Vienna town sergeant was removed after a jury heard testimony that Bradford failed to take effective action against a man who knocked him down, stole his gun, fired five shots at him, and chased him through the town. Bradford had been town sergeant for 12 years.

TWO HAPPY people are Francine Whitten and Lewis MacCracken who will walk down the aisle of St. Thomas Church on Friday. It's a romance which has been steady ever since Francine's debut two years ago.

Meanwhile there's a flurry of parties for the couple this week, beginning with Dick Hutchison's outdoor party tomorrow afternoon at Laurel Park Farm out in Maryland.

And, of course, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Whitten, parents of the bride-to-be, and Lewis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. William MacCracken.

MARION NORRIS' family will swell the stag line by four today at her cocktail party for Francine and Lewis and Abby Willard and her fiance, Jack Northrop, who'll be married on the twenty-seventh. Miss Norris has called in her brothers, Leo Brison Norris, jr.; Esten, Charles and Bob, and has even enlisted the services of her very young sister, Shara, to open the door.

Just to name a few among the more than 100 guests who'll be there this afternoon are Muriel and Evelyn Maddox and their brother, Charles; Miss Mary McLaughlin, Miss Marianna Evans, Miss Anne Bryan, Miss Bella Hagner, Miss Lelia Dickey, Miss Margaret Mechlin, Miss Alice Nicholson, Miss Ruth Bielaski, Mrs. Thomas N. PETITE and pert Abby Willard's getting busy with her date book, too, and parties in her honor are adding up every day. Miss Peggy Nairn will give a linen shower on Monday for Miss Willard, and next Saturday night Mr. and Mrs. William B. Willard will entertain at dinner and dancing at the Chevy Chase Club for Abby and her fiance. The next day will be Miss Jewel Davis' luncheon at Normandy Farm and Miss Anne Guthrie has taken September 24 as the date for her luncheon at the Sulgrave Club. Mrs. Wilkins Cooley will entertain at a bridesmaids' luncheon on September 26 and that evening Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. On the day of the wedding Prof. and Mrs. Filmer S. C. Northrop, parents of the prospective bridegroom, will entertain at luncheon for the bridal party and family.

TOWN TOPICS:

Mrs. Joseph Willard, every inch the grande dame, is returning Tuesday from England to make her home in sleepy old Fairfax Court House, Va. Her Virginia estate, Layton, was used by the OSS during the war and was so hush-hush, that not even its owner could get within a mile of the place. The mother of Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt, Mrs. Willard was at one time part owner of the Willard Hotel, and kept a suite there with a view up Pennsylvania ave. to the Capitol.

Next big party on the books is the "double-ten," a reception at the Chinese Embassy to celebrate the founding of the Chinese Republic, which comes on the tenth day of the tenth month.

At the British Embassy

The British Ambassador and Lady Inverchapel were hosts at dinner last evening at the embassy for the British delegates to the International Statistical Conference.

Why Worry?

Why worry over matters when . . . It really does no good . . . And does not help a problem to . . . Be better understood? . . . Analysis and study are . . . The best that we can give . . . But merely worrying all day . . . Is not the way to live . . . It is unhealthy for the mind . . . It makes our hair get gray . . . And often takes our patience and . . . Our common sense away . . . So many worries are without . . . A reason or a rhyme . . . For usually a problem will . . . Resolve itself in time . . . In deep anxiety our goal . . . Is difficult to see . . . And when we worry we are not . . . The best of company.

Ask Anne Your Questions on Homemaking

Soft drink bottles were left on the ivory-colored painted window sill in our hall overnight. They made round, brown marks. Is there any way to remove these stains without harming the paint? E. L. W.

A paint cleaner made by the following recipe should be effective in this case: Dissolve ½ cup soapflakes in 1 quart hot water. Let cool until jellied. Stir in ½ cup whiting. Apply with clean, damp cloth. Rinse with soft cloth wrung out of clear water. Dry.

What is the best method for removing grease spots from wallpaper? These are in a very conspicuous place. Do you think it would be better to have the wall repapered instead of trying to remove the spots? H. M.

If the paper is otherwise in good condition, I'd try to remove the spots before going to the expense of repapering. Stubborn stains often respond to a poultice treatment. Make a paste of Fuller's Earth or commercial dry cleaning powder, and carbon tetrachloride. (Try carbon tetrachloride on an inconspicuous place on the wallpaper first to be sure it won't affect the color.) Apply the poultice thickly to the grease spots, thinning it out at the edges beyond the soiled area. Let it remain until thoroughly dry. Wipe off carefully with a cloth dampened with carbon tetrachloride. Repeat treatment if necessary.

I have a very nice down comforter which has become soiled. Could you tell me where I could get it cleaned or recovered? A. L. J.

A number of Washington dry cleaning firms clean down comforters, and there's a company in the 600 block of E st. nw. (listed under "Mattresses" in the yellow section of your telephone book) that covers them.

A cigarette was inadvertently left in the pocket of a blue and white striped shirt when it was washed. It left a brown stain that runs in a streak from the bottom of the pocket across the shirt front. Immediate rewashing didn't take it out. What would you suggest? V. M. S.

Sponge the stain with cold water, then work warm glycerine or soapless shampoo into it. Let stand for half an hour, then wash with soap and water. Moistening with lemon juice and bleaching in the sun will help get rid of any remaining traces of stain, but may affect the blue dye if the shirt isn't colorfast.

I have bought a second-hand sofa and I would like to fumigate it as I do not know who had it before us. Is there any way that I can fumigate it at home? D. J.

According to the District of Columbia Health Department, fumigation should not be necessary unless the sofa is badly infested with insects (and in that case it should be done by a professional exterminator). Use either a dry-cleaning fluid or an upholstery shampoo on the fabric. Wipe off the woodwork with soap and water, rinsing by sponging with a cloth wrung out of clear water. If the color of the upholstery will stand it, sun the sofa out of doors. If not, leave it on the porch to air for 24 hours or more. Then wax or polish the woodwork and it's ready for use.

Please tell me what to use in refinishing the bathroom seat which has become shabby looking. C. T. J.

Use first-quality gloss or semi-gloss enamel to paint the seat. If it's chipped or marred, sand the places down with sandpaper before painting. Or, better, still, remove the paint with paint remover and sand it. It's a good idea to "flow" the paint on in order to have as smooth a surface as possible. Pour it on in places and let it run over the wood, using a brush only to fill in the edges. The seat should be allowed to dry thoroughly—at least for 24 hours, probably more—before going back into use.

Many Food Prices Take Sudden Drop

Corn, Butter, Eggs Among Commodities Affected; Margins Hit Grain Trading

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Corn and wheat, butter, eggs, lard, onions and many other commodities yesterday demonstrated the truth of the adage that "what goes up must come down."

From all sections of the country lower prices were registered in varied lists of items—many of them falling the limit permitted in one day's trading.

From as many sources came suggestions as to the cause of the sudden break. The grain markets unquestionably were affected by the increase in margin requirements, ordered by the Chicago Board of Trade and other grain exchanges throughout the country.

Effective today all transactions in wheat must be protected by a margin of 48 cents, corn, 45 cents; oats, 25 cents; barley, 50 cents, and soybeans, 75 cents.

Balked at New Margins

The new margins are about what the Commodity Exchange Authority recommended several weeks ago to halt wild trading. At that time, however, the exchanges only met the CEA request part way, insisting that the high margins CEA asked would stifle free trading, and that the compromise the exchanges offered would sufficiently dampen the speculative spirit.

Affected at once by the higher margin requirements will be the small speculator, who has had an unusually large part in the recent market activity. The Commodity Exchange Authority reported that on July 1 "a large proportion of speculative holdings in corn was made up of relatively small accounts.

"Speculative commitments of trades with less than 25,000 bushels each accounted for 9,664,000 bushels long, or 16.6 per cent of the total long contracts, and 14,245,000 bushels short, or 24.5 per cent of the total short contracts.

"Accounts in the intermediate size groups also held substantial positions."

[An interesting feature is that the small trader on June 30 was predominantly "short" while the large trader was predominantly "long." In the bull market that has marked the period since July 1, the shorts took real punishment.]

Wholesale Prices Climb

As prices were tumbling, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that average wholesale prices climbed another six tenths per cent last week. This is at the rate of more than 31 per cent a year.

They are now, BLS said, only about 7 per cent below the all-time high reached just before the 1920-21 recession.

It was the eighth consecutive week prices have set new postwar records. Some of the increases will be reflected in retail prices at once. Others may take longer.

In the break in wheat the biggest drop was in next year's (1948) crop. July futures went down the limit of 10 cents to $2.43¼ a bushel. May corn tumbled the limit for that grain, 8 cents, to $2.24⅝.

At Chicago and other midwestern stockyards, hogs were down as much as $2 a 100 under Thursday's record high of around $31.

November lard also went down the limit, $2 a 100, to $20.12. (Lard is still virtually at the old OPA ceilings.)

Butter, Eggs Go Down

Both butter and eggs dropped their 3-cent and 2-cent daily limit respectively. October storage eggs closed at 56 cents. November butter went down to 73 cents. The Chicago Mercantile Exchange reported there were many offerings at those prices at the close that were not accepted. This situation presages a continuing drop today.

Onions dropped 9 to 10 cents a 100 pounds. November deliveries sold at $1.95; January at $2.36.

In the cash wholesale market (for spot delivery) both butter and egg prices were jittery. Butter was down as much as 2 cents, with Grade B selling at 78 cents. Top Grade AA was 84 cents.

Eggs were unchanged on better grades, with 1½ to 2½ cents less on the two lowest grades.

In Washington some wholesale dealers were reported yesterday considering rationing their top grade eggs beginning Monday. One of the largest wholesalers, the Grande Valley Produce, Inc., said that beginning Monday orders from customers for "extra large" eggs would be filled only by one-half.

Nicholas Coppola, manager, said that small or pullet eggs were plentiful, but "extra large" scarce. "Extra large" eggs, which average 30 ounces to the dozen, were selling at wholesale yesterday at 79 cents; while the small, or pullet size, averaging 20 ounces, were bringing only 53 cents.

Wholesalers were urging retail merchants to stock the smaller, lower-priced eggs.

Buyer Resistance Seen

Many market exports attributed yesterday's abrupt decline to "buyer resistance." Some insisted that the break was long overdue, and that the wild market gyrations of the last few weeks had attracted public attention of a sort that may lead to restrictive legislation unless halted at once.

The upward spiral has been steady virtually since early in July, spurred by the extensive weather damage to corn, America's basic feed crop.

Meat Packers Called In High Price Probe

Chicago, Sept. 12 (U.P.).—United States authorities today served 18 subpenas on major meat packers for their appearance before a special Federal grand jury which will investigate high prices.

Packers served included the "big four" — Armour, Swift, Cudahy and Wilson.

They were ordered to appear the week of September 23, when the grand jury is scheduled to be impaneled.

It was understood that the grand jury would not confine its investigation to meat prices alone.

Magic Carpet a DC-3

Capitol Wizard Wings His Way

By Richard L. Coe

PEOPLE ABOUT THE TOWN: John Calvert, the Capitol's magician, is a triple-threat man . . . Flies his own plane (DC-3), acts the Falcon in those movies and has a contract that will take his F st. magic show to London in the spring . . . At 8 he was an Indiana farm boy collecting the eggs each morning . . . One Sunday he accidentally left an egg in his pocket and took it to Sunday School . . . Made a big hit with his fellows by making it disappear and reappear . . . Just the way he did the other day at the Occidental, where the waiter was THAT upset over disappearing money . . . John drove a pal's plane in from the Coast, but managed to be awake enough to open well at the Capitol . . . Insists Calvert's his real name, no relation to the men of distinction . . . He's proud of his stage tricks, but more so of the deaf folk who've been cured by his plane-dive treatments.

MRS. DE FOREST ANTHONY, of the District Motion Picture Council, is the sister of Mrs. Clarence Day, whose husband's stories resulted in the Warner's "Life With Father." . . . Mrs. Anthony tells us that she spoke to her sister about our comment that the Murray Hill home was exact except for the wallpaper . . . It turns out Mrs. Day felt the same way, but the painted walls were necessary because in the early shots it was discovered that actors' noses get lost in flowered wallpaper . . . Hence, painted walls . . . Mrs. Day says that she's delighted with the film and everyone in it, particularly with Jimmy Lydon, who does such a fine job as Clarence, jr., the young man who was to become her husband. . . . He did not, by the way, marry Mary, the girl played by Elizabeth Taylor . . . We meant to ask her how Aunt Cora, who's still living in New York, enjoys ZaSu Pitts' portrayal of herself.

HAILA STODDARD, playing Sally in the National's "Turtle," one of the longest feminine roles in years, says it's getting to seem almost like a rest . . . She spent the summer playing seven different parts, among them "Dream Girl" and "Joan of Lorraine," of similar length . . . Haila's got two youngsters and between getting them settled for fall, playing opposite Jimmy Stewart in the season's first Theater Guild broadcast, and getting Sally into shape within 10 days, she's had a busy fortnight. . . . Now the light cues are on the nose at the National and she's looking forward to getting to the Coast, whither "Turtle" is bound . . . Quite a girl, Haila . . . Knows what to do with reporters who sprain an ankle at midnight on the Lincoln Memorial steps.

EDWARD EVERETT HORTON, a sell-out at Olney, whisking down E st. with several quarts of ice cream from a Rotary Club luncheon . . . He left them at the National for his old leading lady of "Springtime for Henry," La Stoddard, who once had the part the beauteous Lillian Bond is playing now . . . Eddie's an early riser, nineish, but he dozed off in mid-afternoon and so missed a visit with his nephew, a patient out at Bethesda Naval Hospital . . . For all that, he's not the least tired of playing Henry Dewlip, nor does Henry seem tired of Horton.

SHEILA BROMLEY, the "Turtle's" Olive, vows that no one knows of her in big towns like ours, but that out in the sticks she's practically Queen of the Bs, because of all those Westerns she's made . . . She's done so much stage work since that she'd like to forget the Westerns, but she gets over that when, as happened the other night, an old fan stopped her in the street and presented her with a book he thought she'd enjoy.

PHILIP FAVERSHAM, to complete the "Turtle" trio, regrets that his father, the late William Faversham, the Tyrone Power of his day, didn't want him to go on the stage . . . Told us of being with Lawrence Tibbett, jr., and Alan Dinehart, jr., the other night in Gotham, when all three sons were regretting that their successful fathers had discouraged footstep-following . . . Visiting him at the moment is his brother, William, jr., whose theatrical leanings their father okayed . . . Before we entered the war Phil was Ambulance Corps bound, got torpedoed and captured . . . After his release he enlisted in the Army and wound up a first looey.

DON KING of E. M. Loew's Open Air Drive In reports a change of policy "because the opening of school has changed patrons' movie-going trips." . . . Beginning tomorrow the feature will go on first and last, with the secondary film playing the middle position . . . Since tomorrow's topliner is "The Lost Weekend," this seems like a good idea.

TOMORROW: Lady Windermere's Oscar.

Abie's Irish Woes on Pix Screen

A cornier flick than "Abie's Irish Rose," at the Pix, is hard to imagine. Avoid it as the plague.

This is a new version of the Anne Nichols play, which held the long-run stage record before "Tobacco Road" and "Life With Father." It's been produced under the banner of Bing Crosby and "brought up to date" by a wartime marriage between Army man Abie and entertainer Rose.

The mechanics of the plot are more evident than ever. Nobody behaves with a modicum of naturalness and the whole thing is so contrived you find yourself looking for the nearest exit. Murphy becoming "Murphyisky" is dunned into you like a street drill and the bows to the Jewish, Roman Catholic and Protestant faiths are so numerous they become tasteless.

Edward Sutherland, who's done many good films, directed and presents an attractive newcomer, Joanne Dru, whose capabilities can't be measured in tripe like this. Michael Checkhov is the boy's father and J. M. Kerrigan acts Rose's Irish dad.

Don't say you weren't warned.—R. L. C.

Kaiser on Rampage To Up Steel Output

By Drew Pearson

Drew Pearson discusses the 1948 political affiliations of John L. Lewis in his column in The Washington Post Sunday.

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal was talking to an associate of Henry Kaiser, the big, breezy West Coast manufacturer.

Forestall

"When Henry comes to town," remarked Forrestal, half-joking, half-serious, "we all know it, and we also know he wants something. So we all gang up on him and determine he won't get it.

"But before he's finished, what he's after makes so much sense that usually he gets what he wants."

This week Kaiser was in town again, ringing office doorbells, badgering bureaucrats, trying to sell another idea—that we can't lick inflation until we have production, especially production of steel.

The idea is by no means new, but Henry has been pushing it harder than anyone else so far; also, he's come up with some potent figures. They are aimed to disprove the arguments of Big Steel that the Nation has plenty of steel mills, can't afford to build more mills for fear of having idle plants on hand later. This is the chief reason for the steel bottleneck today. Big Steel won't build new plants.

However, Kaiser has dug up figures to show that ever since 1901 the U. S. A. has built new steel plants at a rate which increased our production by an average of around 1,500,000 ingot tons per year. In other words, every year—except for one or two depression years—we have built new steel mills. We have been a growing, expanding, industrially progressive Nation.

"Are we now to sit back complacently and tell ourselves that we won't continue to grow?"

This is the question brash, breezy Henry Kaiser has been asking bureaucrats this week. So far they haven't given him an answer.

Note—To get around arguments by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Inland, etc., that they can't afford to build new steel plants and have them idle after the current boom, Kaiser proposes: Let the steel companies take a tax depreciation on their new plants over only a five-year period—as with war plants. Then the capital expense of new mills would be partly borne by the Government through tax allowances.

State Department Military

One question raised regarding General Marshall when he was appointed Secretary of State was whether the State Department might become militarized. While Marshall has leaned over backward to accept the civilian viewpoint, it's also a fact that more and more colonels and generals have entered his department.

Many are able, conscientious public servants. However, its proper that the public know how many military men have moved into the State Department. Here is the lineup:

Gen. Charles Saltzman—Assistant secretary in charge of occupied countries. He replaces Gen. John Hilldring.

Gen. J. K. Crane—In office of occupied countries.

Gen. Conrad E. Snow—Office of legal adviser.

Gen. Marshal Carter—Part of Marshall's secretariat. Sits outside Secretary of State's office to handle appointments.

Col. Ernest Gross—Office of legal adviser.

Col. Carl Hummelsine—Marshall's secretariat.

Col. W. W. Chapman, jr.—Office of administration.

Col. Stanley R. O'Rear—Office of department administration.

Maj. Floyd W. McCoy—Chief of division of department of personnel.

Col. Dean Rusk—Director of office of United Nations affairs.

Col. William A. Eddy—Special assistant for research and intelligence.

In addition, here are some of the Ambassadors and Ministers appointed from the military ranks:

Gen. Thomas Holcomb, former commandant of the Marine Corps, now Minister to South Africa; Admiral Alan Kirk, Ambassador to Belgium; Gen. Bedell Smith, Ambassador to Russia; Gen. Frank T. Hines, Ambassador to Panama. Also Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer has been special envoy to China.

Need for Health Center Cited By Va. Legislative Advisers

Abingdon, Va., Sept. 13 (AP).—The urgent need for a health center in southwest Virginia was emphasized by speakers from throughout the area today when the Virginia Advisory Legislative Council Committee studying medical care and needs held a public hearing at the Martha Washington Inn.

Representatives were present from Scott, Wise, Dickenson, Tazewell, Russell, Washington, Smyth, Grayson, Wythe, Carroll and Giles Counties and the City of Bristol.

Roy C. McClure, president of the King's Mountain Memorial Hospital, outlined the needs for hospital services in Bristol and its area.

Dr. G. Hunter Wolfe of Abingdon, said the situation was "desperate, because the people are not getting the care to which they are entitled."

"This sort of thing breeds socialized medicine, for the people are more concerned about getting medical attention than they are about how they get it," he said. He recommended a centralized hospital with facilities for clinics.

Mrs. Bessie Van Woofen of Wise County; Mrs. Eula Fullerton, superintendent of the Washington County welfare department, and Dr. James M. Suter, head of the Washington-Smyth health department, urged better services, and Dr. Suter advocated that a health center for southwest Virginia be located at Abingdon rather than at Roanoke. As alternate locations, he suggested Wytheville or Marion.

FLOATING STOCKPILE—Also at the Norfolk salvage depot are a large number of metal floats, used during the war to moor antisubmarine and antitorpedo nets. The ball-floats dwarf Lieuenant Blaine

AIRPLANES TO ALUMINUM INGOTS—Making comparisons at the Norfolk salvage depot are N. Hammond (left) of Norfolk, and Lieut. J. W. Munson, suppply officer. The two aluminum ingots they hold are equivalent to metal in a Corsair

2 Withhold Pleas In Jail Fight Death

Md. Trooper and Turnkey at Liberty On Bond Awaiting Manslaughter Trial

Salisbury, Sept. 12 (AP).—State Trooper J. J. Harbaugh and Night Turnkey John W. Turner waived arraignment today and continued at liberty on $10,000 bond each awaiting trial on manslaughter charges that grew out of a fight at the Wicomico County jail.

Manslaughter indictments were returned against them yesterday after an investigation by the grand jury, which went into session Monday.

Harbaugh and Turner are charged with causing the death of Milton H. Jones, 31-year-old Salisbury automobile dealer and truck line operator, who was arrested by Harbough July 27 on a drunken driving charge.

A fight developed as Harbaugh was taking Jones up to the penthouse jail in an elevator operated by Turner. They scuffled again in the jail. Jones later was taken to the Peninsula General Hospital and died.

No action was taken by the court today on a petition by Wicomico County State's Attorney Rex. A. Taylor for the appointment of special prosecutors in the case.

Taylor has asked the assistance of Attorneys Thomas F. Johnson and E. Edger Porter, retained by the Jones family.

Mother Is Shot by Husband As She Pleads for Children

Baltimore, Sept. 12 (AP).—A 21-year-old mother was shot four times while she was getting breakfast today and police issued an assault and shooting warrant for her estranged husband, picked up by Washington officers.

Despite the loss of considerable blood from two wounds in each thigh, Mrs. Floria Bowen was reported in "fair" condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

The husband was identified as James Bowen, waiter in a downtown restaurant. Police said they had been estranged three months and Mrs. Bowen had sworn out a nonsupport warrant.

Patrolman Carroll Dent and George Wright said they questioned Mrs. Bowen at her bedside and learned she was preparing breakfast about 5:30 a. m. for four boarders and her three children when she heard someone enter the front door.

She walked into the bedroom to see who had come in and was struck on the head.

Mrs. Betty E. White, who lives in another apartment in the building, told police she heard a man's voice and then Mrs. Bowen, crying:

"Please don't shoot the children. Shoot me, but don't hurt them."

Mrs. White said she then heard six shots.

Mrs. Bowen was found unconscious across a bed where her 5-year-old daughter had been sleeping. A 17-month-old son was asleep in a crib and a 4-year-old son in an adjoining room.

Va. Farmers Urged to Curb Outside Sales

Staunton, Va., Sept. 12 (AP).—Mayor Horace Edwards of Richmond declared tonight that Virginia farmers are sending far too much of their produce outside of Virginia to be processed instead of keeping it within the borders of the State "to provide ready money for our local labor market."

Speaking before the Augusta County Ruritan Forum, Edwards pointed out what he said were the shortcomings in Virginia's farm system.

"Seafood taken from our rivers and bay," he said as an example, "are sent to nearby Maryland at low prices where they are filleted and sent back sometimes in the same trucks to Virginia purchasers at a much higher price."

Marketing Stressed

Greater emphasis should be laid on marketing techniques, he continued, such as the development of marketing centers ,trade names and advertising programs. More utilities should be introduced on Virginia farms and health conditions in the rural areas should be improved, he added.

The mayor also suggested modern methods of farming should be put into practice, that more labor should be funneled into rural areas and criticized the fact that "there is too much inonprofitable or marginal production."

6 Major Needs Cited

Mayor Edwards said he believed there were six maor things which Virginia farmers should have:

The privilege of raising the general health and educational level of his family.

Assurance that credit facilities are available when needed.

Marketing and processing centers close at hand to reduce selling costs and shrinkage of produce.

Prices maintained at a level high enough to guarantee him a profit.

A desire to increase the value of his products with the hope that some farmers, now growing merely for their own home use, will take jobs in industry and become his customers.

A prosperity in which "he may enjoy the conveniences and facilities for living that make up the American way of life."

Va. Corn Good, Fruit Is Poor, Tobacco So-So

Richmond, Va., Sept. 12 (AP).—Corn is good, fruit poor and tobacc only so-so, the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service said today.

In a monthly summary of agricultural conditions, the service generally was optimistic over crop conditions in the State except to take note of the hot and dry weather in many counties and of a scarcity of labor in other sections.

The corn prospect, the service reported, is favorable in most northern, western and southwestern counties, where the yield is expected to be the largest on record. Early corn was damaged by July and August hot and dry weather, but will make average yields. Late corn, however, has been damaged seriously and yields will be small. The State's general corn production, the service added, is expected to hit 36,725,000 bushels, an increase of 1 per cent over last year's crop.

Virginia's small and scattered apple crop is ripening faster than predicted and the fruit is larger and better than usual. Preduction was estimated at 4,509,000 bushels. The peach crop, the service continued, turned out about as expected, but the percentage of soft peaches was much higher than usual because of unusually hot weather. In the Roanoke section, the crop yielded "very well," but in the Albemarle area were not up to expectations. The service estimated the State's total peach crop at 1,800,000 bushels.

The service said all types of tobacco are later than usual this year and by September 1 only 60 per cent of the flue-cured crop had been harvested. While some late crops will be improved by rains, the agency said weather conditions in much of the flue-cured section was unfavorable and in the dry areas tobacco was drying before it ripened fully. The service estimated the flue-cured crop at 126,850,000 pounds, 8 per cent less than last year's record crop.

Dry weather in most of the fire-cured counties retarded growth, and the service predicted that yields will not be as large as last year.

Here is the crop reporting service's predictions on other crops in the State:

Peanuts—Dry weather has retarded growth, but August weather conditions were favorable and conditions indicate that production will hit 202,500,000 pounds, 6 per cent more than the 1946 crop.

Cotton—A slightly larger crop than last year's small output. The boll weevil is reported to have caused considerable damage.

Court Crier Ill, To Miss Opening After 33 Years

Frederick, Md., Sept. 12.—The stentorian "Hear, Ye! Hear, Ye! Hear, Ye!" of Court Crier Marion S. Moberly will not echo through Courthouse Park for the first time in 33 years when the September term of Circuit Court opens Monday morning.

Confined to his residence for some time by illness, the veteran court crier and law librarian expressed regret today that he would not be on hand to help usher in the first term in which women jurors are eligible for jury service.

Since February 1, 1914, Moberly, who is 85, has inaugurated each new term of Circuit Court by sounding the bell in the courthouse cupola before proceeding to the front steps of the courthouse to announce "all persons having business before the honorable judges of the Circuit Court for Frederick County draw nigh."

Laclede, Mo., Sept. 12 (INS).—Laclede today completed plans for honoring the birthday anniversary of its most famed citizen, Gen. John J. Pershing. He was born here 87 years ago next Sunday, and lived here until he entered West Point, at the age of 19.

Mixed Jury Convicts 3 in Md. Rape Case

Towson, Md., Sept. 12 (AP).—The first mixed jury in Maryland history to hear a case in which the death penalty was a possible sentence, yesterday convicted two youths and a man of raping a 27-year-old Baltimore married woman last June 4.

Delmar Foster, 19, of Atlanta, Ga., James B. LaGuardia, 26, of Youngstown, Ohio, and a 15-year-old Atlanta boy were found guilty. Five of the jurors, seven of whom were men, recommended mercy.

Circuit Judges J. Howard Murray and Frederick Lee Cobourn withheld sentence after giving the defense until next Monday to petition for a new trial. The minimum sentence is 20 years.

Mrs. Evelyn M. English of Pikesville, one of the five women jurors suffered an attack of appendicitis but was able to sit out the case.

The three defendants pleaded innocent to the charge of forcing the Baltimore woman into a car and driving to Essex, where she was attacked. Charles L. Stevens, 18, of Kingston, N. Y., testified for the State he was in the car and witnessed the rape. He was not charged.

Atom Power for Industries Decades Away, Admiral Says

Baltimore, Sept. 12 (AP).—Development of atomic power for industrial use "will take decades or perhaps generations," Rear Admiral William S. Parsons, United States Navy director of atomic defense, predicted tonight.

Parsons, who commanded the Hiroshima bombinb mission which he called a "simultaneous demonstration of human constructive and destructive genius," addressed 60 members of the Maryland Society of the War of 1812.

The admiral said application of atomic reactors "to large scale generation of industrial power . . . is not expected for a period of from 30 to 50 years from now." He added "that a period up to 10 years will probably elapse" before they can be developed for specialized use.

Parsons listed a scarcity of nuclear scientists and engineers and limitations of uranium and thorium deposts as the principal difficulties in industrial development of atomic power.

Noting the occasion for his talk was the 133d observance of the British siege of Baltimore, the admiral said, "the dangers which face us in 1947 are more serious, partly because they are not so obvious and immediate as the attacks in 1814.

"Since World War II one of the difficulties has been merely to get a clear statement of the political and technical problems which surround us like land mines in a field."

Tracing efforts since the end of World War II to reach agreement on international control of atomic energy, the admiral declared "during this period Russia has repeatedly refused to cede sovereignty in the field of atomic energy. This refusal has brought about an impasse . . .

"So far it does not appear soluble as a problem separate from other international issues."

Takes School Post

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 12.—Dr. Maurice R. Dodd, chief of the advisement section of the Veterans Administration office here will serve as assistant superintendent of schools for Berkeley County, Superintendent of Schools G. William Ropp announced today.

Dr. Dodd assume his new duties September 22, succeeding Carl Beer.

Winchester Clerics 'Regret' Opening Of Sunday Movies

Winchester, Va., Sept. 12.—The Winchester Ministerial Association has issued a public statement expressing "regret" at the proposed opening of Sunday movies in Winchester September 28.

The announcement stated "it is another step toward the complete breakdown of the observance of the Sabbath in our community," but declared the association had no intention of attempting to prohibit the showing on Sunday or to be "drawn into a controversy" on the matter.

The statement, prepared by a committee composed of a Methodist, a Presbyterian and an Episcopal minister, said in part: "We deplore the progressive breakdown of the moral fibre of our community life as evidenced in the constantly increasing number of arrests and conviction in our courts. The month of August brought an all-time high of 214 arrests. . . .

"We believe there is a definite connection between the abandonment of these (Christian) principles and the increasing number of arrests and convictions."

Md. Man Given $10,000 Fine for Evasion of Taxes

Baltimore, Sept. 12 (AP).—George W. Bower, Wicomico County auto dealer, pleaded guilty in Federal Court today to income-tax evasions of $18,768 and received a $10,000 fine and a suspended prison sentence of one year and a day.

Testifying in her husband's behalf, Mrs. Bower admitted that income was not being reported on returns and said "dread of returning" to the "poverty" in which her husband had started out in business motivated the evasions in 1943-44.

Counsel and character witnesses said the defendant was a leader in civic and educational affairs of his home town, Fruitland. It was his "fine" past record that saved him from actually serving the prison sentence, Judge W. Calvin Chestnut declared.

Bower, his attorneys told the court, will be required to pay the tax due, about $11,000 in interest and penalties, and taxes claimed due for 1943 in addition to the fine and court costs.

Chinese Vote Levying on Kuomintang

Nanking, Sept. 12 (AP).—The Kuomintang, ruling party of the Chinese government, has decided to elect its officials rather than appoint them as in the past and will finance itself by levying assessments against its members, a party spokesman reported today.

The spokesman did not explain how the levies would be made, but said all the four million party members would be required to list their assets. One source said members with fortunes abroad faced the heaviest assessments and that "substantial" fines would be meted out for noncompliance.

The spokesman conceded that efforts to learn of Chinese riches abroad already had run into difficulties because American and British officials had advised that banking laws prevented disclosure of such information.

Clergymen Reported Kidnaped

Shanghai, China, Sept. 11 (U.P.)—The semiofficial Central News Agency claimed today that Chinese Communists kidnapped 150 foreign priests and nuns in a raid August 30 on the Hopei-Chahar border town of Yangchiaping.

It was not ascertained whether any Americans were among the abducted.

The agency said Communists fired the parish's 80-year-old church and seminary, causing more than $200,000 (United States) damage. The fire was said to have spread to the town, where 400 homes and buildings were gutted.

Communists Hit Freedom Train Tour

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—The Communist Party has sent its district educational directors a memorandum which declares that "key backers" of the Freedom Train, rolling repository for priceless historical documents, are motivated by "a demagogic purpose."

Freedom Train is sponsored by the American Heritage Foundation. It contains 98 documents and on Wednesday will begin a "rededication" tour of the Nation, bringing the documents to the American people for first hand examination.

The Communist memorandum asserts "the key backers of this campaign have a demagogic purpose. Such sponsors as the NAM (National Association of Manufacturers), the United States Chamber of Commerce and Winthrop Aldrich, president of the Chase National Bank, are spearheading every reactionary effort to destroy our Constitutional liberties."

The party memorandum declared "their campaign around the Freedom Train is a huge propaganda cover-up for the most widespread violation of the Bill of Rights and the Constitution in our history. It is 'democratic' camouflage behind which they will also intensify drives throughout the world."

Louis A. Novings, vice president and secretary of the American Heritage Foundation, said in commenting on the memorandum:

"We can understand why those people who do not like the American way of life do not like any program of rededication to its ideals and principles."

Relief Checks Cut Brings Many Protests

More than 50 persons gathered yesterday at the offices of the Public Assistance Division to protest or inquire into late or absent relief checks.

Board of Public Welfare officials said this was the first impact of the recent reduction of appropriations for relief here. The BPW said it has reduced its expenditures by $300,000 under District appropriations, including $108,000 cut from special-diet funds.

Relief checks due to be delivered on September 1 were still being mailed out yesterday. It was from this that most of the complaints stemmed. During this period, a re-examination of all cases on the rolls was made.

Rather than make an across-the-board cut, the BPW attempted to cut off the least needy and certain special cases, including persons who have families considered able to care for them.

Any person who has had a reduced check or has been cut off entirely can appeal, it was said.

The BPW said that it has cut all persons termed "employable" from relief.

There were approximately 5000 persons here receiving public assistance checks on September 1. More than a thousand of these have been cut off since, or have had checks reduced or suspended.

It is expected that the elimination of special-diet cases will result in a greater burden on hospitals and such institutions as Blue Plains.

Md. Communist Gets AVC Bounce

Baltimore, Sept. 12 (AP).—Philip Frankfeld, chairman of the Communist Party of Maryland, has apparently made his last speech to the Homewood Chapter of the American Veterans Committee.

Right after Frankfeld had the floor at a meeting last night, saying he was a "Communist and proud of it," the chapter voted unanimously never to permit Communists to speak at future meetings.

Frankfeld appeared at the rear of the meeting hall as City Councilman William J. Muth was delivering the peroration to a speech attacking communism as "Godless." The Communist Party chairman took the floor for several minutes after asking permission to answer Muth.

U.S. Acts to Void Alcoa Petition in Monopoly Case

New York, Sept. 12 (AP).—The Government acted today to void a petition by the Aluminum Co. of America asking a declaration that its operations no longer constitute a monopoly.

In its latest move in the 10-year-old case against ALCOA and its affiliates under the antitrust laws, the Government applied in Federal Court for a writ of mandamus on the grounds the ALCOA petition did not conform with a previous court mandate. The firm's petition is set for hearing October 15.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

School Spirit Lacking, Says District Liner

Are local high schools and colleges lacking in school spirit?

Barbara Pickard Ickes of 1235 N. Quinn st., Arlington, Va., thinks they are. She suggests that students and local newspapers ought to get together to remedy the situation. She says:

"At the games, for instance, most spectators seem more interested in peanuts, popcorn and their own jokes than in what's going on down on the field."

While Povich is out West and helpless to prevent it, let's muscle in on his field. Are we lacking in school spirit?

UPS AND DOWNS

The Lizzy Stone League for the Abolition of Long Skirts is steadily gaining momentum—and so is the newer controversy over the length of men's pants.

Latest Lizzy Stoners to join up are Edna H. Halstrom, Lorraine Hamilton, Elizabeth C. King, Edith Fox, Minnie L. Rosch, Harriett Miller, Phyllis R. Bremerman, Kay Glandbard, Betty Darling Gwyer and Mary Bowman.

In addition, we've uncovered a whole nest of recruits at 2121 Virginia ave. nw. They're the militant type who demand "more positive action," and sign themselves Betty, Connie, Lucille, Roberta, Sandy, Babbette, Madeline, Grace, Jane, Dot.

The argument over the length of men's pants brings this gem from Connie Colwell of 225 Newcomb st. se.:

"My husband was the first man to join the Lizzy Stone League—so I want to be the first woman to say 'down with pants legs.'

"Of course, if you can find me a man with beautiful ankles I'll change my mind."

And C. M. suggests that the drive to shorten pants lengths is nothing but a plot to sell spats.

The mailman just walked in. Two more Lizzy Stoners have signed on the dotted line—Mary Joyce of 2312 20th st. nw. and Juanita F. of 1433 Euclid st. nw.

FISH STORY

Margaret Hawkins, of 2307 41st st. nw., took an hour out of my life with this one:

"Five fishermen landed a mess of fish, and went to sleep without dividing them. During the night one of them awoke, divided the catch into five equal piles, and threw one odd fish into the water.

"Shortly afterward the second fisherman awoke, saw only one of the piles, divided it into five, and again threw an odd fish back into the water.

"In turn, each fisherman awoke and went through the same routine. The question is: how many fish had they originally caught?"

We'll have the answer on Monday. And while you're figuring, permit me to observe that the fifth fisherman must have been an awful dope to mistake that final pile for the full day's catch.

OH, BROTHER!

It was precisely 7:55 a. m. when the call came into headquarters.

"Brother has been hit by an auto," shouted an excited female voice.

"In the so-and-so block of Edmonston ave. Oh, please hurry."

"We'll be right there."

And they were. In a matter of seconds, the police were speeding toward the proper block of Edmonston ave.—where they found a dog lying in the road.

After questioning the excited female who had called, the disgusted cops discovered that her dog's name was "Brother."

Churchill's Rule-of-Thumb on War

NEW YORK—Sir Cedric Hardwicke, who left Hollywood to direct the new J. B. Priestley play here, tells of his earlier years when he toured the British provinces in a road show. He shared a room with another actor in a theater lodging house. They received £1 a week each, traveled second class, and shared cold, gas-lit quarters.

Hardwicke never saw his co-trouper again until he arrived in Hollywood where the man, now a film star, invited him to dinner. He sent his chauffeur and limousine to pick up Hardwicke, who then was brought to a large Bel Air estate. A butler opened the door. Four other servants were inside, to wait upon 14 dinner guests, all dressed in formal attire. On the walls were a Van Gogh, a Chagall, a Utrillo, a Renoir and a Picasso.

The host settled back in his Louis XIV chair, sipped his champagne, nibbled at his caviar and sighed to Hardwicke: "Oh, if I only could get back into the theater again."

One of Winston Churchill's friends here reports that the former Prime Minister said: "Those who say that war is impossible make it inevitable."

Time magazine recently printed the transcript of a conversation between King Michael and Antonescu of Romania—a conversation which supposedly had been recorded by a distaphone machine in Bucharest. Burton Berry, the former Minister to Romania, is skeptical about this. He said: "I never heard of a Romanian dictaphone that worked."

The rumors of the sale of the St. Louis Browns and the transfer of the franchise to Los Angeles mentioned the name of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt among the prospective buyers. Vanderbilt's name often crops up in these big-money sports ventures . . . This rumor is unture, because Vanderbilt isn't interested in buying a ball club. He's a Dodger rooter, but rooting is his sole interest. "When the Dodgers win, I couldn't be more pleased even if I owned the club," said Vanderbilt. "And by not owning the club, I don't feel as badly, when they lose."

Joe Frisco, who has resumed his nightclub career, says: "It's good to be working again. Imagine being able to look at my wrist and again know what time it is."

Dr. Alice Hamilton, who lives in retirement at Hadlyme, Conn., will receive the Lasker Award of the American Public Health Association in recognition of her efforts to improve working conditions for mine, factory and plant workers here and abroad. The 78-year-old lady, the first woman professor at Harvard, also will receive the $1000 Lasker Foundation Award.

"Your report this week about box-office lines at the closed Empire Theater, for tickets to 'Othello'—because the camera crew forgot to remove the 'Othello' billboard used in the new Ronald Colman movie—was merely theatrical history repeating itself," writes George Bleasdale. "It took me back to 1919 and the Actors Equity strike, when Marie Dressler pulled us all out of the Hippodrome. R. H. Burnside, director of the theater, with a cynical sense of humor, put signs out side the theater: 'NOTHING DOING at the Hippodrome.' This not only brought a block-long line of ticket buyers but also swamped the box office with mail orders for 'Nothing Doing,' from people who saw the signs while riding past on the 6th ave. el."
